No Hoover Dry Fight.
One Happy Mother.
The Able Lord Cowdray.
Beer or Children, Choose.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

SOME THAT UNDERESTIMATE President Hoover's knowledge of practical politics may revise their opinions. Now that he ignores the passionate appeal from prohibition organizations to stump the country on behalf of the dry law and amendment menaced by wet Democrats and Republicans.

The President decides that Americans over 21 years of age are sufficiently intelligent to decide about prohibition for themselves. He will look on and let the cat jump, without pushing her.

IF WE KNOW and feel anything, in the grave, waiting for Gabriel to rouse us, there is one happy mother in a grave in Sweden.

Her son, Andree, courageous explorer, lost in the Arctic 33 years ago, now returned to his native land, will be buried beside her. He wrote:

"No matter where I may be found after death, I wish to be buried beside my mother."

Every mother knows what happiness those words would give to the mother of Andree. The grave will not seem cold, with her son lying beside her.

He reports that intemperance is diminishing in Great Britain, "discouraged by taxation."

In England whisky, bought legitimately, costs about as much as it does here, bought from bootleggers, about $5 a bottle. In England, the money goes to the government. Here it helps build up our crime wave, bribes public officials and occasionally, as in New York, enables some judge or magistrate to buy his seat on the bench.

LORD COWDRAY is one of the puzzling Britishers that seem to have time for business and everything else.

At home he hunts the hounds, of which he is master, attends to polo, publishes his important newspapers. He has oil wells and oil works in Oklahoma, Texas, Mexico and elsewhere. And looks after them. Before returning to England early in October he will travel about 10,000 miles in the United States, looking after his affairs.

He comes of an active family. His father had interests all over the world, and among other things built the Pennsylvania Railroad tunnels under the Hudson River.

SIMON DE BLOCK, of Kane County, Illinois, pleaded guilty of making beer on his chicken farm, was fined $500, and sentenced to six months in jail.

And, this is the interesting part, his five children were taken away from him and made wards of the court.

The learned judge says a man that would make beer is not fit to retain possession of his children.

If that rule were applied to those that patronize beer and whisky sellers under prohibition, some of our eminently respectable gentlemen would miss their children.

SENATOR PINE, of Oklahoma, proposes to fight the confirmation of Eugene Meyer, Jr., as member of the Federal Reserve Board.

Senator Pine should think it over before voting.

A Federal Reserve member ought to know about money. Mr. Meyer knows a good deal about it, and has made a great deal of it.

Also, which should appeal to Senator Pine, Eugene Meyer, Jr., is "in business on his own account."

Unlike some other members of the Federal Reserve, he is not an office boy, and sent to carry out the orders of bigger bankers. He will do his own thinking.

RUSSIA'S SYSTEMATIC attacks on religious beliefs continue. All the prayers uttered on that subject seem, thus far, without result. The wise man, however, knows that Providence works in its own way and its own time.

Russia changes the great Cathedral of St. Isaac at Leningrad from a church to an "anti-religious museum." The main altar displays, on a moving picture screen, anti-religious pictures. Anti-religious lectures are delivered from the pulpit.

It is a comfort for those really religious to know that the Ruler of the universe could if He would, and perhaps will, send a bolt of lightning to destroy the building impiously used, with the moving picture machines and all the people in it.

CALVIN COOLIDGE, who never says a word that isn't interesting, is for peace, as long as nobody says or does anything that HE doesn't like.

He urges Americans "instead of catering to the instinct of the barbarian, who considered every stranger an enemy, to make more progress by following the dictates of religious enlightenment, which teaches that all men are brothers."

ALL MEN WERE brothers in 1914, but look what happened to some.

And, by the way, the ancient barbarian who considered every stranger an enemy, was the ancient barbarian that survived.

YACHT RACE HELD UP BY FOG

Lipton Sentimental Favorite To Win on Probably Last Try to Lift America's Cup

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 13. (INS.)—Fog banks rolled in from the Atlantic this forenoon, a few hours before the scheduled time for the start of the international yacht race between the Shamrock V and the Enterprise.

The weather man saw a possibility of showers in the wake of the mist. Off shore, the fog was said to be of the pea soup variety, thicker than inland.

Decision regarding the start of the race was held in abeyance, awaiting developments in weather conditions.

AWAIT DRAMA OF DEEP

Ten miles due southeast of Brenton lightship, grave yard of maritime tragedies, the drama of the deep will be unfolded.

Enterprise, defender of America's prestige on the seas, and Shamrock V, beau ideal of Sir Thomas Lipton's fading eye, are to race in the first of a series of heats for the America's cup, mute testimonial of international dominance of the waves.

Always an event to fill the eye and gladden the heart, the race for once will be held in a setting that is characteristic of the best traditions of yacht racing. Thirty miles over the bounding blue bosom of the offshore Atlantic, this pair will match speed, stamina and seamanship in a stirring duel and, with a gale rising on the lee, their halyards will sing "yo ho, ho" to nature's chantey, which is music far sweeter than the forecastle can know.

WIND FAVORS U. S.

The race was scheduled to get under way shortly before noon. It was to be sailed over a course 15 miles to windward and return, and hardened, salt-bitten natives averred that the windward wind was to be a gale, thereby favoring Enterprise almost out of all reason. Sir Thomas, over here

DIARY TELLS OF ANDREE WRECK

Strindberg's Notes Reveal Tragedy of Epic Flight To Pole 33 Years Ago

By KNUT STUBBENDORFF,
Universal Service.

(From the special Hearst-Scandinavian newspaper expedition which, on Thursday, reached White Island, death place of Salomon Auguste Andree and his two comrades, searching for further Andree relics.)

ABOARD THE S. S. ISBJOERN, Sept. 13.—Universal Service is today able for the first time to reveal with certainty the cause of the disaster that overtook Salomon Auguste Andree and his two comrades as they floated toward the North Pole in their strange sail equipped balloon 33 years ago.

From these cryptic notations in Dr. Nils Strindberg's diary, found by the Hearst-Dagsen Nyheter search party on White Island death place of the daring argonauts, the tragic story of their fatal flight into the unknown frozen regions of the Arctic is for the first time authentically reconstructed.

Strindberg's notes disclose that signs of trouble began to appear in the first 24 hours after the takeoff from Dane's Island, Spitzbergen, July 11, 1897. At that time the Ornen, their balloon, was rising at a great height. He wrote:

"We began to hear an incessant piping sound from the big valve of the gas bag."

BAG LOSES GAS

Evidently the huge inflated hydrogen bag had even then begun to lose gas, sending the three daring airmen closer to the rough ice floes beneath them.

Strindberg's account, that leaps back to the start from Dane's Island, describes how, as the huge gas bag floated upward, one of the valve attachments had become unscrewed and was accidentally dropped when the steering lines were thrown to the ground crew. This was known to the world at the time.

Strindberg then states how he threw a note addressed to his fiancee over the side of the balloon's basket as they passed over

RADIO TO CARRY URIBURU TALK

The new president of the Argentine Republic will speak to Pittsburghers tomorrow night at 7 o'clock through WCAE and an international radio hookup arranged by the National Broadcasting Company and Hearst Radio Service.

Speaking from Buenos Aires, Argentine, the voice of Gen. Jose Evaristo Uriburu will be carried 5,800 miles by short wave to W3XAL at Bound Brook, N. J., then relayed to the red network of the NBC.

The talk will be on the air approximately 10 minutes, weather conditions permitting. NBC has cancelled a sustaining feature, Songs of the Seasons, for this special broadcast. It is expected that the new president will talk of plans to organize the republic and the active part the Argentine will take in the Pan-American Union.

Tucci Death Halts Nixon Cafe Opening

Andrew Tucci, 42, a member of Conforti & Tucci, proprietors of the Nixon restaurant and of the Willows, Oakmont, died today at his home, 237 Morrison avenue, Mt. Lebanon. He was born in Italy and came to this country, settling in Pittsburgh, when he was 17 years old. Because of his death the scheduled opening of the Nixon restaurant Monday, with Vincent Lopez as the feature, has been postponed until Tuesday night.

Dawes Deems Radio Bad for Demagogues

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—The radio is singing the swan song of demagogues. Ambassador Dawes said at a banquet given by the Lord Mayor:

"For some unexplainable reason when persons listen by radio to the speeches of demagogues their instincts are not aroused in the same way as when they are in a crowd."

Mary Spas, One-Time Ward Of Browning, Elopes

TROY, N. Y., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Mary Spas, widely known as the "Cinderella girl" five years ago when she was adopted by Edward W. Browning, was on a honeymoon today with the prince of her choice.

Eloping from their homes in Astoria, L. I., Miss Spas and Dr. Henry Tvrdy were married here on Thursday by Police Justice James F. Bryon. Both gave their ages as 26. Dr. Tvrdy is a dentist. They said they had known each other since childhood.

Browning, a wealthy New York real estate operator, advertised in July, 1925, that he wished to adopt a 14-year-old girl as a companion to Dorothy Sunshine Browning, 9, whom he had adopted six years previously. Out of 12,000 applicants he selected Miss Spas.

When it developed Mary was 21 instead of 16 as represented, Browning obtained an annulment of the adoption.

A suit of Miss Spas for $500,000 damages for alleged cruelties she contends she suffered at his Kew Gardens, L. I., home was filed against Browning in 1926 and is to come up in October.

Browning in April, 1926, married Frances (Peaches) Heenan, from whom he later was granted a separation.

PINCHOT HOLDS PARLEY HERE

With one exception, Republican nominees for major state offices to be filled at the election November 4 are expected to come here today for a conference in the William Penn Hotel with Edward Martin, state treasurer and Republican state chairman. The hour of the conference is not determined.

Gen. C. C. Shannon, nominee for lieutenant governor, will be absent, delivering the principal speech at a reunion of his regiment.

Gifford Pinchot, nominee for governor, is due to arrive some time in the afternoon after speaking in Meadville. He will broadcast at 6:30 p. m. over KDKA and speak at a dinner in the Pines un-

Shaw Credits His Victory In Colorado to Fight On League Court

(George H. Shaw, Denver attorney, defeated William V. Hodges in Tuesday's primary by a majority of 18,000. Shaw opposes America's entering the League Court. Hodges declared in favor of the League.)

By GEORGE H. SHAW,
Winner of the Colorado Republican Nomination for United States Senator.

DENVER, Sept. 13.—I am asked to interpret the results of Tuesday's primary, in which I defeated Mr. Hodges.

To me, the results speak for themselves. I think the Republicans of Colorado, by their ballots, again emphasized that they do not wish the United States to be controlled by the international bankers who would place us into the League of Nations and its so-called World Court.

In the course of my campaign, I declared as follows:

"The World Court is the child of the League of Nations. The old world diplomats rewrote these reservations. The greatest power for world peace is the strength of this republic, and any alliances which have the remotest possibility of breaking down the sovereignty of this nation, any commitments which tamper with our nationalism, any delegation of power or authority which tends to involve our people in the jealousies of foreign nations, and the chicanery of continental politics, must be rejected.

"The people of Colorado desire continued peace. They believe, and they have repeatedly

Henry Ford Visits Belgium on Tour

BRUSSELS, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Henry Ford arrived here today and visited the Ford works. He declared he was touring Europe for a holiday and would leave soon for Germany and Switzerland, eventually returning to Paris.

Business circles believe Ford came to Belgium to study the selling offensive of British automobile manufacturers who reduced prices two weeks ago.

$50 FIRE BURNS WOMAN, 2 MEN

Three persons were burned trying to extinguish a fire which started in a bed on the second floor of the home of Dominick Ionadi, 629 Larimer avenue, today.

Ionadi, 62, his wife, Eleanor, 60, suffered burns on their hands as they sought to assist their son-in-law, Philip Scolieri, 37, who also was burned in an effort to smother the flames.

The two men were removed to Pittsburgh Hospital, while Mrs. Ionadi was treated at home. Firemen placed the damaged at $50

ATLANTIC COAST FEELS STORM

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—An intense tropical hurricane which yesterday struck the lower North Carolina coast with great force today apparently was speeding northeastward along the shore with indications that winds of gale force would be felt today as far north as Atlantic City.

Storm warnings were posted from Hatteras to Sandy Hook but expectations were it would miss part of the Virginia shore at least.

The hurricane crippled communication between the North Carolina coast towns and outlying areas but no loss of life was reported and available information indicated the damage was confined to broken wire lines, uprooted trees and a few demolished buildings.

FEAR FOR ISLANDERS

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 13.—(INS.)—Damage was wrought along the Carolina coast during the night by a tropical hurricane but the storm passed out to sea early today without loss of life, it was believed.

About 100 refugees were sheltered in the Cape Lookout Coast Guard station, reports here said.

Some anxiety was felt for residents of islands along the coast. The storm was reported powerful as it swept some of these islands.

2ND VICTIM AMBUSHED AND SHOT

Attempt to Burn Body of Murdered Man Fails; Clothing Oil-Soaked

A Sewickley Township "racket murder" and shooting of a North Side man, who, with a bullet in his stomach, refuses to answer a police grilling, were the crimes county detectives and the homicide squad are attempting to unravel today.

Lying face down along the Little Sewickley Creek road, near Devil's Hollow, the body of Carl Lucas, an Egyptian, and a "big time" Ambridge gambler, was found when the glaring headlights of an automobile flashed upon him.

CLOTHING OIL-SOAKED

The gaudy clothes of the gambler were oil-soaked, and a search of his pockets revealed none of the flashy jewelry or money he was said to possess. Examined, the body revealed a bullet hole in the chest.

Searching for a clue in the murder, county detectives questioned Emila Petucci, of 621 Beaver street, Ambridge, who, with Lucas, ran a gambling house in Ambridge. Petucci identified the body, and said he last saw his partner alive last Wednesday, but refused to sign a statement at the County Morgue. Nor could the Italian throw any light into circumstances that might result in his partner being "taken for a ride."

DETECTIVES' THEORY

County detectives had adopted the following theory in the man's death:

He was shot in Ambridge, and his body taken in an automobile to the lonely road near Devil's Hollow. Then oil was applied to his clothing and ignited in an attempt to dispose of the body. They reason that a heavy rain extinguished the flames.

Dominic Borgesa, 27, of 1108 Mella street, was shot in the right side while walking in Stayton street, New Brighton road, last night. He is in a serious condition in St. John's Hospital, and refuses to comment on the shooting to police.

An unidentified assailant stole upon Borgessa and fired a shot. Golfers at a miniature course course nearby heard the shot and saw the gunman run in Shadeland avenue.

If his condition improves, homicide detectives will question him later.

Hughes, Navy Chief, To Retire Thursday

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Admiral Charles F. Hughes, highest ranking officer in the Navy, will be relieved as chief of operations, Thursday, by Admiral William V. Pratt, commander-in-chief of the fleet.

Admiral Hughes reaches the statutory retirement age October 14, but, under legislation enacted by the last Congress, he will be placed on the retired list as of November 1. Admiral Pratt will arrive here from the West Coast Wednesday.

The appointment was made some time ago.

Girl Burned Saving Mother From Fatal Acid Dose

An 11-year-old girl and her mother were in the West Penn Hospital from acid burns suffered when the girl, police were told, frustrated the mother's alleged attempt to swallow acid in their home last night.

The mother, Mrs. Stella Stapinski, 36, of 2828 Penn avenue, was raising a glass filled with a poison to her lips when her daughter, Wanda, walked into the room and knocked it from her hand. The fluid burned both about the face and arms.

The woman's husband, Joseph Stepinski, 46, arrested, told police, they said, that his wife quarreled with him over unemployment.

LEAKING GAS FORCED BAG TO ICE

SIGHT SEA ICE

With no thought of then turning back, if it were possible in their crude dirigible, or even seeking a landing place, Strindberg then states that he and his comrades determined to press on. He says:

"Our course was set more to the north. Ahead of us we sighted ice and our spirits were good.

"The balloon approached the sea ice, and almost simultaneously we sighted inland ice in the eastern part of a wide bay. We had reached the sea ice about 5 o'clock in the afternoon of the first day. We followed its edge until about 5:46 o'clock when our first four letter-carrying pigeons were released."

Then the balloon evidently sailed over the inland ice with its height cut down to 332 meters and its speed slowed up to seven meters per second.

There riding above the clouds Andree falls asleep in the basket gondola they had equipped with berths and Strindberg and Fraenkel whisper to each other. Strindberg wrote:

"At 8 o'clock we sighted behind the clouds to the southeast a distant land, probably Northeast Land. Through the clouds beneath us we caught glimpses of rough ice. The course was then changed to one estimated to be north by east 45 degrees longitude. The height remained unchanged."

DESPERATE EFFORTS

From now on Strindberg's account tells of the desperate efforts to gain height in the slowly falling balloon. At 10:38 o'clock five rope rungs are dropped to lighten the ballast. A minute later the three men find it necessary to drop six more rope rungs, and at 10:40 they throw overboard 8 kilograms of sand and a floating buoy.

"We are now again back at 600 meters altitude," writes Strindberg with elation. "All is well." (Both these entries were in English.)

DOOM FORESHADOWED

After 1:30 a. m. on the second day out, Strindberg writes:

"The balloon hung suspended in air without moving for several hours. We have thrown the third buoy overboard."

It is on this day, but the second of their flight, that the three men have a foreshadowing of the fate that awaits them. At 3:15 p. m. the diary states:

Frantic measures are taken to gain height. The guide lines are cut loose and 25 kilograms of sand are tossed to the ice beneath. Several ropes follow the overboard movement, and then an iron anchor and a pulley are thrown out. A ballast line and a rope that hung down from the basket and had been dragging along the ice are also cut loose. Later still the big buoy that Andree had intended to mark his triumphal journey across the North Pole is surrendered to the pressing need for altitude.

The three adventurers tried in vain to get the Ornen to rise, the gondola continued bumping along the ice with hard, nerve-racking crashes. According to Strindberg, the dense fog helped to weigh the balloon down. At 5:15 o'clock the course had so veered that it was almost due southward—away from the goal of their dreams. The speed of the airship was but two-sixteenths meters a second.

Hearst, Hailed as Patriot, Invited to Boston Fete

BOSTON, Sept. 13.—(Universal.)—William Randolph Hearst was invited by Mayor James A. Curley yesterday in a radio message to the steamship Europa, en route to New York, to be the chief guest of honor at the tercentenary parade and other features of "Boston Day" next Wednesday.

The message read:

"The city of Boston will observe on Wednesday, September 17, the three hundredth anniversary of the establishment of the Massachusetts Bay colony. More than 50,000 citizens will parade and 3,000,000 visitors are expected. Dominion of Canada government officials, mayors of every city of Canada and the provinces and the mayor of Boston, England, with leading American officials, including Secretary of Navy Adams, 10 governors and 100 mayors are to be our guests.

"The occurrence marks the beginning of free government in the world, and in view of the recent brutal assault upon the principles of free government, Boston extends and wants you to accept an invitation to be the honored guest of the city and occupy a position on the court of honor at the right of the mayor as one American who has earned the right of distinction."

Referring to the expulsion of the publisher from France by the French government, because he had exposed a secret treaty between that country and England, the mayor said:

"It is a fine tribute to an American to be singled out from 122,000,000 as one upon whom the French government might vent its spleen."

BRIDGEVILLE'S RACES OFF

The tracks of Bridgeville Kennel Club, closed Thursday night, failed to reopen last night, with indications that dog racing may not be resumed at that place.

Ordered to close by District Attorney Andrew T. Park, J. J. Eagan, manager, said that he would remain closed unless permitted to operate under the contribution system—now functioning at the New Kensington track.

Park had also ordered the Freeport road tracks of the Guyasuta Kennel Club to cease operation after complaints of Blawnox Council and the Ministerial Association of the Allegheny Valley.

AIRPLANE TOUR HEADS WEST

WAUSAU, Wis., Sept. 13.—(INS.)—With Eau Claire, Wis., as their next stopping point, 18 airplanes in the 4,500-mile national reliability air tour were prepared to leave today.

John Livingston, of Aurora, Ill., winner of last year's event, led the fleet of contestants here late yesterday to spend the night. Accompanied by 17 other aircraft, the competing planes left Chicago yesterday morning.

Arthur Davis and Wesley Smith landed second and third. Livingston's flying time from Davenport, Ia., noon stop-over point, was one hour and 30 minutes.

Youth Robbed of Car, Left Bound in Field

SHARON, Sept. 13.—William Noce, 18, son of the Rev. Syto J. They forced him to drive to a spot near Vienna, O., where they left him bound and gagged in a field. He finally managed to break his bonds.

ANOTHER GOOD dry has "gone wrong," from the point of view of prohibition.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, hitherto very dry, concludes now that "national prohibition is a failure," and that each state should be left to regulate the liquor traffic as a majority of its citizens deem advisable.

Senator Wheeler says he voted for prohibition in Montana to get rid of the saloons, "but under prohibition, we have in many cities more dives and speakeasies, where they are openly selling rotten whisky, than you had in the old days."

FOG THREATENS YACHT RACE DELAY

with his fifth challenger and probably his last, constructed a boat that was fashioned for light airs and so always beaten in this cup series but ever hopeful, he was going to the starting line with an entry that fate seemed to have doomed to failure.

Successful in everything else, Sir Thomas has yet to produce a cup winner, though he has sent millions of good dollars after bad in the attempt, and today, on the anniversary of his fifth challenge, there was something pathetic and wistful about this fine, old character as he sent his loved Shamrock out to the starting mark and then settled wearily down upon his deck cushions to hope for the best. Sir Thomas has been hoping for the best for the last 30 years.

HIS LAST CHALLENGE

This time it must be victory in the twilight of his life or the long years of optimism must see their finish with nothing but the disquieting realization of defeat to temper their disappointment. Broken in health, it is obvious now that Sir Thomas is sending his last challenger to the post in an international race.

In many respects, it will be the fairest and most conclusive test he yet has received in American waters. Both boats will start on a pay-or-play basis, meaning that they are to get away together, and strange as it may seem the first boat home will win. Hitherto, it had been the custom to decide the winner on a time allowance plan and by the time the statisticians had finished their task, Sir Thomas usually had retired for the evening before we were ready to tell him that his boat had lost.

Anyhow, except for random complaints by the Enterprise's disappointed rivals, this seemingly was to be a fast race and a fair one.

LIPTON TOWN FAVORITE

However, in one respect, everybody was in agreement.

This is a Lipton town. What may be treason to the New York Yacht Club is a keen gustatory anticipation to the boys along the Newport waterfront. There is a distinctive commercial and civic appeal in the names of Murphy and Sullivan and O'Brien that hang out over the butcher shops, bakeries and ready-to-wear stores. This is reflected in the hope that the combination of Lipton, Shamrock and Erin will score a victory in the undulating waves of green.

There is also a sentimental touch in the situation, not at all peculiar to the breed, that the aging and ailing Lipton might be able to make this last trial of his a smashing success. One of the impending tragedies of the race is that the Irish baronet, attended constantly by a physician and two nurses, my not be able to share to the full in the glories of the sport that is dearest to his heart. Today he will watch the race from his private yacht the Erin, a genial and heroic host to many of his close American friends whom he has invited to ride with him in the wake of the two white winged birds of the ocean.

A demurer, entered some days ago by George Nichols, son-in-law of J. P. Morgan and skipper of the Weetamoe, left some suggestion of doubt as to the fairness of the contest. He intimated that Enterprise was using an illegal boom, and although everybody else, including Harold S. Vanderbilt, the Enterprise skipper, is perfectly satisfied with the equipment, Mr. Nichols' suggestion has not been without its hangover of dubiety. The inference is that, if Mr. Nichols does not think Enterprise is all right, then it is barely possible that Enterprise is wrong. Mr. Nichols has years of background to sustain him. This is the first international cup race America has entered without a Morgan-owned boat as its defender. The Enterprise not only is Vanderbilt-owned but Vanderbilt-piloted and bluebloods will have their disagreements, just like bricklayers.

SUPREME SPORTSMAN

Up early and at breakfast with a few intimate friends, Sir Thomas was, as usual, the supreme in sportsmanship.

"If we have good weather we'll have a fine time. We want nothing else."

Newport, a world symbol in first families and even newer fashions, today was a small town on a quaint New England hilltop, turned magically alive, alert and tense.

The streets blazed with the twin colors of the two greatest rivals and the two greatest friends in political history—America and England—and out in the harbor hundreds of water craft bobbed and floated at anchor.

On the street corners weather wizened men of the sea argued vigorously with city bred sailors in natty blue the respective qualities of Enterprise and Shamrock the Fifth.

expressed themselves to the effect, that this government should not engage in any agreements, treaties or arrangements, either formal or informal, in any way inconsistent with or antagonistic to the policy set forth in the farewell address of President Washington and carried on through the successive generations of our national life.

CAN AVOID CLASH

"We shall not have to engage in another war so long as we remain free from the age-old hatreds, the border disputes, the political intrigues and the chaos of clashing interests that forever stir the states of the old world. These quarrels are not ours, and yet to recognize them in ever so slight a degree, when they are not related to any interests of the United States, is in just such a degree to become a party to them.

"The American people have repeatedly expressed themselves in reference to an abandonment of this policy.

"Europe today is a welter of racial antagonism. Dissatisfactions and thwarted aspirations are producing a condition in which an explosion may be imminent.

SHOULD BAN WAR

"It is true that war is archaic, unintelligent and blundering and that it should be discarded as an instrument of national policy, except in matters of defense. But this will not come by blindly entering a new combination, under whatever name, where intrigue and selfish diplomacy will strip America of her independence and limit her power to act with her army and navy, if need be, in the interests of her own people and for the peace and tranquility of the world.

"The memory of the last war is still upon America; our loss upon foreign soil of 100,000 men is engraved upon imperishable tablets of bronze throughout the nation; it is written in sorrow upon countless hearts. I am not one to urge peace at any price. I believe that if the time ever comes when the sanctity of our institutions is threatened, our hearthstones endangered, our hard won liberty menaced by a foreign foe, we should fight.

"But no such situation confronts us now. And no such situation is liable to confront us so long as we remain free of the League Court, or any child of the League of Nations, representative of the whirlpool of clashing interests that eddies about the continental shores.

NEED AMERICAN VIEW

"We should consider this problem, not from the standpoint of an internationalist, but from the standpoint of an American. To live in harmony with our neighbors is our sincerest desire and constant aim. We are not jealous, we did not covet their possessions. We are not an agressor nation. We are a peaceful people.

"Let us adopt for ourselves and require our senators and representatives in the national government to accept as their guide these words of Washington in his farewell address: 'Constantly keeping in view that it is folly in one nation to look for disinterested favors from another; that it must pay with a portion of its independence for whatever it may accept under that character; that, by such acceptance, it may place itself in the condition of having given equivalents for nominal favors, and yet of being reproached with ingratitude for not giving more. There can be no greater error than to expect or calculate upon real favors from nation to nation. It is an illusion, which experience must cure, which a just pride ought to discard.'"

BOY'S 200-FOOT FALL

200-FOOT FALL KILLS BOY

Amadeo Brusco

He, his twin brother, Albert, and several companions were playing near the cliff's edge late yesterday, when he looked down to see how high he was above the brick yard. The boy lost his balance and plunged.

His companions, horror-stricken, ran to his aid. Police from the Center Avenue Station took the boy to the Passavant Hospital. There he was pronounced dead.

The victim, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ventura Brusco, leaves three sisters and four brothers besides Albert.

Bee Sting Fatal To Ohio Farmer

UPPER SANDUSKY, O., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Paul Smith, 50, farmer, died yesterday a half hour after being stung by a bee.

Howls of Dog Save Sleeper From Blaze

BEAVER, Sept. 13.—Isadore Huber, 45, owes his life to his police dog, that howled and awakened him, enabling him to escape when fire destroyed his house in Potter Township. Huber was living alone in the house, a landmark said to be nearly 100 years old.

PARIS WEEK FOR GIRL WINNER

Gloria Swanson Offers Week Of Joy; Sun-Telegraph Adds Bermuda Visits

Paris for a week! This is to be one of the joys of, at least, some one girl's life. Gloria Swanson has made it possible and there is already keen interest throughout the Pittsburgh reading area as to who the fortunate girl will be.

Miss Swanson is offering this trip through the Sun-Telegraph, everything de luxe, all expenses paid from Pittsburgh to Paris and home again—with extra money to spend while on the tour.

To create added interest, the Sun-Telegraph is offering five additional tours to glorious Bermuda, the beautiful islands out on the Atlantic, full of historic interest, wonderful in scenery and climate. The five girls who get the Bermuda trips will also have a de luxe tour, all expenses paid.

The girl who goes to Paris will have the finest accommodations on the French liner Paris, and the girls who go to Bermuda will sail on one of the magnificent new boats of the Munson Steamship Company.

HER NEW PICTURE

Miss Swanson is awarding her trip on account of her new picture, "What a Widow!", which was filmed mostly on the ocean liner Paris and in the glorious city of Paris. This picture comes to Loew's Penn Theater later this month.

The complete plans for the Paris-Bermuda awards will be disclosed early next week. Every eligible girl who sends in a nomination blank clipped from this page of the Sun-Telegraph will receive a letter telling her just what she will have to do to get one of the wonderful tours without cost to her.

Gloria Swanson

For the purpose of a fair distribution in the award of these free de luxe trips, the classes of workers to whom the awards will eventually be made have been divided into five groups. There is to be one girl more fortunate than all the others in these five groups. She will get the Gloria Swanson trip to Paris. The trips to Bermuda, however, will be awarded so that one trip, all expenses paid, will be awarded to each group. This means that when the winning candidate for the Paris trip is announced, another girl in the same group will also be given a trip to Bermuda.

GROUPS CLASSIFIED

The groups have been arranged as follows:

Group 1—Telephone operators in the employ of the telephone company or operators in charge of private switchboards at hotels, clubs, mercantile houses and industrial plants. This group is limited in its entirety to telephone operators.

Group 2—Office workers, bookkeepers and clerical help; stenographers; private secretaries.

Group 3—Cashiers, restaurant employes, grocery store, chain store, etc., employes and workers in industrial plants other than the classification in the preceding groups.

Group 4—Department store and women's specialty shop employes.

GIRL CHAMPION SHOOTS HERE

Miss Brown, attired in boots, ten-gallon hat and wearing a vicious looking belt studded with shells for her 38-caliber revolver, arrived in the city yesterday. She called on Joe E. Brown, Stanley comedian.

RAIDS TRAP 5 IN SHARPSBURG

Five persons, three of them women, were arrested in raids headed by Police Lieut. Samuel Fair in Sharpsburg yesterday. They were released on bonds of $1,000 by Justice of the Peace Tony Ferraro for a hearing next week.

Lieut. Fair, accompanied by Patrolman Andy Domino and Constable Frank Caricoto, reported finding violations of the liquor laws in each of the places visited. The raids were the result of an order issued Monday night by Sharpsburg council for a cleanup of the district. Those arrested were:

Elizabeth Mascarell, of 1208 Main street; Julia Guyzbowska, of Third and Prager streets; Mrs. A. Betls, of Nineteenth and Main streets; Mike Zilinski, of 1314 Main street, and Joseph L. Sczeponkowska. The latter was arrested in a hotel at 1300 Main street.

Trawler Sinking, 18 Await Rescue

HONGKONG, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—With 18 men clinging desperately to the rigging, the Japanese fishing trawler, Ibuki Maru, aground in Hainan Straits, today was breaking up fast under the pitiless pounding of heavy seas.

The oiler Pearleaf, bound for Singapore from Hongkong, has been diverted from her course and is hurrying to the rescue. Other vessels are standing by, but all rescue attempts have failed and it is feared it will be impossible to save the men, since the trawler is settling down rapidly.

Seizes Still in Raid, Makes 3 Arrests

Patrolman Thomas Martin, of the Center Avenue Police Station, today arrested three men, also confiscated a still, moonshine and 50 metal vats in a raid at 2013 Cuba way, according to a police report.

Joe Parisi, 40, of 326 Lombard street; Frank Megal, 45, of 8 Cuba way, and Julio Leona, 31, of 58 Elm street, found in the house, were arrested. The still, of 150-gallon capacity, was in operation, according to Martin.

Store Owner Fined In Liquor Seizure

Tony Bagleo, 35, was fined $50 this morning in North Side Police Court by Magistrate Ray Schneider on a charge of keeping a disorderly house.

Bagleo was arrested yesterday when police of Woods Run Station raided his confectionery store, 1027 Beaver avenue. According to police, six gallons of moonshine were seized.

AGENTS SEIZE 2 RUM CARS

Prohibition agents today reported seizing two liquor-laden automobiles, one in downtown and the other in Sharpsburg, and 35 cases of ale in an East End garage.

Trailing an automobile from Oakland to the Boulevard of the Allies and Grant street, the agents said they arrested William Lai, 23, of 537 William Penn way, and F. P. Madigan, 25, of 2108 Monongahela avenue, Swissvale, after 12 quarts of gin had been found in the car.

Another automobile was confiscated at Main and Eighteenth streets, Sharpsburg, when five gallons of moonshine were found in it, according to the agents. The federal officers reported arresting Adolph Morvi, 63, of 924 Mellon street, as the driver.

In a garage at 7724-26 Frankstown avenue, 35 cases, each containing 24 pints of ale, were confiscated, the raiders asserted. One arrest was made.

Textile Men Urge Cut in Night Work

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—The executive committee of the Cotton-Textile Institute, an organization of manufacturers, has announced a resolution recommending to manufacturers the elimination of night work for women and minors in cotton mills

IRIGOYEN FATE IN DOUBT

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 13.—(INS.)—The fate of Senor Hipolito Irigoyen, deposed Argentine President, again entered the realm of uncertainty today with his reported arrest aboard the cruiser Belgrano.

The aged statesman only yesterday was announced as bound into exile, but in an official statement given International News Service later the foreign office reported Irigoyen as "still aboard the cruiser Belgrano, which is anchored in the River Platte."

Ships plying between Montevideo and here brought the information that the cruiser was anchored 11 miles off Montevideo, out of the chartered tracks of navigation. Apparently the Uriburu government changed its intentions of sending the former executive into exile, detaining him instead for undivulged reasons.

The new government already has made great headway in its efforts to place the Argentine back on a sound financial footing. As definite indication of the confidence enjoyed, it was announced today by Finance Minister Perez that the $50,000,000 loan contracted between the Irigoyen regime and the American Chatham Phoenix banking house would be renewed with the same firm or one offering better terms on its expiration date, October 1.

The capital, still under guard, remained normal.

Pilot, Chinese Plane Owner Die in Crash

MEXICALI, Mexico, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Lieut. Enrique Castanieda, of the Mexican army aviation corps, was killed and Juan Yee Kun, local Chinese merchant, was injured probably fatally, when their airplane nose dived 100 feet near the government airport here.

The plane belonged to Kun, who was being instructed by Lieut. Castanieda.

Elliot Hand Shakers Still Going Strong

The hand-shaking team from Elliott was still in motion today and as confident as ever of continuing for 500 hours. Joseph Cue and Charles Mathews shook hands in a friendly way Tuesday evening, September 2. Since then the thing has become serious, and they have been shaking ever since.

Wilmerding Chief Again Arrested

For the second time within 10 days, Wilmerding's chief of police, James B. McGuire, has been arrested for slugging.

Albert E. Harris and his mother, Mrs. Mary J. Harris, charge the police official beat them with his fists following an argument in Turtle Creek.

Harris charged McGuire angered when he passed the official's car, jumped out of the [illegible] and beat him. Mrs. Harris, a passenger in her son's car, said she was struck several times when she tried to shield her son. The information was filed before Justice of the Peace J. T. Small, of Turtle Creek.

AUTO ON TRACK DERAILS TRAIN

An automobile was badly damaged and three freight cars were derailed this morning when a locomotive pulling a long freight crashed into a stranded machine on the Sixth street crossing of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Homestead.

No one was in the car at the time of the crash. The license plates of the car were missing, and police are investigating. It is believed the occupants of the car leaped when they saw the locomotive coming.

The engineer reported he saw the car stalled on the tracks and employed his emergency brakes to stop his engine. The sudden stop caused three of the cars to buckle and leave the track.

The derailed cars blocked traffic on the Pennsylvania tracks. It was reported that local passenger trains were rerouted on other tracks, resulting in several of the trains being behind schedule.

Probation for Ace On Purse Snatching

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Capt. George Clifford, British World War air ace, was put on five years' probation by the Superior Court today. He had pleaded guilty to snatching a purse containing $79.

Clifford told the court he had suffered ill health after his war service and had been promised a job if he obtained probation. Royal Air Corps records in Clifford's possession showed he had shot down 41 enemy planes during the World War.

OLD LAW USED ON GANGSTERS

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—(INS.)—Dusty and forgotten, the old vagabond law of 1874 was brought forth today as a means to prosecute six members of the Alphonse Capone forces seized in the concerted drive to stem racketeering.

The broad ramifications of the statute can be used to jail scores of known gangsters including the powerful leaders, authorities promised. The old law leaves little loophole for escape, it was pointed out as the new committee of 33 business and financial leaders set to work to solve the gang problem.

Six reputed Capone workers arrested on the North Side were held in bonds totaling $114,000. The men arraigned were Lewis Chapin, Harold Burman, William Winek, Sal Lucy, Joseph Lescuidrella and Joseph Bush.

Israel Alderman, sought in connection with the murder of Alfred "Jake" Lingle, and Joseph Condi were indicted in true bills returned by the grand jury. Bonds were set at $30,000. Alderman at one time was wanted in New York in connection with a jewel robbery.

Police and Firemen Invite Pinchot, Kline

Gifford Pinchot and Mayor Charles H. Kline yesterday were invited to be honor guests at the annual reunion of the police and firemen's veterans associations in Sully's Grove tomorrow.

Committees representing the two organizations will wait on the former governor and Mayor Kline today and request their presence at the outing. Mayor Kline has not missed one of the reunions since he became chief executive of the city.

Automobile Kills Student on Cycle

LYNCHBURG, Va., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Alder J. Blethen, 20, University of North Carolina student and son of C. B. Blethen, publisher of the Seattle Times, was fatally injured yesterday when he fell from a skidding motorcycle under a passing automobile near here. He died in a hospital.

He was returning from Chapel Hill with a friend, B. C. Goodwyn, Jr., of Clifton Forge, who was operating the motorcycle.

Husband Beat Her Often, Dancer's Suit Claims

Three or four beatings a week were administered Jean Carlton, stage dancer, of the Fairfax Apartment Hotel, by her husband, James E. Carlton, musician, of Milwaukee, she told Judge Frank P. Patterson at the hearing of her divorce suit in Common Pleas Court.

They were married in Kansas City in 1923, her home being in Chicago, and came to Pittsburgh shortly afterwards, living on Cedar avenue. They parted last October, after he had knocked her down and threatened her with a revolver, a climax to three years of frequent beatings and verbal abuse, she testified.

TWO TALKS MONDAY

Pinchot will rest Sunday in his William Penn Hotel suite and devote most of Monday to conferences and radio talks. He will talk at Jeannette and Mt. Lebanon Monday.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, nominee for United States senator, is scheduled to arrive here by airplane after delivering an address at a bean soup picnic at Selinsgrove.

Judge James B. Drew, one of the two nominees for Superior Court judge, was expected to return from the East in time for the conference.

Judge George W. Maxey, nominee for justice of the Supreme Court; Judge W. B. Linn, the second nominee for Superior Court judge, and Philip H. Dewey, nominee for secretary of internal affairs, are due early this morning.

Chairman Martin is expected to arrive from his home in Washington, Pa., during the afternoon.

RECEPTION MONDAY

Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Republican county chairman, has requested committeemen and women and other party members, to attend a public reception to Pinchot between 9 and 11 a. m. Monday in room 1566, William Penn Hotel.

The visitors will include these leaders that supported Pinchot in the primary election: Former Judge Frank I. Gollmar, Allegheny county campaign chairman; County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, field marshal of Pinchot forces in Western Pennsylvania; former President of Council James F. Malone and State Senator James J. Coyne.

Considerable interest is centered on the appearance of elected city and county officials, especially those who must run next year, that opposed Pinchot in the primary and now face a test of party regularity.

Auto Driver Cleared In Deaths of Two

GREENSBURG, Sept. 13.—James Smartnick, of East Huntingdon Township, driver of automobile which on June 23 crashed into a motorcycle in the business district here, killing E. Proctor McWilliams, Jr., 19, and Richard G. Probst, 19, both of Greensburg, has been exonerated by a coroner's jury.

ARREST MAYOR ON RUM CHARGE

STEUBENVILLE, O., Sept. 13.—Charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act, Mayor Benjamin Oliver, of Yorkville, south of here, was arrested last night by federal agents. Fred Cusick and his sister, Mrs. Mary Opalich, were jointly accused with the mayor.

Mayor Oliver was released on $1,000 bail, when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner James Borkowski. The others were committed to jail in default of bonds.

Federal agents raided Cusick's hardware store and seized 54 quarts of beer and a gallon of whisky and in a raid on the Opalich home found a still and 50 gallons of liquor.

Open Switch Wrecks Trains, Kills Two

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—A head on collision between two Rock Island freight trains last night resulted in the death of P. W. Frey, a fireman, injury to two other trainmen, and possible death of Ernest M. Fridge, an engineer, reported missing after the crash. It was feared Fridge was buried beneath the wreckage.

Lightning Kills Two Children in Field

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Caught in a field by a storm that struck suddenly, two children, a 13-year-old boy and his 12-year-old sister, were killed by lightning last night on a farm near Towanda. Their mother, walking between them, was knocked to the ground, but was only slightly bruised.

2 HURT IN AUTO, CHILD KILLED

Reynold Isaacson, 25, of 107 East Montgomery avenue, and his wife, Ella, 19, were in St. John's Hospital today following an accident last night in which their auto crashed into a telephone pole in Brighton road.

Isaacson told police his wife, who is subject to nervous seizures, suffered such an attack while they were riding in their machine. When he attempted to catch her as she fell to the floor of the car, he said, it swerved and struck the pole.

Struck by a truck near her home last night, Audrey Mitchell, 8, of 3 Duquesne boulevard, Duquesne, received injuries which caused her death in the Braddock General Hospital, according to a coroner's report. Joseph Nicola, of 2523 Magnet street, alleged driver of the truck, was ordered to post bond at the coroner's office.

A Swissvale motorist figured in a fatal accident last night near Meadville when his car struck and killed William Mook, 70. The driver, Eugene Bash, Swissvale, said the accident was caused by a truck crowding him from the road. He was not held.

Morrow Declared Best U. S. Product

Two Costly Rugs Stolen From Home

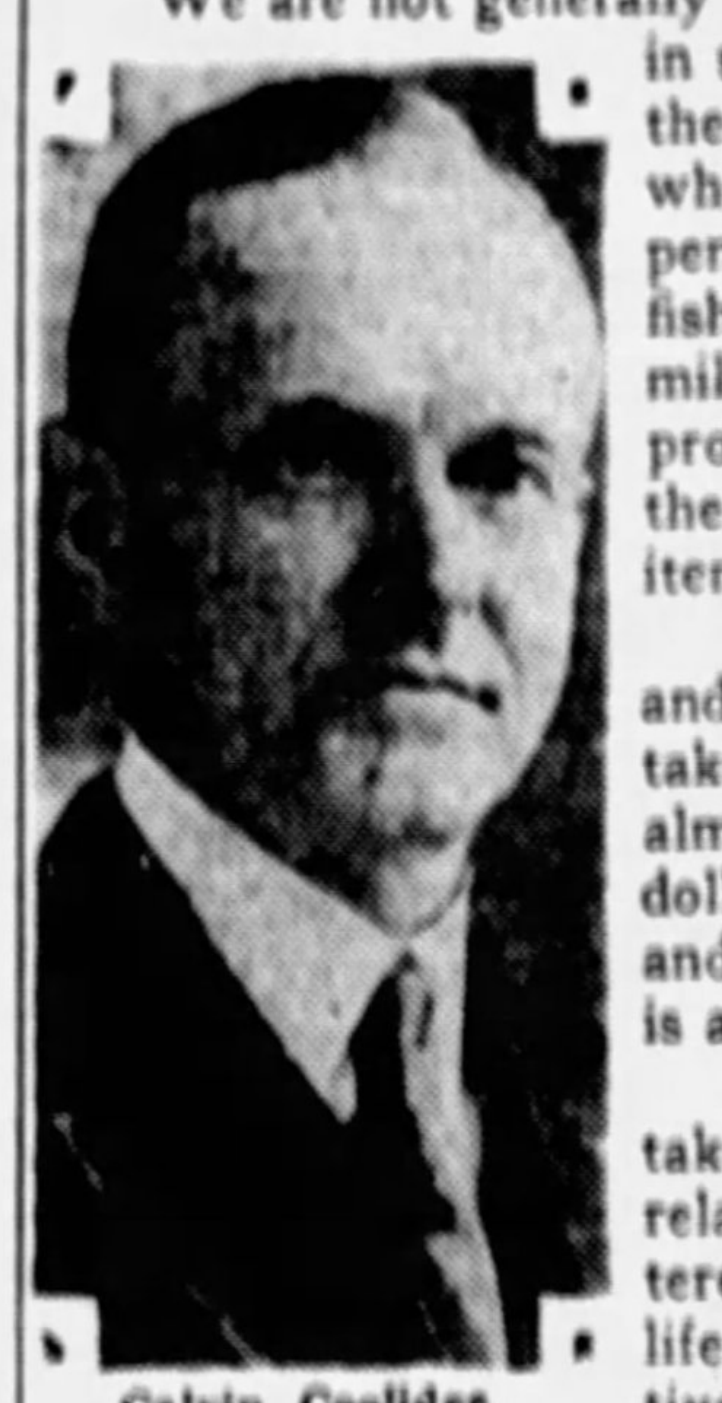
Two Oriental rugs, each valued at $1,000, were stolen from the home of T. K. Cree, of 6909 Meade street, according to a report to detectives today. The theft occurred between September 2 and 12, while the family were away on a vacation.

Coolidge Lauds Sports As Aid to Citizenship

SARANAC INN, N. Y., Sept. 13.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The coming yacht race is the apex of international sport. It will attract universal attention, although but few can participate in it.



Calvin Coolidge.

We are not generally considered as a nation interested in sports, yet in no other country is the outlay for that purpose anywhere near so great. The yearly expenditure for baseball, football, golf, fishing and hunting is hundreds of millions of dollars. Conservation and propagation of wild life mainly for the benefit of sportsmen is a large item in our government budgets.

For the last season nearly six and one-half million licenses were taken out to hunt and fish, for which almost nine and one-half million dollars were paid. The manufacture and distribution of sporting goods is a large business.

All of the varied sports activities take people out of doors where they relax, recuperate and gain new interests that broaden and sweeten life. They afford an outlet for primitive instincts which otherwise tend to turn in upon themselves, with disaster to the normal development of the individual and at cost to society. Plenty of playgrounds and games is the best cure for youthful delinquency. Plenty of outdoor sports is a wise investment in good citizenship.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

POLL OFFICIALS' CHOICE NEAR

The Redistricting Commission is expected to reach a decision on nominees for judges and inspectors in the city's 405 districts Monday.

The commission has lists of applicants submitted by the various party chairmen in all wards excepting the Fourth, from which three will be recommended in each district for appointment by Quarter Sessions Court.

N. R. Criss, of a commission subcommittee in charge of the first 10 wards, said he expected to get a list today or Monday from Chairman Howard Neely, of the Fourth Ward.

Criss' subcommittee did not reach a decision on conflicting lists in the Third Ward submitted by friends of the rival claimants of the ward chairmanship, Alderman John J. Verona and Joseph Engelsberg.

Each faction charged the other with recommending candidates for election officers who had been guilty of election law violations, bootleggers and racketeers.

Criss had asked the various ward chairmen to select their candidates for submission to the commission from the present duly elected judges and inspectors. He said none of the 1,215 nominees will be recommended for the court's appointment until after an exhaustive study of their character and fitness has been made.

DR. JOHN DOWS HILLS

PASTOR SERVES 50 YEARS

The Rev. Dr. John Dows Hills, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, of Bellevue, yesterday completed 50 years in the ministry. Dr. Hills was ordained September 12, 1880.

Dr. Hills' golden jubilee will be marked by special services in the church tomorrow morning. A feature of the service will be a Pentecostal hymn, the words and music of which were written by J. Brinton Whitehead, of New York and inscribed to Dr. Hills in appreciation of the long and close association with Bishop Whitehead, the composer's father.

Dr. Hills has spent more than half of his ministry in the diocese of Pittsburgh. He came to the undivided diocese in 1903, and was rector of Christ Church, Oil City, for six and one-half years. For the past twenty-one years Dr. Hills has been rector of the Church of the Epiphany of Bellevue. He has been a member of the standing committee of the diocese for 24 years, and its president for 16 years.

STATE CHECKS AUTO TESTERS

Operators of motor vehicle inspection stations will be obliged to follow the straight and narrow path in the examination of cars during the period of official inspecting, September 15 to October 31, according to the State Highway Department.

Applicants for official inspection permits against whom complaints have been filed are undergoing searching scrutiny, and it is reported many throughout the state will not be listed among this year's stations. Of the 400 applicants in Allegheny County, it is declared a number will have to explain their methods in 1929.

Complaints have reached the department that inspectors turned in many repairs which were not necessary and required car owners to pay big bills for work not required. On the other hand it was asserted other cars were passed and the apparent stickers affixed without proper examination and adjustments.

Revival Services Precede Dedication

Incidental to the dedication of the Brentwood Christian church scheduled for September 21, a series of evangelistic services will be held in the church beginning tomorrow night, and continuing indefinitely each night except Saturday. The services will be in charge of the Rev. C. C. Crawford, Allegheny County evangelist, Disciples of Christ. The Rev. O. R. Clary, is pastor. The Rev. Mr. Crawford will preach at 10:45 a. m., tomorrow at the Sheraden Christian church on "The Reunion of Christendom."

WATCHING FROM THEIR AUTO GRANDSTAND, ONE OF MANY EDGING RIDING RING FOR OUTSTANDING HORSE EVENTS

Society Folk of All Ages Attend Horse Show of Pittsburgh Hunt

The annual Pittsburgh Hunt horse show, which opened yesterday and will close tonight in the show ring, Kittanning Pike, near Sharpsburg, attracted equine enthusiasts from little boys and girls, not yet burdened with a knowledge of the a b c's, to their grandmothers and grandfathers.

Very gay indeed was the white-fenced ring, with society folks in colorful fall costumes watching the classes from their cars parked at the ringside. Overhead zoomed airplanes.

After the show was over, the members of the Pittsburgh Hunt entertained the exhibitors with a tea in the new clubhouse. And a most attractive, "homey," place it is, suggestive of trim English cottages with its creamy walls and pert green trimming and comfortable terrace. Flowers were everywhere, and the long tea table a centerpiece of roses and gladiolas. From the terrace one can see the smooth green of the polo field.

Spills Thrill

But for the show itself. It was most exciting today with spectacular spills and spirited horses to add a fillip to the excitement. Even the brisk shower of short duration yesterday afternoon merely drove folks under the tops of their cars and compelled them to don raincoats.

Knitted costumes were in vogue. Mrs. Willis Dalzell wore a red knitted dress in two different shades and a smart felt hat. Chatting with her, near the ring, was Mrs. E. N. Hunting in a navy blue crepe frock with a cape collar and a blue straw hat.

Mrs. Tom A. Robinson wore a smart black jersey dress with a touch of white at the neckline and a black fabric turban, and Mrs. Ray Harrison, a blue knitted suit with matching felt hat. Chatting with them were Mrs. John W. Lawrence, in a gray and black printed ensemble with the new longer jacket and a coarse white straw hat, Mrs. Simon T. Patterson in riding garb, and Mrs. Raymond Hilliard. Mrs. Ralph Lynch in a crisp yellow linen dress joined the group.

Mrs. Gordon C. King I caught sight of sitting in a car near the ringside with Mrs. William C. Shankey, of New York, and her hostess, Mrs. R. K. Hanson. Later Mary Shiras joined the group. A jewel red and white tweed print ensemble with a scarf collar of red was worn by Mrs. King.

Mrs. T. J. Hilliard wore a black knitted suit with a black fabric hat and Mrs. J. C. Hays a smartly tailored dust pink crepe dress with a straw hat to match, and Mrs. C. L. Flaccus a brown and white knitted dress with a brown beret.

I saw Mrs. George L. McCook, in a green knitted ensemble, discussing the show with Mrs. E. J. McCague, who wore a red jersey dress, and Mrs. Harry Miller, who chose brown crepe. The James Francis Burkes were there, too, to see their daughter, Mrs. Francis Burke Rodgers ride. Mrs. Burke wore a smart green and white printed ensemble and a straw hat in piecrust shade.

There were ever so many debutantes of the future at the show, and cotillion leaders of the years to come, too. Mary Louise Flinn, Isabel Patterson and Mary Hilliard were with Kate Curry, Molly Hays and Caroline Curry.

And I saw little Susie Hays in an attractive crisp blue frock, and young Toby and Tommy Hilliard, perched on the roof of a car, absorbed in the exciting events in the ring.

House Guests

In the Flaccus car were Mrs. George Bliss, Mrs. Flaccus' mother, who wore Edith blue chiffon with a hat to match, young Jane Flaccus in riding habit, and Virginia Hamilton and Jean Miller and G. Morris Phillips, all of New York, guests of the Flaccus family.

Mrs. H. H. Phillips was riding. Others I noticed near the ring were Mrs. Lettie Close Lytle, Nancy Patterson in a riding habit, Natalie Diebold in flowered crepe, Mary Vilsack and Nancy Langfitt. Mary Steitz wore shell pink crepe with a white felt hat.

Perched aloft in a car by the ringside was a group of girls, including Janet Nicholson, looking smart in a black wool crepe suit and a black hat; Polly Mitchell, in a red and yellow and brown dress; Mary Jane Eshelman, in yellow crepe, all chatting with Carolyn-Clare Snow, who wore a black knitted suit. Leonora Bothwell was another member of the younger set I noticed. She rode in many of the classes.

Watch Jumps

Others watching jumps were Jane McLaughlin, Emma Coulter, and Dorothy Bryce, Nancy Williams, Rebecca Frances Love, in a smart orange and yellow knitted ensemble; Zora Lovett and Anne Steitz, in a blue shatung ensemble. Dorothy Langfitt wore a lettuce green wool coat with smart collars and cuffs of honey-beige lapin.

Caroline Pierce and Glendon Robb were watching the jumps, and so were Betty Orr, Mary Elizabeth Fife, and Katherine James.

Mrs. H. Hespenheide, in a black and white flowered dress, was chatting with Mrs. T. C. Gerwig. Among the late arrivals was Mrs. James Edward Lewis, in a smart red tweed coat and eggshell hat, and Mrs. Charles Colbert, in black and green printed crepe. Margaret Jean McLallen and Louise Bausman, I caught a glimpse of, too.

Many Fetes

Bettie McCullough is being much feted during these prenuptial days. Her marriage to Henry Mason Reed, you all know, is to take place Tuesday afternoon in the Shadyside Presbyterian Church.

Last evening in her Sewickley home, Emily Stuart was hostess at the spinster dinner and at the same time the bachelor dinner was given in the University Club by Henry Mason Reed. Tonight there is to be a dinner dance in Longue Vue Club in honor of the bridal party, given by Wilbur Shenk, Jr., and tomorrow evening a buffet supper is being given by Betty Nicholson in her Shady avenue home.

Mrs. William T. McCullough, Jr., is having a dinner party Monday evening for the bridal party and Mrs. Ralph Longenecker and Eleanor Longenecker will be joint hostesses at a luncheon in the Pittsburgh Golf Club on Tuesday. That same evening Bettie's uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. O. C. Gaub, will be hosts at a dinner in the Hotel Schenley following the rehearsal. On Wednesday the George Reeds, parents of the bridegroom-elect, are to give the wedding breakfast.

Maddock was national secretary of the association. Heart failure caused the death.

THE PRINCESS AND BOLERO CREATE NEW SILHOUETTE

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, Sept. 13.—The princess and the bolero isn't the title of a story, it just is a description of the newest silhouette. The princess line had things all its own way last Autumn and Winter and now there seems to be evidence of a distinct change, that up to now has been undefinable, although we have all been conscious of it. And so now we are beginning to see the princess line hidden by the bolero, but of course, not eclipsed by it. Many bodices, too, are more loosely fitted to the figure than has hitherto been the case. The bolero cum princess line will be pleasing to the woman of larger proportions whose experiences and experiments with an uncompromisingly severe line, have not been too felicitous or successful. The new silhouette is to be noted on formal and informal day frocks as well as on evening frocks. And so the bolero adds to its sphere of usefullness.

BOTH OF THE MODELS sketched for today are concrete exponents of the changed silhouette created by the bolero over the princess line. The first is a Drecoll-Beer model, this house being one of the first to evolve it. This pleasing daytime frock is of a soft mixture of silk and wool in green and white. Two rather narrow stitched pleats are used in front of the skirt. The back is plain.

THE OTHER SKETCH is of a dinner dress made by Lucile Paray, who is also using the bolero-over-the-princess-line silhouette which is very noticeable in the model here depicted. The material is black chiffon which molds the figure in princess fashion from shoulder to knee, where it flares in a circular flounce which hides its origin beneath a heavy band of black fox fur. A bolero of chiffon with a deep shoulder line, gracefully forming sleeves and bordered with ruffles is worn over the princess-line bodice. There is a flat, turned-up collar at front. This must be the month for sartorial roses, for we have noticed that ever so many gowns are growing and showing them. This model wears 'em at the hip.

McKeesport Junior Year Book Out

It is an exceedingly good-looking year book that the McKeesport Junior Woman's Club has published and an exceedingly worth-while program within its covers. These three-year-old clubwomen have elected to follow a miscellaneous program and they have gone into many fields for their subjects.

The re-elected president, Mrs. Harry Normecutt, will be hostess for the president's day meeting on October 4, when, in addition to the to-be-expected president's day features, there is scheduled a talk by Mrs. C. C. Taylor, chairman of work for the blind in the State Federation. At their later meetings the members will have papers on "Modern Pioneers" (studying personages in the fields of literature, science, politics and industrialism), book reviews, addresses, a debate and discussion of women in science, current plays, modern social problems and landscape gardening.

The debate will be on whether capital punishment should be abolished. Varying the routine of the regular study meetings, there will be the Christmas party, a guest night, the April birthday party, the annual meeting and the closing outing.

Lawn Festival

An attractive arrangement of booths and lighting has been planned for the lawn festival which the Duquesne Women's Civic Club will have Tuesday evening on the clubhouse grounds. A variety of amusements will be offered outside as well as in the clubhouse where dancing and cards will be the chief diversions. Mrs. George Capp is general chairman and Miss Agnes Brven, president of the juniors, vice chairman.

Installation of officers will take place at the first fall meeting of Oakland Women's Christian Temperance Union in the Oakland Methodist Episcopal Church Tuesday.

The Women's Democratic Club of Allegheny County will hold a luncheon and card party at the Food Craft Shop, Fifth avenue, next Saturday. Mrs. J. Wood Clarke is chairman of the affair.

State Meeting

Its tenth annual convention will be held in Pittsburgh October 19 to 21 by the Pennsylvania State Conference, National Council of Jewish Women, with headquarters at the Hotel Schenley. Mrs. Alfred M. Oppenheimer is general chairman.

Invitations have been sent out by the Woman's Club of Ingram for a reception in honor of the president, Mrs. Leroy C. Hess, Monday afternoon, September 22, at the home of Mrs. J. M. Rayburn, Prospect avenue.

* * *

The Pittsburgh Monnett Club of the Ohio Wesleyan University is meeting at luncheon today at the Congress of Clubs. Mrs. H. A. Pickering is giving a report from the Associated Monnett Clubs, which convened at Delaware, O. Hostesses are Mrs. W. R. Conner, Miss Keitha M. Covil and Mrs. J. H. Lott.

LUCKY GIRL

BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Cathie Carries Burden of Grief to Mother

CHAPTER XVIII.

Catherine Farnsworth lay in her silver and turquoise bed, and listened to the Westminster chimes on the hall clock chime out every quarter of an hour. She had left the door of her bedroom ajar. She felt so shut off, so isolated, in that big room with the door shut.

There were so many queer noises in the night. Creaks and squeaks and—she could have sworn it—sometimes the faint, shrill piping of a flute. High and far away—a faint, mournful singing note . . . wild . . . disturbing . . .

Cathie wasn't superstitious and she wasn't going to get upset imagining things. Still, she liked to leave the door ajar, and to listen for the faithful, melodious chiming of the clock on nights like this, when she could not sleep.

It was silly to lie awake worrying. Cathie knew that. There was nothing to worry about. Mr. Farnsworth would think she was crazy if he knew why she cried, like a big, overgrown baby when he told her that Gordon Moore was going to stay with them for a while. And Moore . . . he'd laugh. So would anyone else who knew. She was old enough to have gotten over that school-girl crush on a man she hardly knew. Besides, she was married now. Married to Mr. Farnsworth, who loved her, and was good to her . . . Until death do us part. That was what she had promised, and that was the promise she was going to keep, no matter what.

Besides, nothing was going to happen. Moore wasn't anything to her, and she certainly wasn't anything to him. Miss Darrow said he was shocked to hear of her marriage . . .

Oh, why did she care. After she was married, and had everything in the world to make her happy! Everything!

Marguerite Unhappy

Tears soaked the pillow. She turned it over, and gave herself up to the luxury of a good cry.

She must have dropped to sleep toward morning, for she was sleeping soundly and peacefully when Marguerite woke her, bringing her breakfast on the yellow lacquer tray.

The maid's long, slender red hand shot out. She touched Cathie's forehead with sensitive fingers. "You've got a fever!"

"Have I? It's just that I didn't sleep very well."

Marguerite grunted and poured the coffee into the delicate flowery cup. "A lot you have to worry over," she said, almost insolently, "you with a husband to take care of you, and everything your way!"

Cathie sat up quickly, but before she could speak the woman's face changed. Her chin trembled. She said brokenly, "Oh, don't mind my wicked tongue. It's thinking over my troubles all the night long—thinking of my little baby—"

"Baby! Why, Marguerite, I didn't—"

"No, don't speak of it, please. I shouldn't have said it. And now you'll think less of me than ever. Now you'll know that I—"

And then at Cathie's melting sympathy she broke off and covered her face with her hands. "There—now you know," she whispered, "and may you never know what it's like to be alone in the night with your arms empty—"

Visits Mother

"It—it died?" Cathie faltered.

But Marguerite was beyond words. She nodded and fled.

After a while Cathie pushed the breakfast things away. She was no longer hungry. To get away from the silent, lonely house and her own unhappy thoughts she decided to go to her mother's for lunch, forgetting to telephone first, as she knew Mary Paige liked her to do.

She didn't even call the car, but started out afoot at first, then taking a street car, then getting off and walking again. It was unseasonably warm for November, her black and white wool street dress seemed heavy and the silver fox on her shoulders weighed her down. The chinkly golden hair was clinging to her forehead in small, damp ringlets and her flower-blue eyes were weary when she came to the familiar high-shouldered cottage, newly painted buff with green trimmings. She walked around back, and into the kitchen, startling her mother, who was deep in a new recipe for upside down cake.

She hadn't meant to say anything about her worries, but her arms went out at sight of the beloved, broad face, with the sweet gray eyes, and the satiny dark hair, streaked with white.

"Oh, ma. . . . I. . . . I miss you so!" And she flung herself fearfully on the plump, comforting shoulder.

Mary Paige stroked her girl's hair softly, laying the black velvet beret on the drainboard, pulling the sobbing girl into her lap, rocking her as she used to rock her years ago.

And as it was then, so it is now. For though Cathie often broke under real or imagined troubles, clinging to her mother, begging for her comfort, she never really told what she wept about, and it was never any use to question. Once the storm of weeping was over Cathie would dry her eyes, and change the subject.

Explains Her Trouble

Real trouble? Mary Paige was afraid to think. Twice she formed the words with her lips before she found courage to ask, "You haven't quarreled with your husband, Cathie?"

"Then there's nothing to worry about," said Mary Paige firmly.

A long silence, with Cathie's head resting against the comfortable plump shoulder. Then, "Ma, remember how we used to act when Aunt Cathie came to visit?"

"Aunt Catherine? Of course I remember her. Your father's one sister!"

"I mean the way we used to do things for her . . . we kids sneaking out of the house to buy the ice cream for dessert, and a bottle of olives—"

"I don't know why you're bringing up all that now!"

"It was just that I . . . I feel a little like that, ma. You know, she was our rich aunt, and so we never quite let her in on what was going on and . . . Ma, since I'm married I'm so lonely. So left out. You keep me out—"

"Keep you out, Cathie! I—keep you out!"

"Oh, I don't mean it that way. I mean I'm kind of a visitor here now. It isn't my house any more. Oh, I don't know. I can't explain it."

"But it isn't your house now, darlin'—you have your own. You're a married woman."

"Yes . . . only—" Another long silence. "I'm sorry, ma. I won't talk about it any more. I don't know what was the matter with me. Tired, I guess."

Considers Cathie Lucky

Mary Paige rocked quietly. Sure, those young wives, getting ideas. A girl with everything! If only the others were as well fixed . . . Eddie off there in South America, falling into heaven only knows what temptation . . . . and young Jean, growing up so fast . . . And Ruth and her Mr. Browning—"A man in his position can't be seen too much with one of the teachers." Ruth was always saying, and then coming to breakfast with red eyes . . . . Cathie was luckier than she knew.

"There, there," Mary Paige crooned, holding the girl in her loving arms, rocking in the old brown rocking chair, and never seeing Mrs. Hennessy from next door. Mrs. Hennessy in her old felt slippers, come to borrow two eggs and a dry onion, staring a minute, disappearing as noiselessly as she had come.

But that night after Cathie was gone old Mrs. Hennessy came back for her two eggs and a dried onion, and this time she suggested the loan of the preserving kettle besides.

"My Lillian had me sent a box of oranges. I may as well make up some marmalade," she said. "Land knows I can't eat them all, they'll spoil on me first. I'll bring you over a glass."

When Mary Paige gave her the kettle without answering, she stood in the doorway, rubbing her long, grayish nose with her free hand.

"Take it, one thing with another, my Lillian's as well off as most," she said slyly. "Her husband," and there was a queer accent on the word, "has his faults of course. I ain't saying he's perfect. These rich men is all peculiar. But nobody can't say he don't treat her well. I ain't ever heard her complain."

"Nor my Catherine!" Mary Paige cried, hotly.

Old Mrs. Hennessy rubbed her nose again and smiled, slyly, secretly, as she answered, "Sure. Your Catherine, too!"

Gutenberg Bible In Washington Vault

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—The Gutenberg Bible, five centuries old and brought from an Austrian monastery, has been sealed in a trunk and locked in a vault by Dr. Herbert Putnam, librarian of Congress. When it can be placed in its proper setting it will be put on exhibition.

Postmaster Loses One-Patron Office

BRIDGEVILLE, N. J., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Postmaster Lynch has lost a soft job. For five years his office has had one patron and Uncle Sam has been paying him $607 a year. The department has ordered that he and his patron be put on a rural free delivery route.

'HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM GOSSIP AND NEW FILM REVIEWS

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Young artists in Pittsburgh when they bend down to say their prayers these nights put just a bit more hope into their silent pleas they're praying that the critical judges who pass on paintings submitted for the international exhibition will smile upon their canvases. By Mr Carnegie's decree the international exhibition is always held in Pittsburgh and is free to the public. Almost 500 paintings will be hung this year but probably not a dozen will be the works of Pittsburghers. Ninety per cent of these paintings are those of recognized international artists who have been invited. The judges sift some 300 or 400 other paintings and admit 30 or 40.

The staff of Carnegie Institute gets going at a faster pace a month or two before the exhibition. In fact they spend six months every year attending to the details of this big show. The show itself costs about $50,000 each year which is quite a sum. One year A. W. Mellon and R. B. Mellon financed the exhibition but usually the funds come out of the Institute's budget.

Much of this $50,000 is spent on insurance. Every picture which is hung by invitation is insured from the time it leaves the walls of the artist's studio until it is returned there. Many of the paintings are transported from Europe and now and then scratched or torn in transit. In dealings with the artists the Institute always gives them the best of it for good-will purposes. As proof of this, it is enough to say that the Institute, in taking out insurance, accepts the artist's estimate of a painting's value.

Henry (Jack) Nash who came to the Institute as a young Englishman 20 years ago, is the man who hangs the pictures on the walls of the art gallery. John O'Connor Jr., business manager of the Institute boasts that Nash is an expert that he can straighten out a roomful of pictures and hang them correctly in an hour or two. There's quite a trick to this—you must avoid clash of color or subject. Too, artists have been known to complain that their canvases have been hung in obscure positions just as vaudeville artists complain about having to open the show. Every artist in town knows Nash, who, in his long association with pictures, has become quite an authority on their artistic value.

MY PAINTING IN SUCH A PLACE!

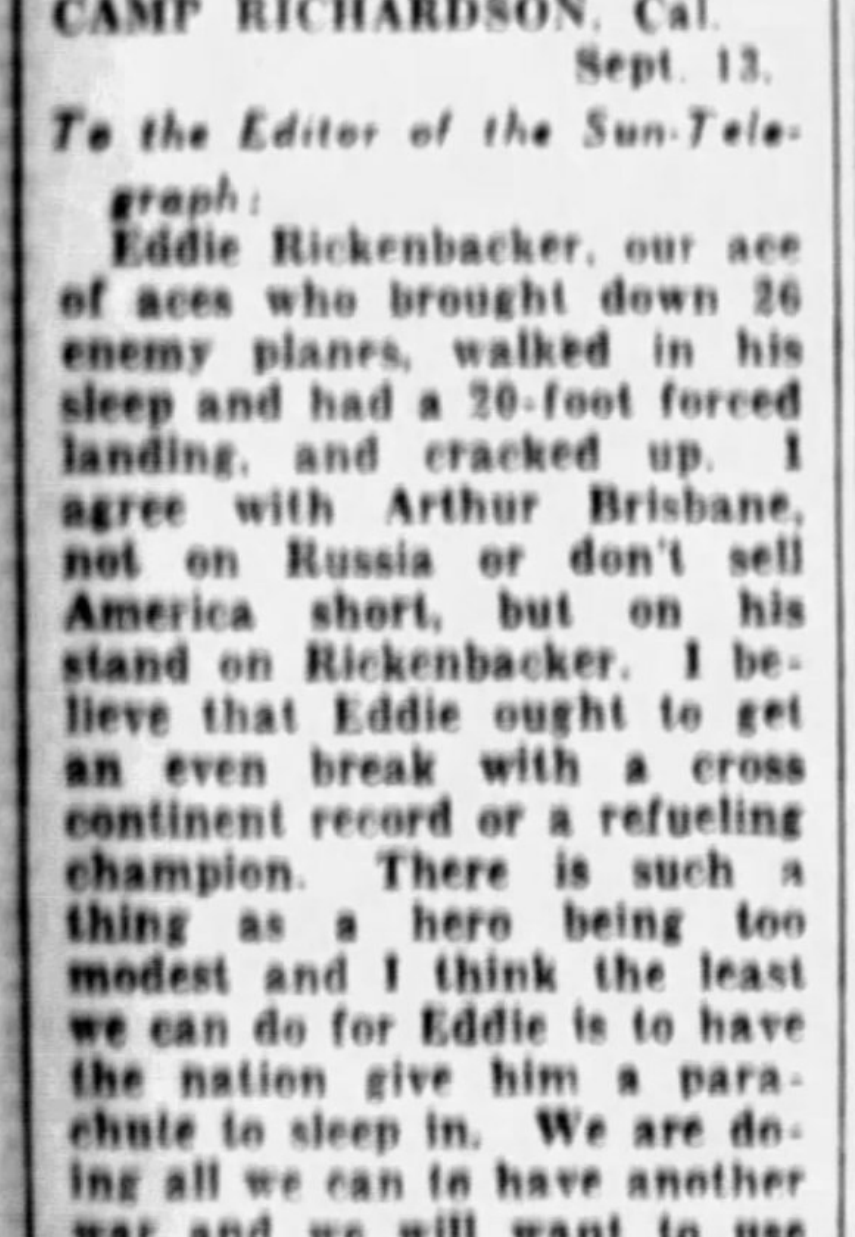
There will be much interest this year in whether John Kane makes the exhibition. John Kane is the house painter, in his seventies, who began to paint on canvas a few years ago and has startled us all by having paintings in the last three international exhibitions. Two of these paintings were "Scene from the Scottish Highlands" and "Homestead." Most of the critics scoff at Kane but there are others who contend that the simplicity of his work is genuine, if not touched by genius. Duncan Phillips, who probably owns the most noted private collection of paintings in the country, has likened Kane's work to that of a French master, Rosseau. The last exhibition in which Kane was represented was at Boston. His contribution was a nude painting of himself. On the back of the canvas he had scrawled a poem, also written by himself, which paid deserving tribute to his own excellent state of preservation.



Will Rogers Says:

CAMP RICHARDSON, Cal.
Sept. 13.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Eddie Rickenbacker, our ace of aces who brought down 26 enemy planes, walked in his sleep and had a 20-foot forced landing, and cracked up. I agree with Arthur Brisbane, not on Russia or don't sell America short, but on his stand on Rickenbacker. I believe that Eddie ought to get an even break with a cross continent record or a refueling champion. There is such a thing as a hero being too modest and I think the least we can do for Eddie is to have the nation give him a parachute to sleep in. We are doing all we can to have another war and we will want to use him. Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

Only One William Boyd Now as Other Takes Name of 'Bill'

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 13

The battle of names between William Boyd, the film actor, and William Boyd, the stage actor, is over.

By order of E. B. Derr, head of Pathe, William Boyd, the film actor, henceforth is to be referred to as "Bill" Boyd. Notification already has been sent to publicity and advertising departments.

Though it may not have been the deciding factor the confusion of the two players in recent divorce stories is at least partly responsible for the change. The stage William Boyd is the one who figured in the divorce but Pathe has been getting a number of clippings on the story with inset pictures of its William Boyd.

Bill Boyd

When the stage actor first came to Hollywood there was rumor of legal action but it never came off. Both men were entitled to use the name because each had built a reputation under it.

While there still may be some confusion Pathe's action should do much to differentiate between the two.

CHANGE TITLE

Paramount has decided that "The Royal Family" will have to be given a new title for the films. "No drawing power" is the explanation.

PARTS ASSIGNED

The first part to be played by William Bakewell under his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract will be the juvenile lead in "Within the Law." He originally was slated for "Cheri-Bibi" but Lon Chaney's death postponed the production of this picture.

Another proof that Westerns still retain their popularity is the fact that George O'Brien has just been signed to a new contract at Fox. Do you know that George never uses a double in his pictures? He has been injured more than any other star in Hollywood.

Gary Cooper

STARS SEEK OIL

Many film people are represented among the investors in the new oil fields near Del Ray, Cal. Mae Murray, Raymond McKee, Elmer Clifton, Lewis Stone, Erle Kenton and Mitchell Lewis either own property or leases in the district.

CLASSY BUNGALOWS

The restaurant at the Pathe studio is to be torn down to make way for the bungalow dressing rooms of Ann Harding and Constance Bennett.

Twin structures will arise side by side, but they will be furnished differently. Constance is to have a modernistic bungalow while Ann Harding's will be old-fashioned.

Gloria Swanson also has a bungalow on this lot.

DO YOU KNOW—That Lupe Velez' full name is Guadeloupe Velez Villalabos?

Kills Stepdaughter, Then Shoots Self

CARLISLE, Pa., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Eugene Rice, 39, shot and killed his stepdaughter, Josephine Smith, 19, and then committed suicide. The double shooting followed an argument between Rice and his wife, the latter fleeing from the house just before Rice obtained his gun.

Officers Nominated By Franklin Post

FRANKLIN, Sept. 13.—Three Twenty-eighth Division veterans were nominated by Franklin Post, American Legion, to be officers for 1930. They are John A. Minin, commander; Robert F. Ricalton, treasurer, and James A. Murrin, adjutant.

Likes to Cook

ENRIGHT FILM SHOWS HUMAN NATURE MEAN

By KAYE GODARD

Were you ever locked in a room with five or six other people, aware that as soon as the meager supply of oxygen gave out you would all have breathed your last? Perhaps not. Anyway, the Enright, in "The Way of All Men," shows just such a situation. Caught in a barroom in a town on the banks of the flooding Mississippi are several people.

And there's no situation to compare with this one in showing up the meanness of human nature, the fear of cowardly men, the senseless optimism of imbeciles, and the lasting qualities of what the movies call love. What goes on in that room, during the time its occupants are locked in, goes far toward shaping the end of the story. The acting is rather superficial and unconvincing. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., acquires a Southern accent for the occasion, and Dorothy Revier and Noah Beery are also prominent in the cast.

Dick Powell's stage show, "Roof Garden Nights," is a slightly different interpretation of an old theme. The Graham dancers show what happens to people who go collegiate. Although it's fair entertainment, going collegiate isn't shown to be a very sensible pastime. Wilbur Hall clowns in a highly amusing manner and is well received. Also appreciated are three or four members of the Enright band who arise and croon through megaphones.

A news reel and other short subjects complete the bill.

Signs on Venango Highways Torn Down

FRANKLIN, Sept. 13.—State highway officials have completed tearing down more than 5,000 roadside signs in Venango County, all of which interfered with vision of motorists and were deemed a menace to safety in travel.

MARX BROTHERS HAND OUT GOOFY LAUGHS IN THE ALDINE

By MILDRED FILLMORE

The Four Marx Brothers are handing out a riot of laughs on the Aldine screen in "Animal Crackers." Groucho is there with his senseless line of talk about this that and the other. And once or twice this "other" remains a mystery because censors have put on a soft pedal. He goes in for Eugene O'Neil "asides" and everything. He is supposed to be a big game hunter and he is always threatening that he will go back to Africa where men are monkeys.

EVERY CARD AN ACE

But he doesn't. He has too good a time at the party a society matron holds in his honor. What a party!

Of course the other three Marx boys fit into the scheme of things. Harpo appears with his dum-expression, goofy antics and his harp. He takes revolver in hand and turns the drawing room into a shooting gallery. He chases women all over the place. He plays bridge as it never was played before. Every card is an ace.

A GOOFY QUARTET

Beppo is prominent with his slim fingers and his piano. And the fourth brother is present in his usual "straight" part.

The slim plot structure has a romantic angle and also involves the theft of a valuable oil painting. But the story doesn't mean anything—all things are subordinated to the goofy antics of the goofy Marx lads.

NEW SHOWS OPEN TODAY AND MONDAY

The George Sharp Players will present "The Bachelor Father" as their next attraction in the Pitt. It will open a week's engagement Monday night.

Billie Dove comes to the Harris screen today in "A Notorious Affair." Basil Rathbone and Kenneth Thomson are in the cast.

Captain Menke's Players on the Golden Rod Showboat at Montrose will present the melodrama, "Call of the Woods," next week.

Mt. Lebanon Hall Dedication Monday

The new Mt. Lebanon township building, erected at a cost of $240,000, will be dedicated at 7 p. m. Monday. Former Gov. Gifford Pinchot will be the principal speaker, followed by city, county, township and state officials.

The presentation address will be made by Frank R. Phillips, senior vice president of the Philadelphia Company. He will be followed by C. W. Scheck, chairman of the township board of commissioners.

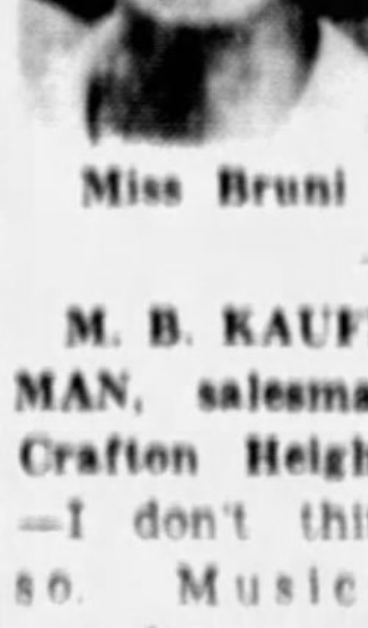
Camera Question Box

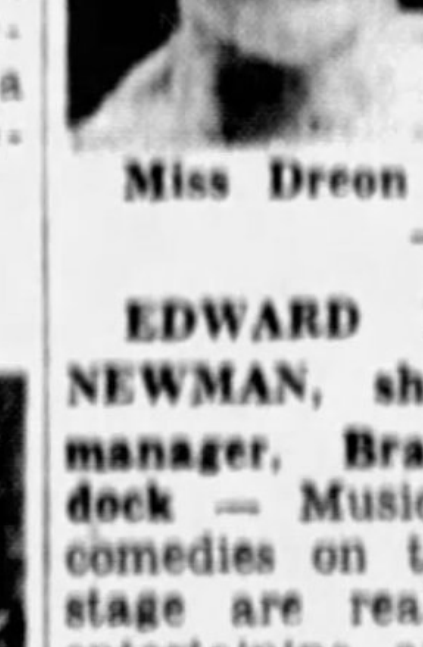
The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's Question—Do you think musical comedies are improved when made into movies?



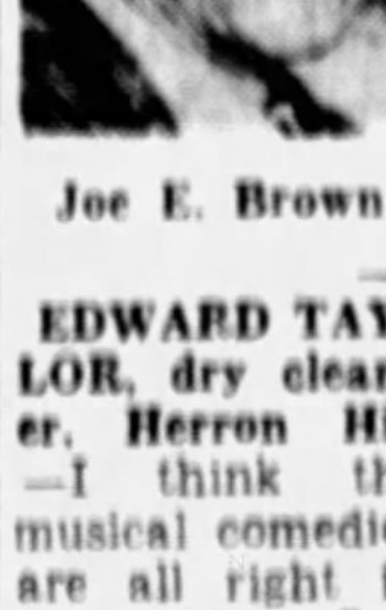
Miss Bruni

MISS VICTORIA BRUNI, waitress, Venetia—Yes, I do. When these productions are made into movies the dances and songs are rehearsed until they are presented in a smoother manner.



Miss Dreon

MISS ROSE DREON, waitress, Beltzhoover—I think they're entertaining either way, but most people like to see them on the stage because of the sense of reality they get from seeing them that way.



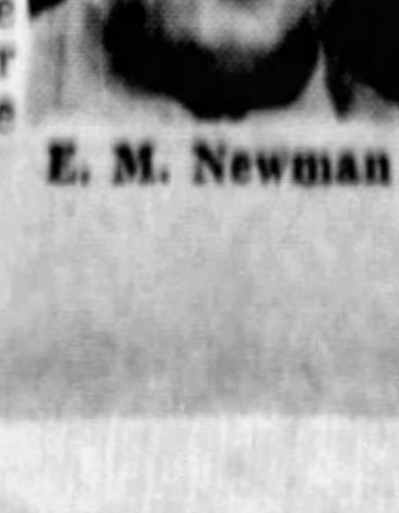
Joe E. Brown

JOE E. BROWN, comedian—No, they aren't. And I think there will not be many more movies of the musical comedy type because so much singing and dancing detracts from the story of the picture and makes the audience lose interest.

M. B. KAUFFMAN, salesman, Crafton Heights—I don't think so. Musical comedies as presented on the stage are much more enjoyable and are appreciated more by the audiences.

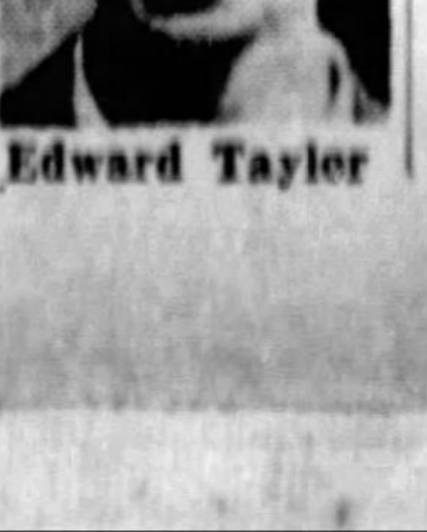
M. B. Kauffman

EDWARD M. NEWMAN, shop manager, Braddock—Musical comedies on the stage are really entertaining, and on the screen they're hashed over and changed, and they lose much of their original sparkle and wit.



E. M. Newman

EDWARD TAYLOR, dry cleaner, Herron Hill—I think the musical comedies are all right in the movies. One of their biggest advantages is that more people can see them and enjoy them than when they are on the stage.



Edward Tayler

To Hubert ("Rudy") Vallee

Thank God, you're back—we prayed each day and night
That you'd return to us—unspoiled, unchanged;
No wonder that all Brooklyn is deranged.
We watched you as you strode upon the stage,
Each curl was visible from where we sat;
You crooned a current song that's all the rage,
What of it if you were a trifle flat?
Let columnists deride you if they will,
We faithful fans ignore their cracks so clever;
We're glad to note your crooning still can thrill—

THINGS THAT KNOCK ME COLD

The United Press's story in the N. Y. Sun announced from Chicago that Al Capone (the boy who made good beer in the windy city) had "absorbed his rivals." That a merger had been effected with his competing gangs etc. The U. P. story goes on to report:

"As tentatively selected the 'cabinet' (Capone's) will include: Secretaries of Beer-Manufacturing, Joe Saltis and Klondike O'Donnell; Secretaries of Vice, Jack Guzik and Hymie Weiss. Maintaining houses under Capone's regime will not require a change of occupation for either of these."

Now this is the sort of poor reporting that makes a news service such as the United Press look sappy, at least to Capone and his loyals. One can still hear them laughing their throats hoarse over it, considering that Hymie Weiss was machine-gun'd to death in Chicago a few years ago!

EXTRA!

You might thank your favorite scoopee-maker for learning the latest news. That Paul Whiteman has been turned into a miniature golf course.

"TYPICALLY FRENCH"

The French Chamber of Commerce and the French Line invited Robert (Cutie) Benchley, among other American immortals, to a formal dinner to Coste and Bellonte aboard the Ile de France, last evening. When La Belle France does a thing she does it up brown, as the saying doesn't go, but what we started out to report was that the telegraphed invitations were sent collect—costing La Belle Benchley 64 cents.

The high Coste of—finish it yourself.

OF ALL THINGS:

David Murray says that in Hollywood, it isn't the original cost—it's the yup keep. Maybe this one is better:

"Sandy, the Scot, seems to get a kick out of solitaire."

"Really?"

"Yes. Everytime he loses he pays for his own lunch."

SOMEONE MARRIES

Something old, something new,
Something borrowed, something blue,
Someone giving the bride away,
Someone catching the bride's bouquet,
Organ crooning "Love's Old Song"—
Everyone thinking: "It won't last long."
—Sheila Trent.

NOW JUSTA MINUTE

"For no reason at all Mrs. Brinkley's favorite son, Doug, fumbled through a recent copy of Life (a publication) and more than thrilled was he to find in that particular issue a column signed A. S. and headed 'Imaginary Interviews.' Can you imagine his lack of embarrassment? The 'Imaginary Interviews,' which were originated by Doug Brinkley, have appeared on the stands for the past five months in the Club-Fellow. In other words, the real thing. Imitation is a form of flattery, and Doug takes the opportunity to extend his thanks to any imitator."—Doug Brinkley in the September Tatler and American Sketch.

Well now, far be it from this buttinsky to kick down Master Brinkley's little mud pies, but a chap christened Claude Binyon has been writing exactly the same thing for Variety for ever so many years. Or am I too loud?

OLD, BUT CLEAN

Among other mean digs attributed to George Jean Nathan, the meanest of the first-night meanies, is this. Nathan, it appears, often abused the acting and producing of the late Henry Miller.

When Henry passed away, his son, Gilbert, inherited some of his father's honors. One evening in front of his pappy's theater, an old friend of the Miller tribe affectionately patted Gilbert's back and said:

"A chip off the old block, eh?"

To which the very horrid Nathan groaned:

"You mean a slice of the old ham!"

SYSTEM

Ben Bernie, one of the better comedians who directs an orchestra, is at the moment jesting in Hollywood. He relays the fact that the panic still is on out there for actors. Recently a pal of his, who is credit manager for a Los Angeles shop, received the following letter from a distressed debtor, one of the strong silent and now passe stars of the philms.

"Dear Sir: I have many, many bills to settle, so each week I put them all in a hat and draw out one, which I pay. It may be your turn next week, but no more of your threats or I won't put you in my raffle!"

O, Mr. Volstead!

When Eddie Dowling recently went home to visit his maw in the scenes of his Blackstone Valley boyhood, his "neighbors" (representing cities and towns embracing about 80 per cent of the Rhode Island population) turned out to give him an ovation. There was an auto parade with stops for speeches between Providence and Woonsocket. (Golly, how I flopped in those towns!)

At Woonsocket, the hero was required to make a speech. Eddie got to reminiscing, because this was truly his home town.

"Right over on that corner there," said Eddie emotionally, "there used to be, if I remember correctly, a saloon."

"Correct, Eddie!" interrupted a wag, "and it's still there!"

The Retort Marvelous

Peter (Lipstick) Arno says he overheard this badinage on Forty-seventh street between Julius Tannen and one of his young sons. The big and little Tannens were ankling along when seven of Singer's midgets approached.

"Oh, daddy!" ejaculated the tiny Tannen, "what are those things?"

"They are midgets," said Julius.

"Oh, daddy!" cried the boy, "Please buy me two."

"What on earth would you do with 'em?"

"I'd use them," was the retort, "for book ends!"

JOE HILLER 'FLOATS' A NEW SHOW AND WE HAVE FUN

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Remember, in the old melodramas when the clock struck twelve! That was the hour that things happened.

Well, the clock has struck twelve—and a couple of more hours—and things have happened. But it wasn't melodrama. It was just one grand time.

This grand time was—and is—the Show Boat, that floating institution of the happy night life that is parked on the river at the end of Sixth street. And we give Joe Hiller a lot of credit for it. He is handing out a brand new floor show, which is a show—that is, if you are a night clubber. Slow to start maybe—it was on its premiere last night—it nevertheless builds to a peppy finale. And a glorious time is had by all.

WHAT HO, MANDALAY!

Nat Nazarro, from the big time, who used to amuse us as master of ceremonies in the Penn, acts in a similar role. He's not really so much when it comes to chatter, but he certainly can do the steps and the flip-flops.

Fuzzy Knight stays on with some numbers old and new. But whether old or new he is so goofy that he's a scream. And he even has the dawn coming up like thunder on the Road to Mandalay. Which is an accomplishment. He's the only fellow besides Kipling who could do a thing like that.

SOME GAY ATMOSPHERE

Jerrie Blanchard, very blonde and very attractive, is present again with her "blues" songs and so forth. And, as usual, she gets a Tex Guinan hand.

The ensemble of dancing girls go through neat gestures and keep everyone amused. Other entertainers there are, too, and the last mentioned, but not the least, is Jimmy Carr, who puts on the dance music.

This Show Boat brings "atmosphere" and a hint of a gay Broadway to the Pittsburgh rivers. And, as an added attraction to this comment, we exclaim: Did we have fun!

Iron Workers Stay Off Hospital Job

Twenty-one iron workers who yesterday quit work on the new Allegheny General Hospital following a controversy with metal workers who, they alleged, were doing the work of iron workers, still were out today, union officials said. Further than that information, officials were silent on the walkout.

Action of the men affected workers of three firms doing iron work, it was said. The J. L. Stewart Company has the contract for the work.

RUTH CHATTERTON ACTS 'ANYBODY'S WOMAN' SUPERBLY

By GEORGE SEIBEL

One of the real actresses of the talking screen, Ruth Chatterton, has another real opportunity to act in "Anybody's Woman," the emotional picture drama at the Penn Theater. And she acts superbly.

This is the sort of thing that Pinero and Fitch used to write for the ladies who demolished the scenery in the third act and took poison in the fourth. We are getting back to the good old days.

But it is beautifully put together. Gouverneur Morris has written the story and given it a new twist. Zoe Akins has done the scenario and made dialogue that hits the bull's eye.

Ruth Chatterton and Clive Brook play it as if it were really true.

The plot really goes back to the days of Cinderella and her sisters, with a dash of Beauty and the Beast. At first we are introduced to Clive Brook, maudlin drunk after his first wife has divorced him. While still drunk he marries a chorus lady—who starts out a few days later to reform him. Being none other than Ruth Chatterton, she succeeds.

But then she must have a party, and she gets somewhat illuminated herself, and her husband's friends insult her. Drunk or sober, calm or in a rage, Ruth Chatterton is convincing and her acting clear-cut.

After she has refused another perfectly good offer of marriage from a rough diamond, her husband's friend, and after Clive has turned down the alluring overtures of his first wife, it all ends as the Grimm Boys would have it. A good picture—and the best of it is the acting.

THAT UNDERSEAS BALLET

For the stage show we board a submarine and go down among the sharks and goldfishes. Here are green waves and sinuous mermaids, with all kinds of octopusses and dragons cavorting about in crystal caves. It is quite ghoulish despite the crimson lights, till a team of adagio dancers show their stuff to the mermaids. After that it would be no surprise to have old Triton come on blowing a wreathed saxophone.

This colorful submarine ballet is novel and effective. And those mermaids haven't learned the latest Irving Berlin ballad yet, which Wild Oscar broadcasts. "Just a little while" and they will, and the briny deep will be much brinier.

Reports on Needless Noises Requested

Pittsburgh citizens discomforted by unnecessary noises are asked by Walter Rosenbaum, chairman of the municipal affairs committee of the Chamber of Commerce, to report them to the chamber. Complaints should be addressed to Frederick Marshall, secretary of the governmental affairs division of the chamber.

The committee is interested only in information dealing with specific cases of unnecessary sound. Reports motivated by selfish interest or enmity will not be considered, Marshall said.

'EYES OF THE WORLD' IS SHERIDAN PICTURE

By HOWARD L. BROWNING, JR.

"Eyes of the World," screen adaptation of Harold Bell Wright's novel, is a picture with a moral. The whole story leads up to Fern Andra saying, in the words of the parrot that dared the cat to chase it, "I know what's the matter with me—I talk too much."

The best part is Nance O'Neill's, that of a mother whose beauty another seeks to mar with vitriol, as an act of vengeance.

Fern Andra, as the young wife of a jealous, elderly millionaire, is the lady who gets herself in a mess by talking too much. Hers is the disagreeable role of a selfish, domineering woman, accustomed to surrounding herself with artist-proteges, to cater to her vanity, under the cloak of a philanthropic desire to aid them in their progress. She learns her lesson only after carrying herself through many difficulties.

Una Merkel is a delightful heroine, playing opposite stalwart John Holland, not so much a parasite as early shots would have one believe.

It all happens in the mountains of California. By rights, Miss Andra's part should be paramount, as she spins her web only to find her work undone by a love affair of Miss Merkel and Holland, her one-time protege, and her lesson emphasized by Miss O'Neill, whom she at last identifies. But the producers have seen fit to have Miss Merkel's love affair dominate the picture, with Miss Andra's struggle thrown partly into the background. The picture is good, however.

AMUSEMENTS.

ROXIE LONG'S KIN HELD

Troubles have come down upon Rocco DePippo, alias Roxie Long, and his in-laws in an avalanche during the past few days.

Yesterday the once notorious Roxie, who settled down to home life after a hectic career with the police of two continents, was indicted for violation of the state liquor laws.

Last night his mother and father-in-law, Anis Riston and Mrs. Steffeka Riston, and three brothers-in-law, Clarence, Isaac and George Riston, were held for court on bonds aggregating $9,500 on charges of carrying concealed weapons, disorderly conduct, aggravated assault and battery, malicious mischief and accessory to assault and battery, and only a few days ago the brother-in-law, Clarence, found himself in the toils of Pittsburgh police on pickpocket charges.

Sixteen informations were sworn to against the Riston clan before Justice of the Peace George Kaszer, of Coraopolis, as the result of a feud with the family of Abraham Monsour, neighbors at 1706 Cliff street.

The Ristons, living next door, are charged with having beaten Mrs. Monsour, broken windows in the Mousour home and otherwise disturbing the peace and contentment of Cliff street residents. Abraham and his brother, Michael Monsour, swore to the informations, hearings on which were held before Justice Kaszer last night.

Attorney Leo I. Shapiro appeared for the defendants and waived hearing for court.

TYPOS REJECT 5-DAY WEEK

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—A proposal to adopt the five-day week was voted down at the annual convention of the International Typographical Union. The delegates agreed the question should be settled by the local unions as they see fit.

Proposals to ban apprentices and to accept no printers into membership for a period of five years, as a relief for unemployment among union members, also were rejected.

The committee on the shorter work week urged local unions to do everything in their power to establish the five-day week.

A referendum vote on a proposal to move the headquarters of the union from Indianapolis to another city also was authorized. The action closed the most heated issue raised at the convention.

TWO FACING QUIZ IN HILL KILLING

Witnesses in the murder of Meyer Hymovitz, 24, who was shot in Reservoir Park, Herron Hill, and which resulted in the arrest of the victim's wife, Bertha Hymovitz, and her brother, Nathan Tombofsky, 22, of 3422 Milwaukee street, were to be questioned by members of the homicide squad today.

The arrests of Mrs. Hymovitz and her brother came after detectives said they discredited the story of the woman in which she said her husband was shot by a Negro who molested her in the park, September 2. Hymovitz died in the Passavant Hospital three days later.

75 Staff Musicians Earn $300 a Week "London Calling" Hugo Riesenfield

—By LOUIS REID—

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The staff musicians of the broadcasters, craftsmen trained to play with a symphony orchestra one hour and a jazz band the next, don't get their names in the papers often nor are their names familiar to the ear-cuppers.

Louis Reid.

Yet they occupy an important position in the radio scheme of things. Without them the day's run of programmes would be a bleak affair. Approximately 1,000 musicians play every month in the studios of the N. B. C. The staff musicians, however, are a smaller group. At present there are 75 men who report for work regularly every day and who are the company's musical backbone.

A dozen races are represented among the staff musicians. Italians, Russians, Jews and Germans predominate and there is a sprinkling of Spaniards, Frenchmen, Bohemians and Englishmen.

There are some widely known musical families represented too. Sol Zimbalist is a staff cellist and his brother Samuel plays the viola. Both are brothers of the concert violinist, Efrem Zimbalist. The Shilkret family, of which Nathanial is the best known, is also conspicuous on the payrolls of the radio shahs. Three brothers, Jack, Harry and Louis play regularly in the studios. Jack and Harry have achieved reputations as pianists and Harry is a physician who prefers to toot the cornet in a radio orchestra. Often all three follow the baton of brother Nat.

Radio Musicians Unusually Well Paid

They do quite well financially, these musicians. The union scale guarantees them a living salary, but radio gives them much more than the scale set by the union. Every commercial period means a little bit more on the weekly paycheck and there is always a chance that they will be featured.

Only the other day Walter Damrosch raised his paternal voice to declare that the best orchestral musicians are receiving higher salaries than ever before. Some of the men who were with him in the old New York Symphony Orchestra, earning about $85 a week, now receive from $200 to $300 a week at the radio studios. They say the musicians include Marconi nightly in their prayers. They should to!

Such musicians as Alfie Evans, Milan Smolen, Frankie Pinero, Joe Biviano, Rafael Galindo and Phil Napoleon are from the ranks of staff musicians. Featured occasionally on various programs, they are listed among the "names" of the future.

The men must be versatile. They must be able to respond to the dynamic urge of Cesare Sodero when he is conducting opera, to the rhythmic baton of Hugo Mariani when the tangos of the Argentine are punctuating the ether and to the feverish beats of William Daly when a jazz program is on the air.

New conductors never worry them. Nor do new music scores. Whether Berlin or Beethoven stares at them from their music racks it is all in a day's work. A story is told of an occasion when Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony, visited one of the studios and decided to conduct some experiments. He said:

"I'd like to have a symphony orchestra for an hour or so."

In 30 minutes a sixty-piece band was ready for him. At the end of the experiment Stokowski congratulated the musicians. Then they scattered to dance programs, operatic rehearsals, chamber music groups.

London Calling Often on Loudspeakers

Programs from London tumble regularly out of the loudspeakers—talks by England's great, American jazz from her night clubs and hotels, occasionally an orchestra doing its duty by Bach. But not a sound issues from Paris. As far as American eardrums are concerned Paris might just as well be Tahiti.

Gaining such easy access to our armchairs, London, as might be expected, is taking advantage of it, even to the extent of talks on that ol' debbil prohibition. Before the votes are counted in New Jersey the rocking chairs of the republic are actually to hear Viscount Astor speak on—just a minute while I search the files—on "After Prohibition, What?"

Hugo Risenfeld has returned to New York after a sojourn in the goldfields of Hollywood. If there is anyone from whom radio has definite need, it seems to me it is Riesenfeld. Not only does he know his way around Wagner but he knows the baffling bypaths of jazz. He was the first to present in a theater what he pleased to call "classical jazz" at a time when jazz was dressed in cheap and strident clothes.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

Two programs resume their fall schedule tonight. J. C. Chaplin, president of the Colonial Trust Company, is to inaugurate a new series by the Colonial String Choir on KDKA at 7:15. The only group of its kind on the air is to include Zoel Parenteau's "Song of the Chimes" as the concluding number.

J. C. Chaplin

Mark and Glen return as the Apex Travelers, KDKA, at 8:30. "By the Waters of Minnetonka" is a highlight.

Bub and Ruth are to do "Barnacle Bill" for Pickard Family listeners on KDKA at 8:45.

WCAE has two excellent concerts, one at 8 and the other at 8:30. "Pledge the Canadian Maiden," a traditional melody, is a mixed chorus number at 8 p. m.

Important announcement regarding RADIO POLL in Sunday's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Also complete returns for the week. Ballot No. 2 will be found in the Radio Section.

We can't say too much for those Miniature Theater actors on KDKA at 10:30. Tonight they'll do "Enter the Hero."

One of the largest and most versatile radio casts now on the air is presenting the Ward Tip Top Club broadcasts over WJAS Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

Among those who take part in the Tip Top program are Irene Beasley, Bradford Browne, Harry C. Browne, Helen Nugent, Marie Gerard and the Round Towners Quartet. Miss Beasley, a contralto, is an actress and impersonator of wide repute.

Bradford Brown, with Al Llewelyn, is often featured in unusual radio skits. Browne's versatility is familiar to everyone who owns a radio. His Nit Wit Hour is unique. He is an announcer of renown; he is a singer and composer; he writes radio scripts and acts leading parts in them.

His co-worker, Llewelyn, began life as a steel mill worker in Pittsburgh, and met Browne in a rooming house in Newark. They have been pals since. He sings tenor and acts out the parts which Browne writes for him.

* * *

Harry C. Browne, "The Genial Grocer," is Bradford's elder brother. He was the first of the two to win success in radio work, and is an old-timer on the stage. He writes Hank Simmons' Show Boat and takes various roles in that broadcast.

FACE A SIGHT SKIN NOW CLEAR

Praises Resinol

"My face was a sight from an eruption which appeared mostly on my nose and chin in the form of blind boils. I doctored it and used various things people suggested but nothing seemed to do any good. Finally I tried Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment and by regular use I cleared my face. I have told many people about them, and would like to be able to convince everyone that Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment are wonderful." (Signed) N. M. Meskin, Norfolk, Va. TUNE IN TO-NIGHT
ON A PROGRAM OF Beautiful Music

Tonight, at 7:15, at KDKA, The Colonial Trust Company's String Choir resumes its series of radio broadcasts.

If you like beautiful music; if you like it well played, tune in on this program and on the ones which are to follow each Saturday evening at the same hour.

For as many as five consecutive weeks this program has been selected as one of the "Ten Best Bets" of the evening. It is the only string choir on the air.

Tonight, Mr. J. C. Chaplin, the President of The Colonial Trust, will introduce the series with a short message.

Make it a point to tune in.

BAR TO ADMIT GIRLS TODAY

Beauty reigned supreme in the courts of Allegheny County today when two Pittsburgh girls were to be sworn in as members of the bar and be privileged to prefix the title "Attorney" before their names.

They were Miss Bessie Kann, 22, of 5748 Black street, East End, and Miss Ellen C. Hoge, of 11 Sterret street, Crafton, members of a group of 60 to be admitted to practice in the Common Pleas and Orphans' courts.

To Miss Kann goes, perhaps, the title of the youngest full-fledged attorney in the state. She finished her college course at 19, at that time securing her A. B. degree.

Miss Hoge is a native of Waynesburg, but has been residing in Crafton for some time.

Both are to be admitted to practice before the Pennsylvania Supreme Court late this month, when that body convenes here.

Costumes All White At Vanderbilt Ball

MANHASSET, N. Y., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—A white costume ball was Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt's distinctive entertainment at her country estate this year. Last year her ball had a jungle setting.

Last night everybody was in white, representing sea gulls, bird men and women, princesses, snowbirds and the like.

TRIO ROBS BANK OF $8,000

MERRIMAN, Neb., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Three men invaded this little town, robbed the Anchor Bank of $8,000 and escaped amid the gunfire of citizens.

A posse pursuit by airplane and automobiles immediately began over the sand hills of Northwest Nebraska.

Two of the bandits entered the bank, herded four employes and a customer into a corner and pilfered the safe of currency. Another customer, a woman, slipped out and spread the alarm. When the robbers ran to their car, three citizens opened fire.

PUSH MANHUNT FOR BANDITS

Police and detectives today continued their search for the three bandits who yesterday snatched the $7,900 payroll of the W. N. Sauer Company, plumbing, heating and ventilating contractors, from two employes in front of the company's office.

Throughout the night, detectives combed the North Side, but found no trace of the robbers. The trio confronted George Moelter, 27, a clerk, of 54 Angle street, Etna, and E. W. Hanson, 59, of 919 Eldora place, a heating inspector, as they alighted from a machine in front of the company office.

Yesterday's bold stickup was the eighth "big job" in the city within the last three months. The thefts totaled $25,000.

Fire Sweeps Plant At Weirton, W. Va.

WEIRTON, W. Va., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Fire destroyed the benzol plant at the Weirton Steel Company works here. Officials estimated the loss at $10,000. Firemen from three towns were called to fight the fire.

$1500 in Cash Prizes FREE!

HERE'S good news for those who have not yet started the big Title Hunt or who may have missed some sets of Ripley pictures. Tomorrow the first eight sets of pictures and descriptions will be published in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. Start now in the Title Hunt with the seventh set of Ripley pictures published above—the descriptions for these pictures will be found among the Classified Ads today. Here is your opportunity to start on an equal basis with those who entered last Sunday. If you do not take the Sunday Sun-Telegraph at your home, be sure to secure a copy from your newsdealer tomorrow!

230 CASH AWARDS

First Prize	$250.00
Second Prize	150.00
Third Prize	75.00
Fourth Prize	50.00
Fifth Prize	25.00
25 Prizes at $10	250.00
100 Prizes at $5	500.00
100 Prizes at $2	200.00
Total (230 Cash Prizes)	$1,500

FOLLOW THESE RULES:

1—Everyone is eligible to participate in the Title Hunt except employes of the Sun-Telegraph and members of their families.

2—Every day from September 7 to October 6, inclusive, ten Ripley "Believe It or Not" pictures (without description) will be published in addition to the regular Ripley feature. The descriptions for each picture will be published in the Classified Ad columns.

3—The Title Hunt consists in finding the descriptions in the Classified Ads, clipping them out, and placing each under the picture to which it refers. The words making up each description will appear as a single unit in one place.

4—Hold all of the pictures until you have thirty complete sets of 10 each—300 pictures in all. Then send them in to Ripley's Title Hunt Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph Square, Pittsburgh, Pa.

5—All entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, October 31. No entries will be returned to the sender.

6—$1,500.00 in cash prizes, in accordance with the complete prize list published herewith, will be paid to the persons sending in the most nearly correct and neatest complete set of pictures at the close of the Title Hunt.

7—A committee of judges will be appointed by the Sun-Telegraph to determine the successful contestants. All entrants agree to accept the decisions of the judges as final. In case of ties, a duplicate award will be given each tying contestant.

8—It is not necessary to purchase the Sun-Telegraph to compete. This newspaper may be examined at any of its offices or at the public libraries free of charge, and if you wish you may copy or trace the pictures as well as the descriptions from the Sun-Telegraph and then assemble the sets from the copies you have made.

SEASONAL GAIN IN RETAIL TRADE

Wearing Apparel Sales Take Slight Increase; Collections Still Drag

There has been a seasonal improvement in retail trade, due to the opening of schools and somewhat cooler weather, but business as a whole continues in lower volume than a year ago at this time, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review. Jobbers report some increase in sales of men's and women's wearing apparel, millinery and shoes, and dry goods trade is also more active, being stimulated to some extent by an exhibit of textile goods which is being held by the leading dry goods jobbers.

There is a slight improvement in demand for underwear and hosiery, but sales continue lower than last year. Some improvement is noted in the demand for furniture and household goods, with hardware trade also slightly better. Movement of groceries is showing an upward trend, with sales of canned goods somewhat larger. Lumber, brick and other building materials continue to move slowly, with building construction comparatively light, although a large amount of road work is being done and an effort is being made to keep that work going on a comparatively large scale as late in the season as possible in order to make more employment possible.

Manufacturers of electrical equipment are operating at a fair rate and some improvement is noted in the demand for radio equipment. A slight improvement is also noted in the demand for sanitary and heating equipment, but this demand is still materially below normal.

A rather sharp reduction is noted in the production of crude oil but the market appears to be somewhat unsettled. A moderate increase in the production of bituminous coal is in evidence but the tonnage is still about 15 per cent lower than a year ago.

Collections continue to drag, although a few houses report a slight improvement in method of payment.

National Furniture Show Stimulating Trade

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—A national style show in more than 600 cities and towns is intended to stimulate the furniture and furnishings business, an industry severely retarded by the business depression of the past year.

Interest in the show, which is to be held September 26 to October 4, already has stepped up business, manufacturers report.

There are two striking features of the nation-wide show:

First, the co-operative effort of both manufacturers and retailers to revive interest in furniture.

Business on Uptrend

WHILE THE FURNITURE business as a whole has been almost stagnant the past summer and spring, indications have come to the furniture mart and the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers here that a trade revival was under way several weeks ago. An official of the Showers Company, one of the larger manufacturers, said their trade increased its stride late in August. The sales manager of another concern, after a tour of the South, declared that in all but one city he found business picking up speed.

Each day of the eight devoted to the show, retailers will demonstrate and exhibit a particular branch of their business, kitchen furnishings, living room furniture, bedrooms, drapes and on through all that goes into the home. Instructions on how best to show their wares, with designs and suggestions as to window and floor decorations were prepared by a central agency of manufacturers and retailers here.

Ruinous Competition Ended

FOR YEARS THE furniture people, both manufacturers and retailers, carried on a "cut throat" competition. Within the past two or three years they found this method was injurious to all. The style show really is the first united effort of dealers to obtain business for all.

When the style show idea was presented it was contemplated that a show patterned after the annual New York and Chicago motor exhibits would be held. This was dropped for the more comprehensive plan of taking a style show to every community. Both manufacturers and retailers accepted the plan enthusiastically.

Billion Dollar Industry

"THE SHOW IS a tribute to women of America when it is known they have caused our industry doing a billion dollars worth of business annually to shape its plans to meet her desires," observed Dr. A. P. Haake, managing director of the Association of Manufacturers. "It shows, too, how far reaching the American woman has gone in her study of home decoration.

"The style show comes opportunely for the buying public as the dollar today purchases the same values in home furnishings and furniture as it did before the war. Prices have reached the bottom, however, and the purchaser will have confidence that he may obtain the latest fashions and quality merchandise at a cost that will be maintained at present levels."

GENERAL TRADE INCREASES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Business activity during the week ended September 6, 1930, as measured by bank debits, outside New York City, registered a slight increase over the preceding week but declined from the corresponding period a year ago.

Wholesale prices, continuing their upward trend, showed an increase over the preceding week but were 13 per cent lower than a year ago. Iron and steel prices showed but fractional change from a week ago and like other wholesale prices were below the level of September 7 last year. Middling cotton prices at New York were higher and red wheat prices at Kansas City lower than the preceding week. Both prices were lower than during the same period of 1929.

For the period ended August 30, 1930, increases occurred over the previous period in the production of bituminous coal and the receipts, at important centers, of cattle, calves and cotton, while the production of petroleum, steel mill activity and the value of building contracts declined.

Bank loans and discounts, the prices for representative bonds, and the Federal Reserve ratio for the week ended September 6, 1930, showed increases when compared with the period ended September 8, 1928, two years ago.

HOTEL BUILDS CONVENTION HALL

$100,000 Alterations Made By William Penn Hotel For Safety Congress

The expensive business of adapting the William Penn Hotel to the needs of the National Safety Congress, September 29 to October 4, is nearly complete. Alterations include a new convention and exhibition hall, three stories below the Grant street level, said to have been put in at a cost of over $100,000.

Approximately 2,000 guests are expected to take rooms in the William Penn for the duration of the convention. Five thousand others will meet at the various sessions of the Congress in convention halls and club rooms throughout the 21-floor building.

The entire seventeenth floor is to be turned over to the convention for the week. Besides this, meeting rooms on the club and first floors will be in use, with display rooms throughout the building holding the smaller gatherings.

Installation of a special entrance to convention hall by steps from Pirate Hall and excavation of bed rock in parts of the new room were part of the expensive procedure. The huge freight elevator shaft was sunk to the level of the hall, to facilitate installation of heavier exhibits.

Completion of work will find William Penn Hotel equipped to handle largest conventions.

ELKS' BUILDING FUND GROWS

Workers in the $100,000 building fund campaign of the Etna Elks' lodge last night carried the total of the fund to $28,750, L. A. Donaldson, chairman and exalted ruler, announced. The meeting was in the form of a dinner in the lodge auditorium and comprised the second report. The next will be held Monday night.

Team totals so far are: Edward Bittner, $2,500; Floyd A. Coons, $2,750; Louis Haganier, $250; William Sichler, $1,500; A. A. Sickeler, $2,250; Louis A. Staub, $2,750; George Weidl, $6,250; Charles Yahres, $500; A. M. Zigan, $1,250, and Joseph Zygello, $1,750.

Real Estate

A large brick residence and garage on the west side of Beechwood boulevard near Hastings street, Squirrel Hill, has been sold by W. O. Wright, builder, to Lewis M. Mesta. The lot is 75x216 feet.

Six apartment buildings at 1336-46 Wightman street, Squirrel Hill, have been sold by Max Miller to Hyman J. Shapiro, according to reports in realty circles. The lot is 109x150 feet and includes 10 garages.

The school district of Bethel Township has purchased from the David J. Douglass heirs 4½ acres adjoining the Oakhurst plan, Bethel Township. A new school building will be constructed.

A brick and frame duplex dwelling and garage at 359 South Highland avenue, lot 25x140 feet, has been sold by Speros Dorezas to Louis Arfield.

The Autenreith Company of Pittsburgh, chain store group, has acquired by lease a building on 50x85 feet in Market street, Brownsville, Pa. The building was constructed for the store at a cost of more than $50,000. The lease was closed by the Horner Real Estate Company.

A three-story brick house at 1821 Bedford avenue, Third Ward, has been sold through the J. H. Aronson Company to Joseph Singer for $5,800. The lot is 20x57½ feet. The purchaser takes the property for a home.

A property in Bates street, near Oakland avenue, Oakland, lot 35x85 feet, has been sold by Marie E. Green to Louis Mastrogeorge for $9,000.

In Ingram, Alfred Jessup conveyed to William A. Gray 25x104 feet with a house in Joel street.

R. G. Kent has asked a permit to construct a brick dwelling and garage at 1023 Duffield street, Fourth Ward, to cost $6,500.

STEEL TRADE OUTLOOK GLOOMY

Predicted Improvement Fails to Take Place; Chicago Output Down

By B. E. V. LUTY.

It would be evasive not to scrutinize present conditions in steel in the light of predictions that have been made for more than two months past that there would be a decided increase in activity this month, distinctly discernible by the middle of the month. It may be that there has been a little improvement although this is doubtful. It is certain there is not the improvement that was expected. One must reflect that the predictions of improvement were in essense on admission that steel conditions were then very poor.

Two statistical items of importance come up for review this week, the official report of steel ingot production in August and the unfilled tonnage statement of the Steel Corporation. Production of Bessemer and open-hearth ingots in August is given at 3,095,293 tons, representing 5.5 per cent increase over July both in the total and in the average daily rate, as both months are assigned 26 working days. The number of working days is technically correct and no other course could be followed in the official statistics, but considering the incidence of Independence Day on Friday and the way the Sundays fell there is reason to take it that the real rate of production during August was not measurably above the rate from Monday, July 7, to the end of that month.

INGOT CAPACITY

There are reports indicating a slight increase in steel production this month over August, but the increases at best are very small and such reports cannot be precisely accurate. There is a definite report from the Chicago district that production there is off two points this week, at 55 per cent against 57 per cent last week. The industry's ingot producing rate in general has been between 55 and 60 per cent. Illustrative of the uncertainty of percentage reports there is a fresh item this week, a positive statement, apparently quite authoritative, that ingot producing capacity has increased 3 to 4 per cent since December 31, 1929, the date of the last official ascertainment.

The Steel Corporation's statement of unfilled obligations is sometimes unimportant as a trade indicator, there being certain seasonal factors, like order books tending to run down during the second quarter of a year in seasonal fashion, and tending to run up in the last quarter of a year by reason of the annual rail buying movement, which is a seasonal and routine matter. The August report issued this week, however, must be taken as a distinct indicator, and it was decidedly unfavorable when viewed from any angle. The 441,851 tons decrease was the largest for any August since 1923, and 1923 had a poor ending.

BUSINESS TREND

The question remains unanswered in any detail as to whence increased steel demand would come. General business has not shown any definite signs of moving upward except in seasonal manner and there is doubt even about that.

A strictly seasonal increase in steel demand can hardly be expected except from the agricultural implement industry, which has a sort of between-seasons period during the third quarter of a year, and should now be preparing for the manufacture of implements for spring distribution.

WORKMEN IN ASSEMBLY DEPARTMENT OF PITTSBURGH INCINERATOR COMPANY AT WORK

August Pig Iron Production Lower

Complete returns as compiled by Iron Age show August daily rate of pig iron production at 81,417 tons against 85,146 in July and 121,151 in August, 1929. Total production for August was 2,523,291 tons against 2,639,537 in July and 3,755,680 in August, 1929.

For the first eight months, iron output totaled 23,424,770 tons against 29,181,760 in the like 1929 period. During August there was a net decline of five furnaces, leaving 139 active of a total of 318 available as of September 1.

AMN. STORES SALES UP

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—American Stores Company with its latest report of sales showing an increase of 1.3 per cent for August and 1 per cent for the first 35 weeks of 1930 continues to give further demonstration of stability of its business and skill of its management. Steadiness in gross income has been maintained this year, despite falling retail prices and unsettled business conditions. Results have been obtained through consolidation of territory and increasing maximum efficiency of each unit rather than through expansion. Another unfavorable influence on the company's business over the past few months was the unusually hot weather over July and early part of August. This was to a great extent the cause of the decline in July gross of 6.2 per cent.

August sales of $10,477,495 were especially satisfactory as over the first two weeks of the month gross was running behind like the 1929 period, due to the weather. In the latter part of the month this decrease was overcome, the final results showing a gain of $139,686, or 1.3 per cent over results for like 1929 period. A feature of American Stores business for last month was the pick-up in sales of canned goods during and following the drought.

Increase Noted in Shoe Trade Business

BOSTON, Sept. 13.—A slight upward trend in the shoe business particularly in the New England states, developed toward the close of August, it was reported by the United States Department of Labor, industrial employment service.

Although there was little change in the volume of employment maintained throughout August as compared with July, a brighter outlook developed toward the close of the month in regard to industrial employment prospects of the country for the next 30 or 60 days, the report stated.

Cement Production Higher in August

August domestic production of Portland Cement was 17,821,000 barrels against 17,078,000 in July and 18,585,000 year ago. Shipments in August were 20,299,000 barrels against 20,153,000 in July and 23,052,000 last year. Stocks of finished product in August were 23,810,000 barrels against 26,289,000 in July and 2,056,000 barrels a year ago.

European Wire Cartel Fixes Output

BRUSSELS, Sept. 13.—The European wire cartel has fixed the tonnage for the fourth quarter at 360,000 tons and decided on immediate reduction in price of five shillings.

The forthcoming steel cartel meeting is likely to continue existing output for the fourth quarter, but decisions concerning reconstruction probably will be postponed.

GLASS TRADE GAIN SEEN

With stocks lower in the hands of the manufacturers, as well as the distributors, than they have been for years, there is bound to be some improvement this fall in the amount of glass shipped from the warehouses of both interests, according to National Glass Budget. The construction industry is extremely quiet and the automobile business is feeling the effects of the general business depression. Nevertheless the replacement business is certain to show up before long. With the exception of the rolled glass branch of the flat glass industry, the producers have acted wisely and production was held near to demand.

The market in the East is very unstable. Glass is being sold, it is said, at ruinous discounts. In fact, it is hard to figure out how either producer or jobber is making any profit. From reports, the impression is gained that all interests are out for volume of business rather than making a profit.

For months past the demand for all kinds of flat glass has been far below normal in all parts of the country.

HEALTH LAW ADVOCATED HERE

Would Require Placing Of Incinerators in All New Buildings

Legislation requiring garbage incinerators in all new buildings erected in Pittsburgh is advocated by Harry E. Hollis, general manager of the Pittsburgh Incinerator Company. Hollis' plea for such an ordinance is based upon his statement that only by incineration at home can absolute sanitation be attained.

By placing individual incineration plants in each new building, he claims that long strides toward a solution of the problem will have been taken.

The Pittsburgh Incinerator Company is reporting constant growth in demand for incinerators in old as well as the new structures. Modern restaurants and apartment houses, especially, are said to be emphasizing the desirability of this form of garbage and waste disposal.

Mr. Hollis says:

"All the discoveries and inventions of science and business now point toward an increasing stress on the desirability from the standpoint of health and of sanitary living conditions and pleasant surroundings. These two ideals cannot be achieved while we persist in outmoded forms of garbage and waste disposal. Gradual growth in use of incinerators will help us in attaining them."

WOOL SALES PICK UP

BOSTON, Sept. 13.—Interest in wool is more widespread among the mills and better diversified than for some time, woolen mills showing more buying interest, according to the Commercial Bulletin. All qualities of wool are in demand to a fair extent at prices which keep very steady.

The trade evidently awaits the opening of the London Colonial, the Liverpool East India and Sydney, Australia, sales, the first of next week as barometric of world values for wool. Present predictions are that merinos will hold about steady as compared with last sales at London, but crossbreds are expected to decline 5 per cent or more. Offerings are 172,000 bales.

Aviation Corporation Acquires New Unit

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Stockholders of the New York Rio & Buenos Aires Line, Inc., approved a merger with Aviation Corporation of the America effective September 15, on the basis of one share of the latter's stock for 4½ shares of New York Rio.

WHOLESALE GAS QUOTATIONS STRONG

Stocks in Storage Down 16,426,000 Barrels Since March 29; Crude Cut

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—In the re-sale market here 60-62 gravity gasoline is quoted 6 3-8-6 1-2 cents a gallon against 6 1-4-1-2 cents previously—64-66 gravity 6 1-2-7 cents against 6 3-8-7 and 68-70 gravity 7-7 1-4 cents against 6 7-8-7 1-4.

Recent price advance flows from a general improvement in the refining end of the industry, due to a general reduction in refinery runs. Stocks of gasoline on September 6 totaled 38,573,000 barrels and were 16,426,000 barrels less than March 29, last, which was the peak.

REFINING RATE DOWN

Refinery operations were curtailed to 67 per cent of capacity last week, lowest point recorded since the American Petroleum Institute began its compilation of refinery statistics in June, 1929. This compares with operations at a rate of 69.. per cent in the week ended August 30, and 84 per cent during the first week of September, 1929.

If refineries continue to operate at this reduced rate it will mean not only a further reduction of gasoline stocks during the balance of the motoring season but a subnormal gain in winter storage as well. This would be a very helpful development.

RETAIL CUTS ISOLATED

Recent reduction of from 1 to 3 cents a gallon on gasoline in and near New York City and Grand Rapids were made to meet local competitive conditions.

For the first seven months this year the Bureau of Mines reported gasoline storage decline of 3,599,000 barrels compared with a decrease of 2,789,000 barrels in the corresponding period of 1929. During this period 556,301,000 barrels of crude oil were run to stills compared with 566,762,000 barrels in the like 1929 period, a decrease of 10,461,000 barrels in crude runs.

Gasoline production in the first seven months this year totaled 261,378,000 barrels compared with 246,973,000 barrels in the like period of 1929. Increase in gasoline output accompanying smaller refinery runs is due to larger cracking still operations which increased recovery from the crude oil processed.

The Pittsburgh Thrift Plan
"A Loan to Fit Your Need"
B. Real Estate and Endorsement Loans
If the customer owns real estate, or has a reasonable equity in it, he can borrow on his own signature only. No collateral or endorsements are required. Or,
If the customer has no real estate, or has only a small equity, he can borrow with the endorsement of one of two reputable persons.
Loans in this class are repayable in weekly, bi-weekly or monthly payments, spread out over a period of 50 weeks. The borrower pays a fixed sum per week, which includes both interest and payment on principal. There are no fees or extras of any sort. On the contrary, for every week on which payment has been made on the due date, a refund is credited to the borrower's account, and at the last payment he receives a check for all the refunds earned.
By special arrangement, department store customers are enabled to use this plan in settlement of their accounts on a very favorable basis.

TRADE VOLUME BIG DESPITE DEPRESSION

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Sept 13.—In spite of the vicissitudes of prosperity and depression, business continues on an immense scale through all phases of the cycle.

At the worst stage of the recession, consumption on the average was off 10 per cent. The pessimists ignore all but the missing 10 per cent in demand. They overlook the effect of supplying 90 per cent of the peak need. The persistence of the consumptive demand has been creating shortages, because production and distribution have failed to keep apace. An important factor in the current seasonal improvement of business is the return of the children and young adult population to the schools and colleges.

Mr. Rukeyser

Youngsters who were laying low during the summer have recently been coming into the market for books, pads, pencils, erasers and to a somewhat lesser extent for clothing and shoes. The re-entry of children into the market has been a factor in creating slightly better business sentiment in the last fortnight. Many retailers in a blue mood failed to anticipate a heavy demand and kept their stocks unduly low. Manufacturers of these products for childhood report a marked movement to replenish such inventories during the last few weeks.

SEASONAL LIFT

Irrespective of the economic fluctuations, the processes of learning and of building families go on. The seasonal lift to business in the autumn also reflects the demand occasioned by changing weather, and by the approach of the year-end holidays which are celebrated in bad years as in good.

Following the seasonal improvement, prosperity wil' doubtless meet a fresh challenge after the turn of the year. A decisive improvement could come next spring when and if there is a substantial revival in the barometric automobile and building trades. The general situation would be helped, too, by a vogue for new products. The post-war prosperity was of course heightened by the inclusion of new products in the budget of the average family—automobiles, better homes, radios, and, to a more restricted extent, airplanes.

Replacement demand for these products, which has been deferred during the last year, will help to restore a new business equilibrium, and the process could be facilitated by leaders with an inventive turn of mind who are able to create new products of general acceptance. The insatiable demand for tokens of a better standard of living has not ebbed. It has merely been temporarily held in check until the consumer could look more confidently ahead toward better economic prospects. Returning faith is the ingredient needed, and enterprising merchants and manufacturers can play a part in whetting the buying appetite. Of course, the ultimate economic readjustment must be more fundamental. A revival of demand will cure cyclical unemployment, but the more enduring technological unemployment, resulting from the new efficiency and the use of machines instead of manpower, requires a new shuffle in regard to hours of labor daily and the number of work days a week.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS

Astute investors are beginning to wonder how to benefit from a return of prosperity when and if it comes. With uncertainty as to the time schedule, the prudent can combine conservatism with venturesomeness by buying convertible bonds. Such issues tend to give the security of a bond, and yet the conversion feature offers participation in future prosperity. At prevailing stock prices, many convertible bonds are currently selling at close to their true investment basis, which means that the conversion privilege may be cheaply acquired. In the case of sound convertible bonds, there is little likelihood of much further price depreciation, especially in view of the prospects of a further rise in the prices of all sound bonds, and the convertibles can rise substantially when and if the stocks into which they are convertible should go up. Some of the sound railroad and public utility companies have convertible issues outstanding.

Adversity brings business men to a sense of realities. Chambers of commerce are ceasing to be hot air associations and are tending to get down more to brass tacks. An evidence of this trend is seen in the recent announcement that the Illinois Chamber of Commerce recently made an arrangement with a leading firm of management engineers whereby the organization will co-operate with the Illinois chamber in developing advanced principles of merchandising among its members.

LIMIT REACHED

California and adjoining states have been unaffected by the recent drought, but California, Nevada, Arizona and Utah are almost chronically subject to drought, which is corrected by irrigation. Willard D. Ellis, of Berkeley, Cal., president of the Federal Land Bank of Berkeley, which operates in those four states, told me:

"California has probably reached the limit of its development under irrigation for the time being. There may be a slight reduction in the acreage under irrigation during the next few years. Any increase will have to be the result of storage of water in the mountains or the diversion of water from the Sacramento Valley to the San Joaquin Valley at great cost, which may make such development economically unfeasible unless done as a state measure.

"In Nevada we have a series of dry years that has affected the runoff of the streams and, while Nevada is a small state agriculturally, its production has been materially reduced the last few years.

"In Arizona, while there is only a limited acreage irrigated, mainly around Phoenix, in the Salt River Valley, and a few connecting valleys, there has not been an abundance of water; in fact there has been some shortage in storage which has been made up, in part, by pumping underground water at increased cost. Prospects are better, however, for 1931 on account of recent rains.

"In Utah, the central and southern part of the state has had a shortage of water for four or five years and this year the water supply in the state as a whole has been short; yet the crops will not be materially decreased. Range conditions in Utah are fair to good."

NYE SUBPENAS CHICAGO '400'

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—(INS.)—United States marshal's deputies today were busily serving subpenas on 30 members of Chicago's social "400," who have been sought to testify Monday when the Senate committee investigating campaign fund expenditures resumes its probe of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick's recent primary campaign.

Additional subpenas which, according to W. H. Baldwin, chief investigator for the committee, will bring the witness list to 70, are being prepared. He said the witnesses, in the main, were persons active in Mrs. McCormick's campaign, which resulted in the defeat of Senator Charles S. Deneen.

The subpenas already served included one for W. C. Dannenberg, chief of the Chicago detective agency which Mrs. McCormick admitted she engaged to investigate Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman, and other members of his investigating committee.

POWDER BLAST WRECKS TOWN

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—A deep crater and twisted bits of metal which officers believe might have been an automobile today were the only clues to guide investigation of a terrific powder magazine blast which last night did extensive damage in the vicinity of Wichita.

Unless occupants of the motor car perished in the explosion of the approximately 1,000 quarts of nitroglycerin in the magazine, it was not believed any lives were lost. Residents of Wichita Heights, small oil field town a half mile away, were thrown to the ground by the blast, however, and windows in Wichita, 9 miles distant, were shattered.

Jack O'Flaherty, local manager of the DuPont Powder Company, owner of the magazine, said thieves recently had been visiting the storeroom. He expressed belief that looters may have accidentally discharged the explosive, and so lost their lives.

Einstein Only Living Man Statues Honor

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Albert Einstein is the only living notable to be represented in stone figures on the tympanum of the doorway of the new Riverside Church. Emerson is the only American representative among religious leaders, philosophers and scientists of the ages.

The explanation of the church is that Einstein could not possibly be omitted from any list of the 14 leading scientists of all time.

SALE OF MILLS AIDS BAKING COMPANY

Continental Disposes of Costly Holding in Deal For Larabee Properties

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Sale of its interest in the Commander-Larabee flour mills by Continental Baking Corporation represents the clearing up of a situation that has been a source of difficulty to Continental for some time. The Commander-Larabee mills were bought by the old Ward management for Continental some years ago and were subsequently sold.

At the time of the sale Continental received payment in notes, carrid on the balance sheet for some years as "special accounts receivable" amounting to $5,494,706. These notes were secured by 70 per cent of the stock of the mills which Continental was obliged to take a few years ago upon non-payment of the notes.

PROVIDED NO INCOME

The properties have never provided any income to Continental and on the contrary have been, to a considerable extent, a cause of additional expense since on account of its ownership in the stock. Continental was obliged to occasionally buy flour from these mills at times when it could have been bought more advantageously elsewhere. Baking companies are able to operate most successfully when they have an entirely free hand in buying flour due to the keenly competitive conditions in the milling industry.

MILL'S TRADE RETARTED

Commander business with other bakers was retarted due to its affiliation with Continental.

It is likely that Commander-Larabee will be able to make a much better showing under its new management and with the new affiliation with the Archer-Daniels-Midland group, who have now taken control. Under the former conditions Continental was to some extent responsible for the operating of the mills, although it had no direct hand in the management.

EARNINGS STEADY

Earnings of Continental are now running at a satisfactory level slightly less than that of corresponding weeks last year and the management feels optimistic regarding the balance of 1930. In the 25 weeks ended June 25 net profit was $2,497,010, equal to roughly $1.70 a share on the 291,815 shares of Class A after allowing for dividends on the $51,953,500 8 per cent preferred. This compares with $3,424,716 in the 1929 period. Earnings in the first six months of this year showed a progressive upward trend following the sharp decline in the last quarter of 1929. Indicated earnings on the Class A are thus in the neighborhood of $3.50 to $4 a share for the year 1930.

FIVE MEN DIE IN TRAIN FIRE

ENID, Okla., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—An inferno of blazing gasoline brought death to five men, four of them unidentified itinerants, who were trapped in the flaming wreckage of a Rock Island freight train near Kremlin, Okla.

The identified man was I. L. Lockhart, 52, of Lexington, Ky., who died shortly after he had been removed to a hospital here.

The flames, leaping hundreds of feet into the air, drove citizens of Kremlin from their homes, destroyed three residences on the edge of town and burned an automobile and garage. Explosion after explosion occurred as successive tanks of gasoline took fire.

Witnesses watched three men burn to death in the flames, unable to aid because of the intense heat and danger of explosions. A fourth man, both legs broken, was seen to crawl 50 feet, to collapse, and die before he reached safety.

Grigsby Production Rate Is Increased

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—Production of Grigsby-Grunow Company is currently running around 2,500 radio sets a day and this rate will be increased October 1. The company is now employing 5,400 men. Substantial savings are being made by joint operation with Majestic Household Utilities Corporation.

STOCKS SLIDE FURTHER AT OPENING

Selling Movement Begun Late in Previous Session Resumed; Steels Decline

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Stocks sagged further in today's initial transactions as the selling movement, which appeared late yesterday, was resumed. American Telephone opened 1 point lower and U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Westinghouse Electric, American Can, and Standard of N. J., declined ⅜ to ⅝. Dupont, Baltimore and Ohio, and Consolidated Gas dropped ¾ each, and Auburn lost 2½. North American, however, sold up 1¼.

TAPLIN RAIL PLAN HIT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The ambitious plans of the Taplan brothers, Cleveland and Pittsburgh railroad magnates, to link up a number of railroads into fifth eastern trunk-line system, received a severe jolt today when C. V. Burnside, assistant finance director of the Interstate Commerce Commission, recommended that the application of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia for authority to acquire the Wheeling and Lake Erie be denied "as not being in the public interest."

Burnside pointed out that the present actual or potential control of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia by the Pennsylvania, the undeveloped status of the Taplins' plans and the community of interest between the Pittsburgh and West Virginia and important industries which furnish traffic for the proposed system, "constitute compelling reasons for denying the application." Burnside said:

"All of these considerations are susceptible of removal, and the denial should be without prejudice to the submission of an application that will be free from the objections indicated."

Sees Improvement In European Trade

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Thomas J. Watson, president of International Business Machine Corporation, said that the company's European business is showing very satisfactory improvement and that after visiting seven foreign countries he is "satisfied that general European business is improving." Regarding the tariff, he said he believed that all countries are giving consideration to protecting their home payrolls through a tariff where they feel it is necessary on products which they can manufacture to better advantage than they can buy from other countries.

R. A. Orr, Veteran Financier, Dead

Robert A. Orr, one of the oldest members of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, died at 2:30 this morning at his home, 5502 Ellsworth avenue. Mr. Orr was a member of the firm of Robinson & Orr, iron and steel brokers, for about 40 years, and director of the Union National Bank. He had been a familiar figure in the financial district here for the past half century. Mr. Orr was a charter member of the local exchange.

NARROW RANGE IN LOCAL STOCKS

Western Public Service More Active, but Price Swings Are Restricted

There were no conspicuous price movements in the week-end session of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange. A more active market for Western Public Service shares and rights was evident, but the quotations remained practically unchanged from the levels prevailing most of the week.

Lone Star Gas quieted down after its mild attempt to get into new high ground yesterday but continued to range in the neighborhood of 39½. The reactionary tendency exhibited by gas utilities, especially Columbia Gas, on the New York exchange during the previous session, was thought to have stemmed the buying wave which appeared to be getting under way in the early dealings here.

Industrial issues on the local board were dull. No changes were recorded and volume of transactions continued light with scattered trades of odd-lot blocks taking place during the two-hour trading session.

Among the low-priced specialties, International Rustless Iron attracted a little attention by dipping fractionally to a new low for the current movement.

YANCEY SAFE IN CRACK-UP

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Their plane wrecked and burned, Capt. Lewis A. Yancey and two companions were stranded on a little island in the Bahamas on the way home from a tour of Latin America. All escaped unhurt.

News of the accident was received here in radiograms from Yancey to his wife and to Isadore Goldberg, president of the Pilot and Radio Tube Company, sponsors for the flight.

Yancey, Zeh Bouck, radio operator, and Emil Burgin, pilot, departed May 14 from here. They flew to Havana, Merida, Yucatan; Vera Cruz, Mexico; over Central America to the Canal Zone, then down the west coast of South America, across the Andes to Buenos Aires from where they began the homeward flight.

Lake Erie Iron Ore Shipments Lower

Iron ore shipments from Lake Erie docks to interior furnaces in the first 10 days of September totaled 1,102,697 tons, comparing with 1,637,667 tons shipped in the like 1929 period.

Jewel Tea Abandons Van Camp Merger

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—Jewel Tea Company announced that it will not proceed with the plan proposed some time ago to acquire an interest in Van Camp Packing Company.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

ASSOCIATED GAS REVENUES

With the first section of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad's electrified zone scheduled to start operation on September 3 and additional electric service as far as Dover expected to begin by the end of the year, a new source of revenue for the Associated Gas and Electric System will be opened up. Power for this electrified service will be supplied, under long term contracts, from three sources, one of which is the Associated System which will furnish current for the northern and western sections of the electrified lines extending from a point just south of Denville to the present limit of the electrified zone at Dover, and also in the Bernardsville zone. The new Gilbert station at Holland, N. J., of the Associated System, now in operation, will supply the electric energy for these portions of the Lackawanna's electrified lines, both of which are in the territory served by New Jersey Power and Light Company. The Gilbert station has a rated capacity of 55,00 kilowatt hours and is interconnected with the Middletown station and other Associated producing units serving highly industrialized farm and residential sections in the states of Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

RECLAIMED COPPER

In any discussion of the present day relation between copper supply and demand, due consideration should be given secondary or reclaimed copper which is assuming more and more importance in the general picture, says the Standard Statistics Company. The output of salvaged metal rose from 217,000 tons in 1921 to 536,000 in 1928. This increase materialized in a period during which prices ranged between 13 and 15 cents per pound. Under the stimulus of 18-cent copper, therefore, it is estimated that 1929 output of secondary copper was not far short of 700,000 tons. The claim that copper is an "everlasting" metal is substantiated by estimates that more than three-quarters of the production of a decade or more back returns to the market as scrap, subject to reworking. This would indicate that the supply of secondary metal is cumulative and will prove to be an ever increasing obstacle to sustained high prices. It is our opinion that the availability of secondary copper early in the current year was one of the most influential factors in causing the break in the market.

UNITED GAS IMPROVEMENT

The fact that earnings of United Gas Improvement have continued good in the current year is said to have resulted in bringing shrewd buyers into the issue. Although there was an increase of only $2,700,000 in gross earnings of the company during the first six months this year, the net for the common stock in the period rose approximately $3,600,000, or 22 per cent, over the same 1929 half-year. U. G. I. has among its important holdings a one-third interest in Public Service Corporation, and this is looked upon as one of its strong factors. It has minority holdings also in Niagara-Hudson Power, Commonwealth and Southern, American Superpower, American Public Utilities and Midland Utilities. Because of its ownership of nearly 27 per cent of U. G. I. stock United Corporation is a dominant factor in the organization.

MIDDLE WEST UTILITIES

Merchandise sales of Middle West Utilities System for the first half were approximately 26 per cent ahead of last year, a compilation published by the company showed. Martin J. Insull, president, said that sales of electric refrigerators were 14 per cent ahead of last year and sales of electric ranges have shown approximately the same gain.

KENTUCKY-INDIANA PIPE LINE

Construction of the 260-mile Kentucky-Indiana pipe line of the Central Public Service Corporation will start October 1 and an effort will be made to complete the laying of pipe in three months. Alfred Hurlburt, vice president of the Central Natural Gas Corporation, the subsidiary that is to build and operate the line, announced.

CHEMICAL MAP

A chemical map of North America, indicating the sources of all ores, minerals and elements from which fine medicinal chemicals are made, has been prepared for use as a part of the educational program launched by the National Pharmaceutical Associations in connection with the observance of pharmacy week, October 12-18.

OHIO OIL PURCHASE

Ohio Oil Company has purchased the Knox Oil Company, which operates service stations in Central Ohio. The consideration was reported as around $350,000.

Forbes

Business and Shares Record Sunshine Rays

By B. C. FORBES

FAITH IS spreading that the turn has come both in business and in the security markets.

Some still question whether recovery will hold. They fear that it may prove only the customary seasonal spurt in activity.

On the whole, however, confidence is gaining ground.

IS THE BEAR market in stocks over? A. W. Wetsel, well known authority, answered me thus:

Mr. Forbes

"Bear markets have peculiar and unmistakable ways of signaling their completion. According to all the rules—fundamental and technical factors—the bear market starting in 1929 is over. Or, rather, I should say the 'second phase' of this bear market. The first phase ended last November, scarcely more than two months after the extreme high point was reached by published averages. When the average of all listed stocks is examined, it is found that the market turned down in April of 1929, actually ahead of the turn in business activity, a fact generally overlooked.

"The second phase of the bear market started last April and ended—so far as the extreme low point of market averages is concerned—late in June. Here we have the second or latest phase consuming as much 'time' as the first, with the decline in average prices amounting to less than half and volume of sales greatly reduced.

"Major bear markets never are completed under conditions prevailing last fall. They are usually finished under circumstances similar to those prevailing in recent months.

"Admittedly business has been bad, yet stock prices have lost no ground in nearly three months — definite evidence, I believe, that stock prices have discounted everything publicly known, or likely to take place before business definitely turns. It is safe to say that when earnings are better and the trend of dividends turns up, stocks will be selling very much higher than today. They are now selling ex-prospects, ex-profits and in many cases ex-dividend. One example: It is estimated that General Motors will earn approximately $3 per share in 1930. When it reports a rate of $5 or even $4, or it becomes evident to close observers that earnings are improving, you will not be able to buy its stock at 46.

"Buying stocks is purely a matter of investing in the future, not in the past. Competition will be greater in purchasing stocks after it becomes evident to all that American industries have resumed their progress."

Doesn't that reasoning strike you as logical?

PRESIDENT ALVAN MACAULEY of Packard has made a discovery which should interest the whole business world.

"Most encouraging for future business," he says, "is the result of a research just conducted among Packard owners who bought their cars four years ago. In normal times they would be turning them in on newer models this year; but 40 per cent have told us that because of general conditions, they will keep their cars another year or until times are better.

"Their very decision to do so is almost a definite promise that 40 per cent of repeat business we could normally expect this year now becomes business that is accumulating and will come to us later."

Postponed replenishing is bound to come before long in most lines of business. We can't do without forever.

RAYS OF sunshine:

"Our sales for the first 10 days of this month are 132 per cent ahead of a year ago."

Chester H. Braselton radio manufacturer, Newark, N. J., states:

"Production department employes now total around 800, as compared with 180 the middle of July and 65 some months ago. This increase in employment and in production is necessitated by actual orders."

W. T. Morris, vice president of the American Chain Company, returning with A. P. Van Shaick, general manager of sales, from a nationwide business tour, comments thus on the company's inauguration of a vigorous institutional drive:

"We have every reason to feel optimistic over the future. We found our customers cheerful and confident. Most of our customers reported business ahead of 1928 and equal to or better than their five-year averages. We are already beginning to feel the good effects of our institutional advertisement campaign. This is sure to attract more attention and more careful reading than if it came out in the midst of a flood tide of advertising."

O. O. Hoffman, president, Continental Can Company:

"A most encouraging sign for business generally is a slight improvement in our general line Can sales."

Thomas J. Watson, president of International Business Machines, returning from Europe yesterday, said:

"Our European business is showing very satisfactory improvement this year and after visiting seven foreign countries and interviewing representatives from 19 countries, I am satisfied that general European business is improving."

H. Hobart Porter, president of American Water Works and Electric Company, told me yesterday:

"It is significant that certain large industries are requesting some of our water plants to be prepared to supply double their present demand."

FORD VACATION HIT MOTOR OUTPUT

Unusual Drop in August Explained by Extension of Mid-summer Shutdown

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The sharp drop in Ford Motor Company's output during August explains the low estimate of the automobile industry's production last month, and the unusual decline as compared with July when a number of plants were shut down for vacation periods. These plants resumed operation early in August. It now is apparent that the decline in August represented a carry-over from the July shutdown.

Ford's output last month dropped to 99,142 units compared with 133,035 in July, a decline of 33,893 units. This practically represented the decline shown by the industry according to the preliminary estimate of production for last month compiled by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, placing the total output at 240,100 cars and trucks against the actual July total of 272,551, a decline of 32,451 units.

REGULATING OUTPUT

Production for the balance of the year would seem to depend largely upon the policy which automobile manufacturers adopt towards the market. With a thorough liquidation of stocks in the field, it is probable that manufacturers are now in position to stock up their field forces in anticipation of more normal buying demand early next year. However it is unlikely that such a program will be followed. The consensus among leaders in the industry is to let actual demand regulate production schedules for the balance of the year.

This would mean a comparatively low monthly average for the remainder of the year, which would work out somewhat below the 240,000 units produced in August, and make production over the next four months considerably under 1,000,000 units. Such a development would be in line with past experience, as output normally tapers off toward the year-end with August representing the highest point of production during the last five months of the year.

TURN EXPECTED SOON

But, while there is prospect of further declines in motor output as a normal seasonal development over the next few months, signs that the industry is turning the corner will be looked for in improved comparisons with last year's corresponding monthly totals of output. Manufacturers are confidently expecting that improvement in the industry will be forecast during the next few months by better comparisons with corresponding 1929 monthly figures than those of the current year to date, and that the last four months will show the industry has operated at better than 64 per cent of 1929 levels, which was the average for the first eight months of this year.

WALTHERS HOLD SERVICES

The opening services of the convention of the Pennsylvania District of the International Lutheran Walther League are being held today in the parish house of the First Trinity Lutheran Church, Neville and Bayard streets. The convention will continue through tomorrow.

At the services tomorrow morning the Rev. Albert G. Merkens will preach the fourteenth sermon on the Augsburg Confession. He will speak on "A Glimpse Into Eternity: Hell." In the afternoon a session for delegates and visitors will be held. At the evening service the Rev. J. E. Gockel, International Hospice Secretary, of Chicago, Ill., will be the speaker.

"The Joyous Life" will be the morning subject of the Rev. Dr. William J. Reid, of the First United Presbyterian Church, Fifth avenue and Thackeray street. At the evening service he will speak on "The Swimming Iron."

The Rev. George L. Glunt, of the Oakland Presbyterian Church, Ward street, will preach tomorrow morning on "Ask, Seek, Knock."

"A New Name for the Gospel" will be discussed tomorrow morning by the Rev. Dr. Robert MacGowan, of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church, Fifth and Bellefield avenues. At the evening service he will speak on "Instantaneous Conversion."

Runaway Auto Goes Down Hill, OverBank

West End police today were endeavoring to find the owner of a roadster which plunged over an embankment after crashing into a pole at Stafford and Minton streets, Sheraden, last night. Driverless, the car ran down Stafford street when its brakes became released, hit the pole and then dropped over a small embankment. Police ordered the machine towed to a garage.

Stock Exchange Topics

Wall Street Hears New Canadian Tariff Will Be Severe.

The stock market is perhaps approaching a really severe test of its position, that is, if it will take something in the way of "bad news" to give it such a trial. Wall Street learned that the new Canadian tariff schedule will probably be made public within a few days. And what was more interesting from a speculative angle, it was believed that the Dominion duty schedules would be every bit as prohibitive as the new tariff schedules which we placed in effect a few months back. The financial community has been anticipating real retaliation from across our Northern border, and if the Canadian legislation is along the line now suggested it appears such expectations are to be fully realized.

General Motors has given evidence recently of meeting quite persistent selling just around current levels. Reports persist that negotiations are on looking toward a deal which would involve an exchange of the motor company's stocks for that of United Aircraft. Such a deal has been rumored frequently as under negotiation in the last several months, but as yet nothing tangible has come out of such reports. Still it was contended that selling in General Motors was coming principally from stockholders who were dissatisfied with the terms of the prospective United Aircraft deal. Report still persists that United Aircraft is holding out for 1½ shares of General Motors for each share of its own stock and that the first mentioned company will not listen to anything less.

The increase of $33,000,000 in loans reported by the Federal Reserve was interesting to Wall Street only insofar as it suggested a semblance of returning public interest to the market. With brokers' loans so thoroughly liquidated it is only natural that some measure of increase in such borrowings now would be interpreted as bullish. The $8,000,000 upturn reported a week ago, it will be recalled, marked the first increase in almost two months or since the beginning of July. One aspect of this week's loan statement was highly interesting and that was the tremendous shifting of funds making up the total. Local banks pulled down $107,000,000 of their balances against stock collateral in the week, while advances for account of out-of-town correspondents increased by $150,000,000. Loans for "others" dropped by about $9,000,000.

Renewed weakness in commodities apparently contributed in a measure to yesterday's sluggishness and heavy tone in the stock list. Professional and floor traders were still providing the bulk of activity in the speculative market, and according to reports were keeping in close touch with the situation in commodities. Floor wires to brokerage firms carried frequent inquiry for the last quote on wheat, corn or cotton. Wheat again slipped moderately to new seasonal low levels and corn was off in sympathy. Cotton was driven down rather sharply by selling influence by expectation that today's Census Bureau report on August mill consumption would be bearish. Private estimates placed mill takings for the month at 257,000 bales against 379,000 bales in July and 558,000 bales in August last year. For the statistical year ended July 31 last, mill consumption totaled 6,113,932 bales or about 900,000 bales less than in the corresponding previous season.

International Telephone made only feeble response yesterday to the action of the board in ordering the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share. Evidently the short position had either reduced its lines previously or was not inclined to be apprehensive of the influence of the dividend action. The company reported net income for the six months to June 30 of $6,826,831 compared with $7,808,440 in the first half of 1929 and $6,600,354 in the corresponding half of 1928. This was equivalent to $1.04 a share on the 6,580,600 shares outstanding on June 30 last as against the equivalent of $1.56 a share on the smaller total of 5,018,278 shares outstanding at the close of June, 1929.

Better buying in Pacific Lighting has caused a revival of last year's rumors of an early merger of Pacific Coast utility companies. These reports have been circulated repeatedly for some time and crop up whenever the Far Western issue shows signs of moving ahead. Pacific Lighting is one of the favorites on the Coast and many authorities say the issue is selling out of line with others in the utility group.

Parents of Boy Killed By Bullet Sue City

The City of Pittsburgh is asked to pay $25,000 damages for the death of George Stevens, 8, caused by a bullet from a rifle range in Olympia Park, in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Stevens, of Mt. Washington.

The suit alleged negligence by city officials in allowing the range in the park near a thickly populated section. The boy was at a dwelling adjacent to the park April 22 when a bullet struck him, according to the suit.

BILLY TREAT—

"YOU THINK SHE KILLED HERSELF? NO, SHE'D NEVER DO THAT——IT WAS SOME MAN, THE WAY I ALWAYS TOLD HER! WHY DON'T YOU FIND HIM INSTEAD OF ASKING ME A LOT OF USELESS QUESTIONS?"

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Zelma Shaw, a chorus girl, is found in her apartment, dead by arsenic poisoning. Oscar Welling, her recently-divorced paramour, has been shot to death. The apartment is locked and bolted on the inside. All windows are barred. The hallboy had broken open the door at 8 in the morning and found the bodies. Robin Dale finds a card in the apartment signed "M. W." It is in a box of chocolates. The night boy tells of three visitors the night of the murders. No prints are found on the revolver which killed Welling. Nor are there any prints on the glass containing the poison which killed Zelma Shaw. Two small cardboard boxes are found in a cabinet. They each contain capsules. Sergt. Jardin learns that Brandies, Zelma's attorney, had returned to the apartment at 11:30. This was after the crimes had been committed. Brandies also called at 7:30 the following morning. Myrtle Welling, widow of the dead man, is called by the police. She admits having sent Zelma the chocolates. Also, that she had written the card signed "M. W." She explains her actions quite satisfactorily. Later, Estelle Hawley appears at headquarters. She is the fiancee of Brandies. She explains that Zelma was blackmailing Brandies because of an earlier infatuation.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER VI.

"I was!" Estelle Hawley answered promptly. "I went there in an effort to make her relent, although I had never seen the woman before. Gregory's whole life and my happiness were in her hands. My mission met with very little success.

"When Gregory appears and answers your questions you will remember what I have said?"

There was still half an hour to wait for Gregory Brandeis after the young lady had left. It was becoming more and more evident that there was not much to be regretted because of the passing of Zelma Shaw . . . and, on the other hand, more and more certain that a woman of her characteristics would hardly take her own life. Despite the new factor, in the person of Estelle Hawley, the manner of the two deaths was as inexplicable as ever; more so, in fact, because the theory of murder and suicide was gradually becoming upset.

Promptly at three Gregory Brandeis arrived.

It was his startling testimony which finally made certain that double murder had been committed. In all respects he confirmed the testimony Estelle Hawley had given without knowing she had entered the case. Some of the points he strove to conceal, but by clever questioning Capt. Blake brought them all to the surface.

Brandeis seemed unaccountably agitated and finally the reason became known.

"I can't keep this in any longer," he finally said in great nervousness. "Zelma Shaw was dead when I left her apartment! We had just finished a bitter argument and she went into her boudoir to change her clothes, saying she was going to the newspapers at once. A few seconds later I heard unearthly groans and rushed into the boudoir and found her writhing in her last death agony.

"She had been feeling badly all evening and was lying on a lounge. There was a young chap present when I arrived, Billy Treat. I'd met him there quite often. He was attending her, keeping a cold cloth on her head and doing all manner of her bidding. Finally she dismissed him as there was an important matter for us to discuss.

"For half an hour we argued, and it ended with her threat to bring me to ruin. It was while she was acting on this threat that she died."

"You understand, Mr. Brandeis, this places you in a very serious position. Why did you return to the apartment at 11:30?"

"I was in such a condition that I saw nothing except being accused of murder and tried to think of any possible way in which I might establish an alibi for myself. But I didn't do it," he went on nervously. "I've told you the truth! Mr. Welling was shot—how could I have done that?"

"How could anybody have done that?"

"It wasn't a dead woman, captain, and the door was barred on the inside. . . and no one can shoot through a window-pane without breaking the glass. Nobody could have done it and yet anybody could." Robin Dale had entered the conversation for the first time.

"I'm afraid I'll have to detain you for the present, Mr. Brandeis," Blake said at the end. He submitted with greater calm than Robin Dale had anticipated.

"You'll never be able to prove anything, Capt. Blake," was all that Brandeis said before he was taken away.

By four-thirty Billy Treat had not arrived at the office. That was the most suspicious occurrence thus far in the case. At 5 Capt. Blake and Robin Dale set out for Treat's home. It was in a small apartment house in the Eighties just off Ninth avenue.

They found the young man at home. While Capt. Blake questioned him Dale looked over the little sitting room. The most prominent thing were portraits of Zelma Shaw—there were at least half a dozen of them all framed. Billy Treat was under thirty, rather good-looking, but with a meek and boyish air about him. He seemed to resent the intrusion.

"Why should I go to your office? There's nothing I can tell you about Zelma's death." The youth swallowed hard at the last words. "She's gone, isn't that enough? If she'd have listened to me it never would have happened. I've loved Zelma since we were kids, we were brought up together in the Village. But she always laughed at me when I asked her to marry me. And now she's gone and there's nothing left for me . . . Why do I have to talk to you about this? You think she killed herself? No, she'd never do that . . . it was some man, the way I always told her. Why don't you find him instead of asking me a lot of useless questions? She was lying dead last night when I wrote this . . . ." he pointed to a sheaf of papers on the table . . . "I thought writin' pretty things might win her. There never was time to send it . . . ."

Dale picked up the letter and glanced at it. It was the pathetic pleading of a boy hopelessly in love. Then Dale went to a little desk in the corner and made a notation on the back of an envelope.

When they finally reached the street Robin Dale spoke to Blake.

"Keep a man on this house, captain——" and he paused with a peculiar smile . . . "and all the others, too. You'll be able to arrest your party in the morning. No questions now. I'll call you tonight. Meanwhile I want to stop at the Sycamore and make a sketch of the apartment."

A little later Dale sat at the secretaire in Zelma Shaw's apartment and made a rough sketch of the rooms. In the waste basket he rummaged and found a tiny bit of bread crust and crumbs, a couple of tiny envelopes that had contained bromide, and two torn letters.

At 8 that night he telephoned Capt. Blake to meet him at the Sycamore not later than 10 the following morning.

"Come prepared to arrest your guilty party, Captain. Bring Dr. Wattles along, for it may be necessary to diagnose the poison."

After that Robin Dale sat down and wrote a short note. It must have been carefully worded, for it took an hour to frame the few words. He called a messenger boy with instructions that the message was to be delivered at exactly 9 o'clock.

(How was Zelma Shaw poisoned? Who shot Oscar Welling? To whom did Robin Dale write on that last night? What was the motive for the double killing? What gave Robin Dale the proof he needed? Read the solution in the Sun-Telegraph a week from today.)

SOLUTION TO

Scrimley's Ghost

By ARTHUR HOERL

The officers were close behind Dale and Wingate when they arrived at the wreck. In a mad frenzy they clambered aboard, Dale in the lead. He found one of the gaping holes and leapt to the hull below. The lights of the flashes above threw eerie shadows about the walls. The door to the tunnel was ajar. A figure was rushing toward it, but with a leap Dale grappled it. As they fought, the light from above gleamed on the distorted face peering with hatred into his.

It was John Keefe!

Dale heard the thud of bodies as they struck the bottom, but he did not dare let up in his struggles. Finally, with a desperate effort John cast Dale from him and with a cry jumped through the opening in the tunnel and it swung back. The click of a latch was heard.

"Chief! Quick, some of your men to the bungalow. He'll come out that way!"

Shouted orders and three of the men ran off toward the bungalow. By this time Dale was in the water which submerged the stern of the hulk. In frenzied haste he dragged a body from it. Oliver Albright. Dale was on his knees beside the still form.

"Still alive! Thank God!"

Without a word they went to work. First aid. Pumping arms and legs until a gasp of breath came. Half an hour later Oliver Albright was led, staggering weakly, to the Rolfe cottage. He was given over to Stephanie. Their dangers were past, Dale knew.

Two officers had been left at the hulk, but John came forth neither there nor in the bungalow. Dale and Wingate, back at the wreck, pried open the section of hull. A sweep of gas smote their nostrils.

"I don't think he'll ever come out, chief. Finished himself with gas rather than face it—but you'd better keep men at both ends all night. You can go in with the masks, tomorrow."

Later they were again on the Rolfe verandah.

"I can't believe it," said Chief Wingate, "seemed like such a decent fellow."

"But there was something gnawing at his soul, Chief Wingate," and Dale paused for a moment as if it all hurriedly passed through his mind in review. "First, it might have been anyone. I really suspected Ernest Boyleston for awhile, but last night ended that. Doreen was a suspect, but I didn't take him very seriously; he was too stolid and prosaic to have figured out anything as diabolically cunning as this plot. Then there was young Albright. I couldn't imagine a girl like Miss Rolfe loving anyone as fiendish as our murderer was. Albright just didn't fit into the thing.

"It's so often a matter of psychology in crimes of this type. That's what the criminal overlooks, the psychology of the crime. It points always to some personality. I noticed, in the two days I've been here, that John Keefe has never showed his mother the slightest affectionate attention. That made it look bad for him.

"At the start I felt the appearance of Scrimley's ghost had some connection with the earlier tragedy. The truth only came slowly. John Keefe was the ghost that went sailin' into the night when Joe Keefe was killed. The father had resurrected the ghost first. Young John played the part even then. He saw his own father killed under his very eyes. It ate into the lad's soul until all that it held was the desire to avenge that death. His mother marrying old Boyleston delayed the vengeance because he was good to both of them. But the moment he died it began. John had prepared for it. It must have taken months to dig that tunnel, but there was always one thought, to wipe out the Boylestons as his father had been wiped out. Even young Albright, only a cousin, was on the list of victims.

"It couldn't have been anything supernatural," Dale continued after a pause. "We can not believe in such things. With the tunnel the ghost became a simple matter—a sheet, colored fire such as one sees on Fourth of July, and a siren that had been tampered with. The warning notes, daubed with Doreen's red ink, almost explain themselves. Scrimley's ghost is gone for good, I think."

"But that map—what do you make of that?"

As Dale had foreseen, John Keefe was found in the tunnel the next day, dead by gas. In a little niche near the bungalow end of the tunnel were found the colored fire, the sheet and two long staffs upon which the sheet had been raised. There was also an automobile siren with a metallic disc made of lead. Upon the body was found the original map, torn into two pieces.

"Keefe stole it, you see. Avery caught him with it the first night—he knew where the warning came from. Keefe wanted the map for Scrimley's signature, to keep up the hoax."

Dale took the map. They found the huge willow tree readily enough at the side of the brook a few hundred yards from the beach. From that point they gazed north-by-west. There was a clump of pine trees, one towering above the rest, its bark blackened by exposure. In that direct line Dale measured out 200 paces. Then he turned due east and went 100 paces. The group stood and faced the south now. The only thing in line was the willow tree from whence they had started. It appeared like a hoax until suddenly Dale laughed aloud.

"Widow! Why, it's the weeping willow."

They hurried to the huge tree. For almost an hour Chief Wingate's men dug all about it. Finally, at a depth of six feet, they came upon what might have been a skeleton. At the slightest touch it crumpled to white dust. At one end was a decayed log of wood and a number of metallic clasps. At the other end all that was found were two rings of yellow metal.

Dale took Chief Wingate along as he stopped by to see Old Gabriel, which was to be the reporter's last visit.

"Gabriel, was there anything odd about this fellow Scrimley?" Dale asked the old man. "How would you recognize him if you happened to meet?"

"Well, he had a wooden peg, Scrimley did, an' after leavin' N'York on the first cruise he gotten into the habit o' wearin' huge earrings jus' to prove he was a real pirate."

"That was Scrimley's grave, chief, sure enough," said Dale, with a smile. "Whatever else he buried there someone else took away an' left Scrimley himself. Just proves again that it pays to be honest."

Ask Damage Award Raised to $20,000

Charles Large declared his property in Locust street, North Side, was damaged $20,000 by the construction of the Ohio River boulevard, instead of $1,000 allowed by the board of viewers, in an appeal filed in Common Pleas Court. He said the property was valuable for a business connecting with a railroad but the improvement deprived it of its accessibility for a siding.

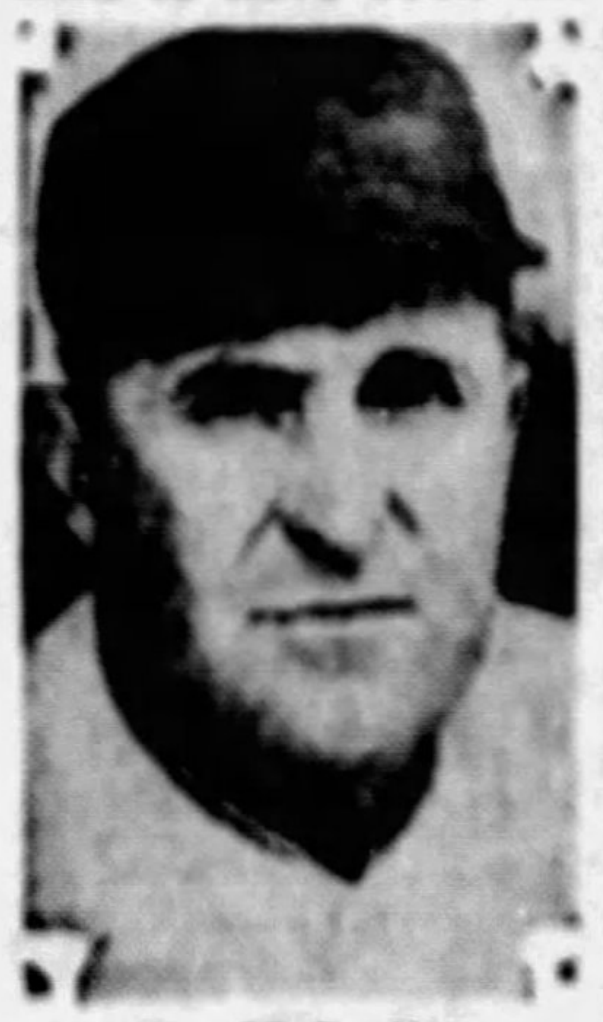
LONG GAMES WITH QUAKERS FAG CUBS

THOUGH SETBACKS ADMINISTERED by the Cardinals, Pirates and Robins since the closing days of August are held to have been the main factors in the slide that changed the Chicago National League club from a seemingly certain pennant winner into just one of three contenders in the closest finish known in many years, it is possible to look back a little farther and see where the lowly Phillies may really have been the cause of it all.



Joe McCarthy.

As far as position is concerned it would be hard to imagine a more obscure part than the Philadelphia club is playing in the flag race. A hopeless tailender and likely to lose more than 100 games for the season, it is barely finishing in the league. Yet it was this rank outsider that altered the complexion of the fight by starting Joe McCarthy's pennant leaders on their downward course. It all happened in an August series in Chicago. It wasn't the number of games the Quakers won on that occasion that did the damage, as they captured only two out of five. It was what they took out of the Bruins by carrying them into a record period of overtime play.

IN THE PLAYING of five games with the Phils from August 16 to 20, inclusive, the Cubs were forced to work a total of 72 innings, or the equivalent of eight full contests. Thirty-six innings were required to play off a single postponed contest. The first attempt went 11 innings to a draw, and there was a second tie of 16 rounds before the game was finally decided in a third contest of the regulation length.

The McCarthys managed to keep going through the next series until they succeeded in taking three out of four games from the Giants, but immediately afterward they ran into a 20-inning battle with the Cardinals. The extra-inning struggles, necessitating a total of 38 over-time rounds, appeared to sap the strength of the Chicago pitchers and to put the other members of the team "down" as well.

Burt Shotton.

IT HASN'T BEEN the same club since, the extent of the slump being shown by the fact that from the end of the August series with Burt Shotton's tailenders until today the Bruins have won only 10 games against 13 lost, while from the time of the 20-inning marathon with the Cards they have won only six games against 10 defeats.

The Cubs may rally now and make a sufficiently strong finish to win out, perhaps picking up some ground in their present series with the same club that took so much out of them last month, but the fact remains that, even though they are not in it themselves, it was the Phils who gave the National League a thrilling pennant finish by fagging the Bruins long enough to make possible the wiping out of their once comfortable lead.

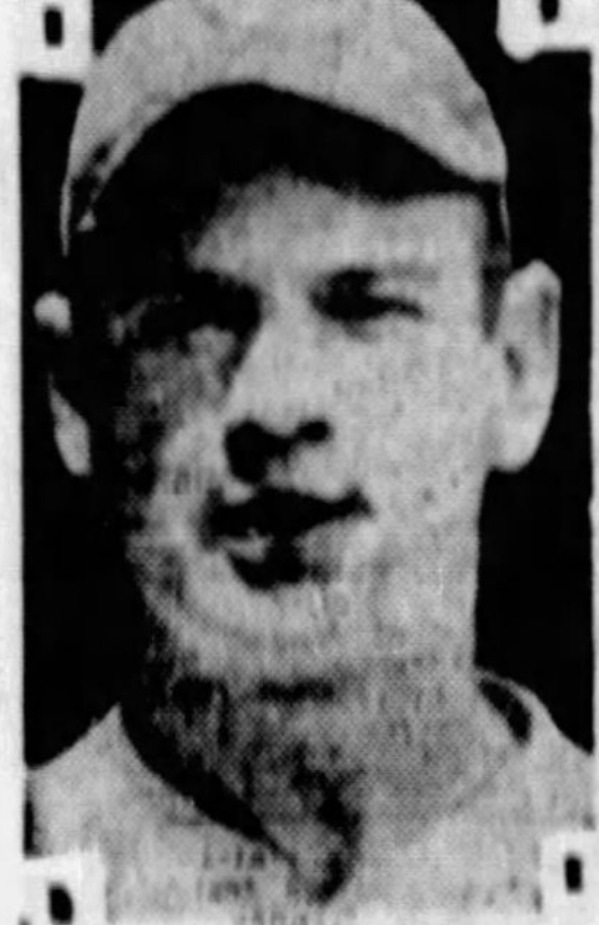
Race records—Shamrock V won 16 times, second five times, third once, in 22 races; Enterprise won 11 times, second 12 times in 23 races.

THE PIRATES STILL have a slight edge in extra-inning games for the season following their defeat in 10 rounds in the closing engagement of the Boston series. They have taken part in nine overtime contests this year and have won five of them.

Three of the extra-inning victories were scored over the Phillies, one over the Cardinals and one over the Reds. Two long games were lost to the Giants and one each to the Phillies and Braves. The season's series with the Braves ended in the Bucs' favor, 12 games to 10.

ANOTHER BASEBALL PRODUCT of this district is going up to the major leagues next year, according to report. Frank (Dundee) Rodgers, Stowe-Rocks boy who made a big name for himself this season as a slugging outfielder, is to be rewarded with a chance in the big show.

Rodgers started the 1930 season with the New Haven club in the Eastern League and was the batting sensation of the circuit, leading the loop in home runs and also in runs knocked in, besides starring in the field. When New Haven withdrew from the Eastern body, Dundee was transferred to the Peoria club in the Three-I League. In his new berth he continued to hit and field in such impressive style during the remainder of the campaign, batting well over .300 and keeping up his home-run clouting, that the Cincinnati club, which owns the Peoria plant, is said to have decided to take him on for a spring tryout in 1931.



Dundee Rodgers.

BURLEIGH GRIMES, former Pirate spitballer, who got a break in being traded by the sixth-place Braves to the present pennant-contenders of St. Louis, sees success ahead for the Cards in the close flag fight. "I think the Cardinals ought to land on top because they have the real winning spirit," says Grimes. "Gabby Street is keeping the team on edge and there is nothing but confidence in our ability to go home from the Eastern tour in first place. We have the pitchers, the hitters and the fielders, and there is perfect harmony on the team. The records show that we are playing the strongest game in the league and there is no reason why we cannot keep it up. The Cards would be far out in front now if they hadn't been crippled

BIG BILL FALLS BEFORE COAST NET STAR

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Young America caught up with Big Bill Tilden at last yesterday. The 37-year-old champion went down to a surprising defeat at the hands of a young California giant 16 years his junior, Johnny Doeg, in a match that had 10,000 fans on the edge of the seats for two solid hours.

By scores of 10-8, 6-3, 3-6, 12-10 the powerful Doeg turned back the still mighty Tilden in the semi-final round of the National tennis singles championship and today he will clash with a 19-year-old rival from the East.

SHIELDS VICTOR

Big strapping Frank Shields, of New York, playing wonderful tennis, downed a fellow New Yorker, Sidney Wood, in the first of the semi-finals, 6-2, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, and Doeg's remarkable victory gave this classic tournament two of the youngest finalists in its 49-year history.

Even though beaten, the one and only Tilden brought thunderous applause from the packed stands as he battled with never failing courage against a younger man, who was playing the tennis of his life.

Doeg's mighty service was an overpowering weapon, outdoing the famous cannon balls of Tilden himself. In the four sets, Doeg served the amazing total of 13 love games—four in the first, one in the second, three in the third, and five in the fourth.

RECAPITULATION

	Aces	Placements	Outs	Nets	Double F'lts

MRS. CAMPBELL GOLF CHAMP

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Mrs. Frank E. Campbell—just Isabelle to her intimate friends—today is queen of the Western Pennsylvania women's golf kingdom, sitting upon the throne occupied for the last year by Emilie Roseburgh, of Oakmont, who met defeat in the second round, after copping the medal honors, in one of the most successful championships ever staged by the Women's Golf Association. The scene of action was the Westmoreland Country Club, which, considering the great drought, was in great shape.

In copping yesterday's 18-hole finale, Mrs. Campbell sent the colors of Stanton Heights flying high over those of Oakmont, defeating the plucky young star from the Hulton layout, Betty Abernathy, 4 and 3. Although Miss Abernathy stepped off to a healthy lead in winning the first two holes, Mrs. Campbell retaliated and was 2 up when they finished the first nine. Once having lost the lead, Miss Abernathy never recovered it. The medal scoring of the finalists wasn't so hot, yet it was no indication of the much-better golf displayed. The finalists' cards:

Campbell out .... 544 544 645—[illegible]
Abernathy out .... 434 654 636—45
Campbell in .... 565 645—
Abernathy in .... 656 655—

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY. THE ICE MINE—This mine is located four miles east of Coudersport, Pennsylvania, in the Allegheny mountains. The Ice Mine, or Devil's Ice Box, is a vertical shaft about 40 feet deep. In this shaft the ice appears when hot weather begins in the spring, and disappears on the approach of winter. No satisfactory explanation of this wonder has been given to this time. THE BALD-HEADED EAGLE—The bald-headed eagle is not a true eagle (Aquilae) but a falconid (Halioetus). It is not bald, but its head is covered with white feathers which give the effect of baldness.

CUBS, ROBINS, CARDS WIN, HOLD PLACES

Associated Press.

The National League pennant race became even more thrilling today. Chicago, St. Louis and Brooklyn, all triumphant yesterday, remained just where they were before, while the New York Giants, who suffered a third straight defeat at the hands of the Cardinals yesterday, have dropped to four games behind first place.

	W.	L.	Pct.	Games Behind.	To Play.
Chicago	81	59	.579	..	14
St. Louis	80	59	.576	½	15
Brooklyn	81	60	.574	½	13
New York	77	63	.550	4	14

	Win.	Lose.
Chicago	.582	.575
St. Louis	.579	.574
Brooklyn	.577	.570
New York	.553	.546

HARD TO RECOVER

The 5-to-2 triumph of the Cardinals over the Giants in the final game of their series yesterday gave the New Yorkers a setback that will be hard for them to overcome.

The Cards put on a ninth inning rally. With the score tied they poled out four hits which, with a Giant error, produced three runs.

Chicago's slugging Cubs had little trouble in holding their slim lead against the attacks of their rivals. They hit early and late in their first game against the Phillies and with Hack Wilson's forty-ninth home run in the second and a six-run rally in the sixth, as the high spots, they came out with a 17-to-4 triumph.

Brooklyn downed Cincinnati almost as easily. The Robins made a fast start against Ray Kolp and finished their part of the scoring in their 7-to-3 victory in five innings as Lopez and Wright hit timely homers. Ray Moss had only one bad inning as he held the Reds to eight hits, four of the blows and all the Cincinnati runs coming in the sixth.

RUTH PURSUES WILSON

Babe Ruth continued his pursuit of Wilson in the season's home run race and furnished the one ray of light for the New York Yankees as they dropped completely out of the American League pennant chase. The Babe hit homer 46 in the third inning, but his teammates' errors enabled the Detroit Tigers to stay in the running and finally win out in a ninth-inning rally, 5 to 4. The Yanks lost a half game to the Philadelphia Athletics, who were idle for a second day, and at the same time lost their chance of finishing better than a half game behind the world champions.

Washington gained the same amount of ground and once more is six and one-half games behind the leaders. Off to a six-run lead in the first two innings, the Senators barely staggered through to an 8-to-7 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

BUCS, GIANTS OPEN SERIES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE, Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The Pirates came here today to find the Giants still harboring pennant dreams, despite a series of setbacks that would shatter the hopes of a team of lesser fighting qualities.

The pennant hopes held by the men of McGraw perhaps were stronger than the feelings of the Buccos relative to fourth place, the spot now occupied by the Polo Grounders.

If the Buccos had not collapsed in Boston yesterday afternoon, they would have been in a much more comfortable position today. They went into the seventh round

MY 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK
MANAGER OF WORLD CHAMPION PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

INSTALLMENT NO. 6.

Several weeks before the players were due to arrive in the spring of 1885, I went to Hartford to get an early start. As it was the first off-season I had not worked, time dragged after the holidays and I spent some of the most wearisome days of my life.

Connie Mack

I left East Brookfield early, solely to escape dreary inaction. College players must start their training early and I had read in Boston papers that the Trinity College baseball candidates at Hartford already had started indoor work.

That was enough for me. I packed my big grip, not failing to put my glove and uniform in it, and reached Hartford one bleak March day. Officials of the Hartford club were glad to introduce me to the Trinity coach. The latter made me most welcome, for he knew that I would be able to give his batterymen some benefits of my experience.

Every day I worked out with the squad. Trinity that spring had a wonderful pitcher in Joseph Wellington Shannon, now a prominent attorney of Philadelphia. I caught Shannon every afternoon after classes and he had the stuff to get me in good shape by the time the Hartford players reported. I firmly believe that Shannon would have developed into a topnotch major league star had he taken up baseball professionally.

I never met him again until in Philadelphia, in 1901, when I went there to organize the Athletics in the new American League. I looked him up and I remember he took me to a bank and made the introduction so I could open an account.

My association with Trinity College players and the cordial treatment I received made me always have a strong feeling for a college player. That was one reason that when I started to manage I always gave a well-recommended collegian a chance, and most of all, was patient and sympathetic with him after he reported. I believe I was one of the first managers to go in for the collegians on a large scale, and since then sometimes I have had rosters with half of the players college products.

The season at Hartford duly opened and we played to an average attendance of 1,200 persons daily. That was big business in a minor league in the early '80s. Moreover, we attracted the best element and the most substantial people in the city. Hartford was a rock-ribbed New England city, composed of citizens of the most sterling integrity, and they flocked to see us play.

A TALL BATTERY

About the middle of the season, some of my home-town cronies wrote to me and told me of a pitcher named Frank Gilmore, of Webster, Mass., who was doing great things on the mound for one of the Brookfield teams. I called our manager's attention to the letter, and he forthwith told

BUCS PURCHASE TWO PLAYERS

Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss announces the purchase of another pair of young ball players by the Pittsburgh club in its efforts to add new strength for next year. Both will report in the spring.

One of the recruits is Anthony Piet, second baseman, bought from the Fort Worth Club, of the Texas League, which had purchased the player from Waco in the same circuit only a few days earlier. For Waco, Piet hit .318 this season, an impressive collection of extra-base blows including 25 home runs, eight triples and 30 doubles. He also stole 29 bases. His fielding record shows 418 putouts, 417 assists and 36 errors, an average of .959. He is 24 years old, 5 feet 11 inches in height and weighs 180 pounds. He is a righthand batter as well as thrower.

The other new Pirate is Pete McClanahan, outfielder, purchased from the Shreveport club, of the Texas League. His batting mark for 1930 was .343, and among his hits were 18 home runs, five triples and 38 doubles. McClanahan, who bats and throws right-handed, is 24 years old, 5 feet 9 inches in height and weighs 170 pounds.

HALL CUE VICTOR

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Winning both afternoon and night blocks, Allen Hall, of Chicago, won a special three-cushion billiard match from Welker Cochran, of Hollywood, Cal., former 18.2 balkline champion, yesterday. Hall won the afternoon block, 150 to 142, in 62 innings, then followed up by winning the evening test, 150 to 147, in 52 innings, to gain a 300 to 289 victory.

JACKETS LACK GOOD FORWARD WALL

By JESS CARVER.

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 13.—Weakest where it is almost dead sure to be fatal, on the line, Waynesburg looks forward to the coming collegiate gridiron campaign with eyes vainly seeking to pierce the gathering clouds of ominous gloom. It will take heroic work on the part of Coach Frank Wolfe and his assistants and on the part of the players themselves if the Yellow Jackets are to go places and do things this football season.

Coach Wolfe started work for the onrushing campaign 10 days ago with only two lettermen included among his line candidates and with only seven players who had seen previous varsity service of any sort. He found himself fairly well off for backs, but the task that reared itself of building a forward wall behind which these backs may function dwarfed greatly the presence of these latter.

If any coach in the district has the right to sing the blues, and to sing 'em loudly and long, it is Coach Wolfe.

The only spots on the line where the coaches here are counting on strength is at the ends. They'll have a pair of lettermen at the wings, barring unforseen injuries, and will be well fortified for reserves for the outside positions. From tackle to tackle, however, a series of interrogation points rear themselves, and it may be late in the season ere tackles, guards and centers are whipped into shape to crusade against the tough array of foes lying in wait for the Jackets.

Ambrose and Lafrano, who have done yeoman service in the past for Waynesburg, are back again and filling the end jobs at present. Experienced and fairly sizable, they figure to remain as varsity fixtures. Lafrano handles the receiving end of a pass expertly enough to make him a threat.

Other wings, Mazza, Shaw and Gesinger, two year men, will fill understudy roles unless they develope to a degree that would be as thrilling as it will be unexpected.

When it comes to the tackles, both jobs are open and probably will remain in such state for weeks to come. Elliott and Patsch, who have been playing at line jobs for a couple seasons, have an edge in experience over the remainder of the field, which includes Anderson, Showalker and Marunich, freshmen. Of the latter three, Marunich and Showalker have exhibited flashes of class, which has kindled some sparks of hope in the breasts of the coaches.

GUARDS SOPHOMORES

Yonich and Wiley, sophomores, and Zanelli and Pollock composed a quartet from which the starting guards will be selected. All four have plenty to learn. Yonich is aggressive enough to be ranked first among the four, but still has to prove that he can stay in there under heavy fire.

Coach Wolfe's linemen are just a lot of big "ifs" to him. If they come through—O. k. If they don't...well, a man can but try.

The loss of Sammy Smith, Decker and Shaw from last year's line was much more serious than it seemed at first, for the oncoming and incoming line candidates failed to come up to expectations.

Four men are in the fight for the center job. Milliron, who subbed some last year, and Mayer, a freshmen who looks like he might come along o. k., are doped to get first call. Milliron will have the inside track, principally because of his experience. Mayer handles himself well and possesses the physical assets of a real football player.

Around Capt. Frank Demoise, a veteran, will the backfield be constructed. It will be possible for Coach Wolfe to have a backfield composed entirely of lettermen, but not probable. Demoise, a good ball carrier and good enough defensive player, will be at fullback. Fortney, an accurate passer; Costello, husky and fast; Rollason, the best punter on the squad, and Porter and Berry, the latter a sensation at Washington High last year, are the halfback hopes. All save Rollason and Berry are lettermen.

Henley, a "W" wearer, and Mancuso, who was on the freshman squad at Pitt last year, are quarterback candidates. Henley's a letterman, knows Wolfe's style of play, and is a good blocking back.

A year ago the Jackets captured three of their important games, beating Grove City (unexpected), Geneva and Bethany. Then they lost games they should have won to Allegheny and Thiel and made cold shivers run up and down the spines of Duquesne's supporters before they finally bowed in a night game at Forbes Field.

The Jackets will open the campaign this year Nov. 20, playing the Slippery Rock State Teachers here at home. The following week finds them moving against Pitt in the Stadium in Pittsburgh. St. Bonaventure will be engaged in Jamestown, N. Y., Oct. 11, and on Friday night, Oct. 16, Geneva plays host to the Jackets in a night game at Beaver Falls. Oct. 25 finds Juniata here in Waynesburg.

The November schedule calls for games with Bethany, Grove City, Wesleyan and Davis-Elkins, the Bethany and Grover contests being scheduled for the new home grounds.

The squad has been outfitted in the same style and design uniforms as last year; black jerseys with orange numerals and black hose. Helmets are tan.

Coach Wolfe is being assisted by Dick Toline, Decker and Shaw. Graduate Manager Jim Miller is still sitting in the driver's seat, handling the cash and singing the meal checks.

Did you know that Paul Berlenbach is training again in a New York gymnasium and is going to apply for a license to box again, pleading that he is broke financially, having been taken for his bank roll in the stock market? . . . And that Bunny Buntach, manager of George Panka, Homestead heavyweight, took the gamble in bringing Tom Heeney here to box Panka at the Meyers Bowl last Monday night? . . . Buntach took 47½ per cent of the gate, out of which he guaranteed Heeney $2,000, with a privilege of 30 per cent. As matter turned out, they had a sellout and a better than $9,000 gate, and everything was rosy, but, if it had rained, Panka might have fought for nothing, with his manager digging down to pay Heeney—HARRY KECK.

SANDLOT GRID TEAMS DRILL

By TOM BIRKS.

All of the teams in the Western Pennsylvania Football Conference will hold practice sessions tomorrow afternoon. McChesneytown will practice at Latrobe and will not use the Jeannette field until its night games are started. Manager Kennedy was elated in closing the deal for the floodlight park and feels big crowds will follow independent football in the Rubbertown.

Paul Muzzio will hold scrimmage at West View tomorrow afternoon. All players are requested to report.

Manager Freddie Iverson will stage the first game of the season at Rainbow Gardens tomorrow, when the Charleroi Whippets provide the opposition to the Black and White. Two former Grove City players will be in the Whippets' lineup—Sheppard, an end, and Johns. Whigham and Turker are former Charleroi High School players. The up-river club will extend the Olympics, and the tilt should prove a great warm-up game for the conference, which swings into action two Sundays later.

Monessen Olympics will dedicate Husher Field next Wednesday night with Star City opposing the Olympics. Manager Jack Mier, one of the finest fellows on the local lots, is keen regarding the possibilities of night football and was much interested in getting into the conference. A first-class attraction will be booked for Monessen Sunday, September 21. The Olympics rate one of the finest followings on the local lots, and the introduction of night football should go over big.

Manager Paul Muzzio is looking for an attraction at West View Park a week from tomorrow. This will be the last independent game before the teams swing into league action.

Burns A. A. will have its final decision on the lighting of the Parnassus High School Field today. Manager Jimmy Smith hopes to play under the lights, and every effort is being made to have them installed.

Burns will not practice tomorrow, Coach Dick Goldberg being out of town. However, the Burns players will scrimmage on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings of next week.

Managers are working hard lining up players for the conference games. All of the lists must be in the hands of the president no later than September 23. Many of the better-known stars are sitting back, awaiting developments.

However, there will be little changing around this season. Players signing with one manager can make up their minds to stay right there. Any player having been released must be out of league games 10 days before playing with another club.

At Westinghouse High School field, Clan Douglas will open its home season by entertaining the Pittsburgh Rovers. At Leslie Park, the newly-formed Sons of St. George, of Wilkinsburg, meets the Pittsburgh Celtics, and at Homestead the Union Switch and Signal eleven plays Mesta Machine in the latter's first home game.

At Bridgeville tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock the Keystone and Panhandle leagues hold their final meetings. It is important the meetings start on time. In the afternoon Morgan is slated to meet Cecil in an exhibition game.

At Husher Field, Monessen, this evening, Heidelberg will get its first taste of night soccer when the Green and Gold hooks up with Dunlevy. Tomorrow afternoon Dunlevy meets Fits Henry on the latter's grounds.

STAR FIELD SET FOR FUTURITY

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—The 2-year-old turf championship and $100,000 were at stake today for 15 of the country's ranking juveniles in the seven-furlong dash down the Widener straightaway, known as the futurity, at Belmont Park.

George D. Widener's Jamestown, Harry Payne Whitney's Equipoise and Gifford A. Cochran's Epithet are favorites, carrying 130 pounds each, giving from three to 13 pounds to their 12 rivals.

With a long series of Saratoga victories, Jamestown rules the favorite at odds of 8 to 5.

Nick Cullop Hits Two More Homers

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Nick Cullop, of Minneapolis, hasn't given up hope of catching up with Joe Hauser, of Baltimore, in the business of making home runs.

The Miller outfielder yesterday cracked out two more round trip hits to bring his total to 54—seven less than Hauser has made.

with a three-run lead, but with victory in sight, Larry French lost control of the situation to such an extent that the Tribe rushed to a tie. The tenth round saw the home club victorious, 5 to 4.

Manager Ens stated this morning he would use Charley Wood or Steve Swetonic on the mound this afternoon. The new left-hander was slated to work yesterday, but his arm was sore, and, as French was anxious to start, Ens sent Larry to the slab.

Swetonic still suffers from a jammed pitching finger which he took on during the night game festivities in Buffalo. Steve would pitch if he were asked, but it is likely that the youngster, Wood, will get the preference. The Buccos expect to compete against the slants of Clarence Mitchell, the only southpaw spitball pitcher extant.

FRENCH LOSES CONTROL

For six innings yesterday in Boston, Larry French gave the Braves all sorts of trouble, his mates meantime piling up a sizeable lead off the slants served by Harry Seibold. Larry had a lot of stuff all the way, it seemed, but his control was just far enough off to get him in trouble.

Al Spohrer was the first hitter to face Larry in the seventh and the hard-hitting catcher played a waiting game. The count was three and two when the catcher walked. Things were looking up for the Pirates when Maguire forced the catcher.

Skipper Bill halted the game long enough to put Bill Cronin at the plate in place of Seiblod. Cronin responded with a double down the rightfield line, scoring Maguire. Johnny Neun then delivered a very important blow when he tripled to right to score Cronin. Up came Maranville, with the tying run on third, and Rabbit spanked over the run pronto with a clean single.

CHATHAM HELPS CAUSE

As the game entered extra innings, the Buccos apparently gave little heed to the fact that they were slated to leave Boston on the 6 o'clock train, but as later events proved, there was no need to change the travel arrangements.

There was no scoring in the eighth or ninth, and, with two on and none out in the last half of the tenth, there was nothing to indicate that the contest would end in 10 rounds, but that is where it finished.

Buster Chatham spilled the beans for French with the aid of Al Spohrer. Chatham crossed everybody up by hitting a prodigious double against the centerfield fence. Lloyd Waner made a furious effort to snag the ball in one hand, but he fell short by a foot. It didn't take Spohrer long to sock a double to left center to score the little thirdbaseman.

Fred Frankhouse went to the mound for McKechnie after Cronin had batted for Seibold. The former Cardinal held the Buccos in check for the remainder of the contest and he received due credit for the victory.

Rosales, Miller Cop Erie Bouts

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Rosey Rosales, 173½, Cleveland, won by a technical knockout in the seventh round of a scheduled 10-round match with Art Weigand, 185, Buffalo, N. Y., here last night. Ray Miller, 164, Battle Creek, Mich., knocked out Matty Matthews, 161, Kenosha, Wis., in the sixth round.

Joe Botta, 122½, Cleveland, was given a decision in six rounds over Garner Johns, 123½, Erie. Johnny Toran, 112½, Chicago Negro, won by a technical knockout in the third round over Jesse Reynolds, 111½, Cleveland. Frankie Bauer, 143½, Cleveland, won a four-round decision over Freddie Felix, 141, Erie.

CHICAGO NINE WINS

TOKIO, Sept. 13.—(AP.)—After five consecutive defeats the University of Chicago baseball team today closed its Tokio series with a victory over Keio University, 2 to 1.

COUNTY TENNIS FINALS TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Final matches in all divisions will feature this afternoon's wind-up program of festivities in the Allegheny County tennis championships in progress on the courts of the Carnegie Library Club at Duquesne, Pa., since last Saturday. The men's singles title round will bring together Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. mainstay and 1928 Western Pennsylvania premier, and Jack Beatty, powerful leader of the crack Stanton Heights net array.

Beatty, with his Winged Head partner, Sullivan, is also in the ultimate bracket of the men's doubles, in which opposition will be furnished by the survivors of an uncompleted semi-final engagement involving John and Billy O'Loughlin with the Mount Lebanon stars, Neal Rumsey and Lou Weis.

The women's singles finals is an all-P. A. A. affair pitting Mariam Sullivan, winner of Morgantown Country Club invitation honors last week, against Betty Wattles, clever driver, whose game has improved tremendously the past three months. The jousting will get under way at 1:45 p. m., with the feminine fray first. Yesterday's summary:

MEN'S DOUBLES

Second round—Rumsey and Weis defeated Hinkle and Metzger, 6-8, 6-4.

WOMEN'S SINGLES

Semi-final round—Miriam Sullivan defeated Margaret Esser, 6-1, 6-1; Betty Wattles defeated Esther Schick, 9-7, 4-6, 6-4.

INDOOR BOUTS PLANNED AT ETNA ELKS

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor

The Vogel brothers and Charley Luck, who have been staging boxing shows all summer at Hickey Park, Millvale, have closed negotiations for indoor quarters, into which they will move as soon as the weather becomes too cool. They expect to run only about two or three more shows outdoors at Hickey Park.

The new arena will be located in the Etna Elks Hall. The seating capacity is about 2,500 and the building is a fine modern one.

For next summer, the Vogels plan to erect a bowl with a capacity of 5,000 or 6,000 at Hickey Park.

NEXT CARD COMPLETE

Matchmaker Luck has completed his card for next Thursday night's show, featuring Battling Gizzy, of Donora, and Jimmy Reed, of Erie, in the 10-round main bout. Hans Roberts meets Billy Holt, Negro welterweight, in the eight-round semi-final, with Georgie Chambers and Russ Powers in the second bout and Frankie Portland and Johnny Brown in the opener.

Reed holds a knockout victory over Gizzy, scored at Washington, Pa., last year.

Allen Beatty, of McKeesport, has been signed to box Benny Burns, of Akron, at Franklin, Pa., next Friday night.

The next open-air amateur boxing show of the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. will be held in the club's North Side arena next Tuesday night.

GANS DUE TOMORROW

Baby Joe Gans and Black Bill, Negro stars, are due to arrive in town tomorrow morning from New York for their double windup battles at the Meyers Bowl tomorrow night, Gans against Harry (Kid) Brown, of Philadelphia, and Bill against Marty Gold, also of Philadelphia. Both of the latter are working out under the direction of Butch Kesner, of Monessen. Young Nanci and Patsy Severo box the second bout and Steve Senich and Joe Gaudy are in the opener at the Bowl.

Chalk up as two real upsets the victory of Billy Petrolle over Tony Canzoneri and the knockout of Leo Lomski by the up-and-coming King Levinsky on the Paddy Harmon benefit card in Chicago Thursday night. Both were more unexpected than the clean-cut and speedy knockout of Al Singer by Jimmy McLarnin in New York the same night.

BIG AUTO RACE CARDED TODAY

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 13.—Because of the goodly crowds on hand for the century classic Labor Day and last Saturday afternoon when rain twice caused the postponements, a big attendance is predicted for this city's inaugural 100-mile automobile race at the local fair grounds this afternoon, commencing at 3 o'clock Eastern Standard time.

Sunny Bill Chittum of Columbus, O., and Bill Schempp and Mike Hickson of Pittsburgh, due to their fast time in the qualifications, are the choice of the speed fans over many other entrants, including:

BISONS GET REITZ

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Al Reitz, right-hand pitching star of the Scranton New York-Penn League Club, has been sold to the Buffalo Club, of the International League, it was announced last night by Buck Elliott, manager of the Miners. The sale price was not disclosed. Reitz will join the Bisons on Monday.

Fight Results

At Erie—Rosy Rosales knocked out (technical) Art Weigand, 7 rounds; Ray Miller knocked out Matty Matthews, 6 rounds; Joe Botta defeated Garner Johns, 6 rounds; John Toran knocked out (technical) Jesse Reynolds, 3 rounds; Frankie Bauer defeated Freddie Felix, 4 rounds.

GENE SARAZEN, ARMOUR IN BIG TEST

FLUSHING, N. Y., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Gene Sarazen and Tommy Armour, two seasoned golf professionals who, oddly enough, never have met in match play competition, went out this morning to decide possession of the Professional Golfers' Association championship.

From a field of 63 crack pros starting the championship play Monday, only the stocky, dark American of Italian parentage and the prematurely-gray Scot are left.

Sarazen advanced to the final round by defeating Joe Kirkwood, who thrills golf galleries by sensational trick shots, his winning margin being 5 up and 4 to play. Armour had a sterner struggle in winning his chance at the championship. He had to go the full 36 holes to eliminate Charley Lacey, young British pro of the Pine Valley Club, Clementon, N. J., 1 up.

The Scot's putting touch failed him at the last minute and his young opponent took a new lease on life when he seemed to be definitely out of it.

Sarazen has twice won the P. G. A. championship, first in 1922, when he was also open champion, and again in 1923. He first captured the title at Oakmont when he defeated Emmett French, 4 and 3, and repeated at Pelham at the expense of Walter Hagen in a great 38-hole match. Armour won the open championship in 1927 at Oakmont and now holds the Canadian open title.

MY 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

me to jump a train for home and bring the wonder back. This I succeeded in doing. Our next game was with Meriden, and the manager picked Gilmore and myself as the battery. Gilmore won his game, 6 to 3, and at once had Hartford fans in back of him.

Now, Gilmore was built exactly on my own lines, tall and slender. There never was so much height and wasp-like shape blended into a battery in New England before and the air was filled with exclamations and expressions of astonishment every time we walked out to start a game all through the circuit.

The 1885 race finished early and we were through by the middle of September. Hartford finished second to Meriden, whose leading battery, Flynn and Miller, went the next year to the Chicago White Stockings, along with Tom Daly.

At that time there was a lot of interest in baseball in Hudson river cities. There was intense rivalry among Kingston, Newburgh and Poughkeepsie. They still had three weeks to play, so Gilmore and I received an offer to finish the season with Poughkeepsie and accepted.

JOINS MAJORS

We did very well and won nearly all of our games. Toward the finish, Manager Clifford, of the Metropolitans, of New York, a member of the old American Association, which was a major league in those days, came to Hartford on a mission. The Metropolitans had finished their championship season but planned a long exhibition tour, and, as all of their catchers were hurt, Clifford engaged me to catch for the Mets.

I eagerly jumped at the chance to play with a major league team even in exhibition games and went in a train with Clifford to New York to serve on my third team of 1885. I caught every game and my pitchers were Jack Lynch, a righthander, and Cushman, a lefthander.

Cushman had a difficult delivery for a catcher to handle and he was so pleased with my style of receiving that he implored the manager to sign me for 1886 and let me be his catcher.

The manager broached me on the subject, but I was unable to consider an offer, for, before leaving Hartford, I had scribbled my name to a document that bound me to the club for next year.

My stay with the Metropolitans filled me with confidence and further hopes, for I proved good enough to have been offered a contract. I felt now that I was in baseball to stay and that it was only a question of time when I would be in fast company.

So, in October, 1885, I returned to East Brookfield, feeling that if I was not on the top of the world I was nowhere near the bottom. Again I passed up work in the following off-season and idled away my time at my home.

By this time I was fast gaining a standing in our little community. My good work with Hartford, followed by my experience with Poughkeepsie and capped by the fact that a major league club wanted an East Brookfield boy on its roster, made me stand out and during the long and harsh New England winter I was in constant demand to tell my baseball experience at gatherings.

POLICE STAGE MEET AT STADIUM

An attractive program of diversified sports will be presented today at the Pitt Stadium when Pittsburgh's "finest" play host to their friends in the twelfth annual Police Pension Fund Association meet.

Starting with a marathon run from Lake Elizabeth and finishing at the Stadium, the first event in the inclosure will be a parade of all the participating athletes and officials, headed by the Pittsburgh Railways Band.

BIG PROGRAM

Twenty-three track and seven field events, two bicycle races, five amateur boxing bouts, among them four inter-city clashes between Pittsburgh boys and Buffalo mitt wielders; an archery exhibition, trick and fancy shooting by Arlayne Brown of St. Louis; a drill by Pittsburgh mounted police, and an exhibition of horsemanship by 16 of the traffic squad are on the program.

Interspersed will be clown acts by Fred Gerwig and his troupe, solo singing by two local women artists and other features.

The track meet has drawn the cream of the talent from Pittsburgh Athletic Association, Union Athletic Club, Duquesne Jr. High, Twenty-seventh Ward Club, Slippery Rock Teachers College, Pennsylvania Railroad, Pittsburgh Railways, Holy Cross Club, Emmett Club, Westinghouse Company, as well as stars from Erie and Philadelphia.

INTERESTING RACES

The races for girls will be very interesting, with Slippery Rock, Westinghouse and Union Club lasses competing. Closed events offer competition for representatives of the police force.

The meet is in the hands of capable officials. Amplifiers have been installed to keep the crowd in touch with everything that goes on.

Long's Sport Comment

by all sorts of accidents. There isn't a man on the club who hasn't been injured since the race started."

THE CUBS MIGHT be figured as likely to lose out in their fight to repeat for the National League pennant if the September trend in championship competition could be expected to take in baseball as well as the other sports it has already affected. For it certainly has been a tough month for champions so far.

Young Jack Thompson lost the world welterweight boxing crown to Tommy Freeman; Leo Diegel was knocked off the American professional golf throne which he had occupied for two years; Al Singer, lightweight fistic king, was knocked out by Jimmy McLarnin though he did not lose his title, and now even Big Bill Tilden has joined the casualties, stripped of his honors as national tennis champion.

THE KIDS ARE coming along in tennis. The old wheeze that youth must be served has been upset in some sports this year, but it surely is being made good in the net game, as witness the defeat of Henri Cochet by Wilmer Allison, of Bill Tilden by Frank Shields, of Francis Hunter by Ellsworth Vines, and of Jean Borotra by Berkely Bell.

And to top it all, the national title tourney at Forest Hills saw Tilden beaten again in the semi-finals, this time by Johnny Doeg, which left the championship to be fought for in the finals by Doeg, 23 years old, and Shields, only 19, a windup strikingly new in the way of ages.

Johnny Doeg.

EVEN IN A MONTH that has seen champions falling on all sides, the defeat of Tilden came as one of the sensations of the year, as in spite of his 37 years he had been generally picked to hang on to the American singles crown, particularly in view of the fact that prior to the semi-finals he had lost only a single set. Tilden's defeat cost him a chance to smash all United States tennis records, as if he had been victorious this year he would have been the first player ever to win the championship eight times. Two others shared with him the distinction of winning it seven times. The first was Richard D. Sears, of Boston, who held it from 1881 to 1887, inclusive, and the second was the late William A. Larned, who won in 1901 and 1902 and then from 1907 to 1911, inclusive. Tilden's seven triumphs were scored from 1920 to 1925, inclusive, and in 1929. Larned was two years older than Tilden is at present when he won for the last time in 1911, defeating the rising young star of that period, Maurice McLoughlin, the famous "Comet."*

VICTORIES FOR ALL three of the leading clubs yesterday left the National League pennant situation unchanged except for the fact that the Giants were pushed back to a point that just about eliminated them before the opening of their series with the Pirates this afternoon.

The schedule offers the Cubs, who appear to have found their batting eyes, a chance to pull half a game farther ahead today, as they are booked for two games with the Phillies while the Cards are playing one with the Braves and the Robins are staging a single contest with the Reds. But on the other hand the program may serve to drag the Bruins back, as there is no more assurance that they will be able to win twice from the Phillies than there is that the Cards and Robins will have smooth going against the Braves and Reds. None of those so-called weak clubs can be counted as beaten in advance.

McHenry Captures Alcoma Senior Title

The William H. Nichols trophy, emblematic of the Alcoma Country Club, senior championship was won yesterday by H. McHenry with a gross 82. F. K. Tovey was runner-up with 87.

St. Vincent's Eleven In Practice Game

LATROBE, Pa., Sept. 13.—In order to see how his squad will perform under fire, Coach Crowe of St. Vincent's College, has arranged for a practice game with a group of former college stars from Pittsburgh, lead by Boots Butala, St. Vincent's star of two years ago. The game will be played at St. Vincent's Athletic Field this afternoon starting at 2 o'clock.

The chances are that Crowe will use practically the same line that he had last year, with the exception of two ends, both of whom graduated last June. Lengyel and Best look like promising candidates for the terminal position.

Nick Altrock Says:

CHICAGO, Sept. 13. — For a club that was never nearer water than the mud of the Mississippi, those St. Louis Cards have certainly tied the race into a swell sailors' knot. You need field glasses, trick mirrors and periscopes to keep your eyes where all the clubs are battling on the eastern front.

Nick Altrock

It must be tough on the attendance at Sir Tommy's yacht races to have that pennant battle going great guns on shore.

The Cubs have sure had their chin lifted since they started their tour. They must be glad to get out of Brooklyn and I wouldn't blame them if they poisoned all the wells before they went.

TECH 'VARSITY, PLEBES HOLD SCRIMMAGE

Two Carnegie Tech varsity football teams each got 15 minutes of scrimmage against a Freshmen aggregation at Tech yesterday afternoon. Each of the Steffen-Waddell combinations held the comparatively unorganized Plebe team scoreless, and one of them managed to score a touchdown when 'Dutch' Eyth intercepted a forward pass, and raced back 55 yards over the goal line.

The rest of the time the youngsters put up a stiff argument with their elder brothers, although they were usually on the defensive. Many of the varsity men were excused from the scrimmage, with a number of lads who have not had many opportunities to break in action getting their chance in the two brief sessions.

Dueger, Eyth, Ewing and Karcis composed one backfield, working behind a line that included Potts, Stuaffer, Sample, Jones, Pouncey, Baushke and L. Flanagan. The other bunch had McCurdy, Ziegler, Carlson and Vorderburg in the backfield, and Croissant, Highberger, Dreshar, Ducanis, Ostoosky, Schnupp and Kebe in the line.

PITT SCRIMMAGES

CAMP HAMILTON, WINDBER, Pa., Sept. 13.—Scrimmage is on the books for the Pitt Panthers today. They have their usual morning scrimmage before heading for the town of Windber to regale themselves on ice cream. This is the third day of scrimmage in a row for the Panthers, as they haven't had a break since Wednesday. Today's practice marks the end of the second week of practice.

Just when Sutherland thought the guard problem was fairly well in hand, Ernie Lewis, of Steelton, started to kick up a rumpus with the varsity line and now he is due for lots of consideration. Against the freshmen yesterday, the varsity was able to get along at a fair rate of speed, Quatse and MacMurdo opening up gaping holes, but they found the second club a lot tougher opponent.

Still experimenting with his backfield, Sutherland had Buzz Brown at the left half job in place of Warren Heller; Josh Williams held down the other halfback job, Baker was a quarter and Clark at fullback. The line had MacMurdo and Collins, who is playing some great ball, at the ends, Quatse and Tully at the tackles, Hart Morris and Milligan at the guards, and Daugherty at center.

DUKES WEARY

Weariness overtook the Duquesne University footballers last night after a hectic day and the present day's program of morning and afternoon drills will go forward with a tired, but desperate squad in action. Layden is working as fast as possible with Joe Bach, line coach, and Dr. John Weible, aide-de-camp to Bach voluntarily, since he wants his Night Riders to be ready for the season opener next Friday night at Forbes Field.

Scrimmage yesterday morning was followed by light signal drills and formations in the afternoon. Backfield and line weak spots must be strengthened and the workability of the eleven considerably polished before the Duquesne University gridders will be ready for the West Virginia University Mountaineers.

Injuries Handicap Mountaineer Drills

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 13.—A light, speedy backfield behind a bulky line continued to be in order as the West Virginia University football squad entered its third day of practice for the opening game with Duquesne University next Friday night at Pittsburgh.

Slight injuries were handicapping a few of the mountaineers, including Capt. Red Gordon, guard; Lawrence Beall, tackle; Lawrence Plaster, center, all veterans, and Sophomore Andy Brawley, halfback.

HOTZES WIN TITLE

NEWTOWN SQUARE, Pa., Sept. 13.—(AP.)—Henry Hotz and Henry Hotz, Jr., of Lansdowne, Pa., won the annual father and son golf tournament of the Philadelphia Golf Association yesterday over the Aronimink course, with a net score of 67. Their gross was 92, but a handicap of 25 gave them a net three under par.

Raquel Insults Prince Who Caused Trouble

CHAPTER LII

Elsworth Bosart, otherwise the pink pig, managed to avoid Raquel during the evening. As she foresaw he would. She was glad. This night was such a perfect one. She did not want its radiance dimmed by the shadow of another night. A night when, with murder in her heart, she fled down a paved walk leaving a man limp and gurgling in a fountain.

"That swine of a Bosart is here," Alphonse told her when he came to take her to supper.

"Yes. Mrs. Bosart spoke to me, Monsieur Alphonse, and she—terrible! Like a bleached skeleton on the desert. With hollow eyes leering."

"If it wasn't for her I'd have Elsworth tossed out of this house by the scruff of the neck. Has he dared approach you?"

The small bright eyes of Alphonse glittered balefully.

"No," Raquel assured him. "He hasn't shown himself near me. And please let him stay so long as he behaves. I want to be responsible for the largest sale you have ever made to Mrs. Bosart. I'll write a note to her in the morning and ask her to come to the atelier. I'll ask her to bring Mr. Bosart along 'because of his remarkable good taste.' He's afraid of me as tonight has proved. He'll come."

Alphonse chuckled appreciatively. He could see the plump pink pig wriggling on the spit.

"The Prince de Rochelle arrived only a little while ago," he said. "He has begged me for an introduction."

Raquel knew Alphonse was watching her covertly.

Strange Night

She smiled, taking his arm and leaning on it affectionately.

"Please," she said with a little moue of pleading. "I'm just a wee bit tired. And princes bore me."

He melted instantly under her smile. There was nothing she could not have from him when she was like this.

What a strange night! Raquel thought. One of those fateful spaces in time that came to her unexpectedly, reaching out tentacles of her past. She would not have been too greatly surprised if "Bill" Johnson—stolid, thick-witted Bill she had thought to marry years ago in a place called Hermosa—had clanked his spurs across the magic carpets. Or lean, laughing, brown Jack Farrell, the young engineer, who had delivered her from the desert.

She had cabled Jack Farrell the balance of the loan he had made her. To the Hotel Brixton in New York, where she was sure it would be forwarded. Had he received it? She had no way of knowing. She had given no address.

"I have spoken to you twice and you have not answered," Alphonse was saying. "Who has the distinction of so transporting the Queen of Beauty?"

A jest—but Raquel could see the misery in the man's eyes.

"A man I knew—as a child—eons ago," Raquel answered. "He was what Greta would call 'a good egg.' Something reminded me of him."

Interested in Future

"Were you once a child?" Alphonse spoke doubtfully. "I thought you were born grown-up, ma petite."

"I'll tell you about it some time," Raquel promised gravely. "Then you may judge for yourself."

"I have no interest in your past, ma cherie," Alphonse said, bowing low so that she could not see his face. "Only your future concerns me."

Why had he left out her present. Deliberately she was sure. Equally she was sure that Eric Stafford had much to do with that deliberation.

Behind Alphonse, through the group of courtiers who followed the Queen of Beauty wherever she walked and who paid homage to her verbally or a distance, Raquel saw a man advancing with purposeful stride.

A dandy of a man, twirling the ends of a dark mustache and caressing her with his bold eyes. She had seen this man many times—at the races, in the Casino at Biarritz, once at an international tennis match where he flashed, like an evil bird of prey, across the court. Always she had made it a point to avoid him. Now, it seemed, he had determined she was not to escape.

The Prince de Rochelle. Duelist. Expert swordsman.

The man reached Alphonse, leaned forward to speak to him, his eyes still on Raquel.

Up came the sable head bound with orange blossoms. Black eyes ablaze. Scarlet lips bowed across the gleam of blue-white teeth. Up came the creamy shoulders, too, in a little shrug of dislike.

"Pardon me, Monsieur," said Raquel, the cold brittleness of ice in her voice.

Greta After Fun

With which she turned and accepted the arm of a courtier who had been hovering near in the hope that chance would present him just such a favor.

The insult was obvious. That she knew. Her pulses raced. Her heart sang. So much to the memory of Bertie Adams.

The sun was washing the garden of the black house in Neuilly with pale gold when the [illegible] bell summoned the man in the black velvet coat to let Raquel and Greta in at the gate.

It was Alphonse who dropped them there. Eric had left early to make ready for his flight to London. Greta babbled of a new prospect who promised to be heavy pay dirt.

"But why do you bother, Greta?" Raquel asked. "You have everything you want here. All the money you need."

Greta shook her boyish blonde head.

"You can't seem to get the idea at all, dearie," she said. "Of course I've got everything. On a platinum platter. Our commissions last month look like the President's pay envelope. We don't even have to exhibit the clothes any more. All we have to do is wear 'em. And those French models who tried to fox us when we first came—they have to click their heels when we sweep by."

"Then why—"

"Oh, for Pat's sake, don't you think a girl has to have a little fun? This bimbo I'm going to take is so tight he puts cigar bands on stogies so he won't know the difference. It's a pleasure to crack an egg like that. A pleasure."

"What did you do with him?"

"I said da-da till tomorrow. He wanted to take me home—on a bus I suppose—but I said Uncle Al would be furious if my chaperone came and found I had gone with a man."

Has New Maid

"Greta, you are incorrigible."

"I try to be. And, by the way, where is 'is lordship?"

"Eric? He's been called to London."

Greta caught Raquel's arm excitedly. "Blimey! old bean," she cried. "'E's gone to get the guv'nor's permission. When he saw you in those orange blossoms tonight, say, dearie, when you get to the castle will you run me down a duke or an earl or something?"

"Greta!"

"Go on. Don't be snooty. I don't care if he is a little bit used. Sort of second-handed, so speak."

Raquel's maid was waiting. Lola or Nosey the Spy as Greta insisted on referring to her—had long since been replaced by a pert young French girl with a genius for serving the needs of Beauty.

"And Mademoiselle, she was a success at the fete?" she asked, quite as if her all hung on the answer.

Heaven or hell?

Which was it to be for Eric Stafford?

Horoscopes

Sunday, September 14

Sunday's horoscope holds testimony of lively and prosperous conditions in all that pertains to writings, publishings, letters or cultural pursuits, but otherwise shows a menace of treachery with sinister and sordid occurrences. It would be well to be fortified against all manner of subtle and mysterious visitations.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very lively and progressive year in business, with all pertaining to publishings, writings and promotion thriving.

A child born on this day should be brilliant and versatile, and should make fine success in many directions. He may, however, be subject to secret and subtle enmities.

Monday, September 15

Monday's astrological forecast is a generally fortunate one, excepting that those in the employment of others are enjoined to safeguard their positions and not to incur censure or dismissal. A favorable change or journey is in prospect, with the finances fairly well aspected and the personal energies and initiative well stimulated. Purely personal relations may give concern.

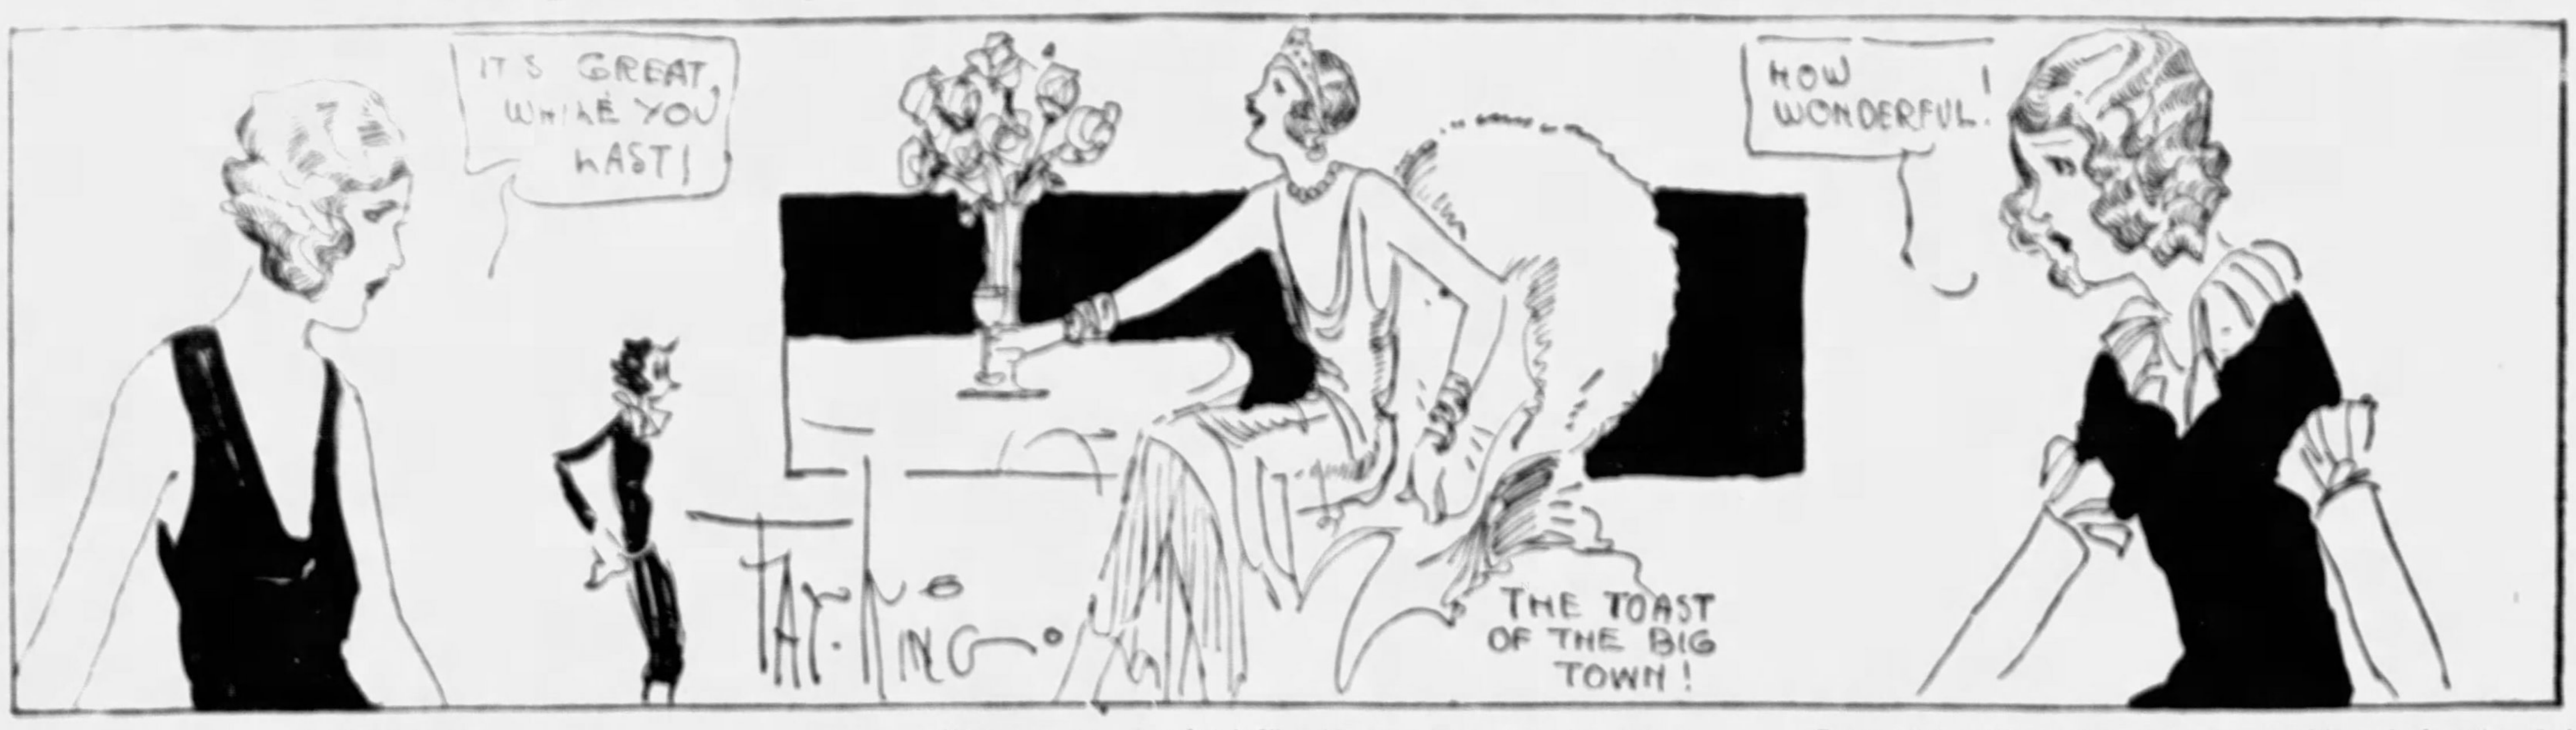
Those whose birthday it is are promised a rather fortunate year, with prosperous and progressive conditions, in which there is some hazard.

A child born on this day should be capable, enterprising and ambitious and may have an adventurous career, succeeding better "on its own" than in employment.

Early Training

Let the children share in the entertaining of the guests, not to a tiresome extent, but enough to make them hospitable and proud of their home entertaining abilities.

Beauty's Triumph a Matter of Recognition, Fay King Points Out



IT'S GREAT WHILE YOU LAST!
FAY KING
HOW WONDERFUL!

By FAY KING

Beauty and beauties was the topic of conversation.

I asked what had become of a certain beautiful show girl I had admired in the triumph of her reign when she was the toast of the town. Anyone might well have envied her then.

"Have you seen her lately?" said one of the men in such a manner I thought she must now be a perfect fright.

Not long afterwards I did see her. She was still very lovely—not much changed.

But so it is with shallow men who worship only beauty. Let the first freshness of youth fade, or let a new beauty appear in the spotlight, and the former reigning favorite finds her court fall away like a house of cards.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

Madge Fears the Consequences Should Dicky Learn the Details of Savarin Will

Until I heard my own voice telling Mrs. Cosgrove that I could not take the money Robert Savarin had said he was leaving me in trust for Lillian, I had not realized how strong was my aversion to the dying man's plan. It was as if something outside my own volition had spoken the words. But once they were uttered I felt relieved, albeit a bit shamefaced as well, as if I had transferred a burden from my own shoulders to another's.

Mrs. Cosgrove looked at me comprehendingly.

"I understand," she said. "It will be very awkward for you, especially when the papers get hold of it."

I had a swift mental flash of Dicky's face as it might look when he picked up a newspaper and saw an account of the strange will of the famous artist Robert Savarin leaving half of his fortune away from nearest relatives and bequeathing it to "Margaret Spencer Graham, wife of Richard Graham, for a purpose of which she and I know.'"—I was a bit hazy about the legal phraseology, but the look upon my husband's face was very clear to me. And I was bound by my promise to dying Robert Savarin not only to accept the half of his fortune for Lillian, but to tell no one what was the real purpose of the gift.

Only one person shared that secret, the sister of Robert Savarin, who was to receive the other half of his property.

"Just what did Robert tell you?" she asked.

"That he had left half his property to you and the other half to me in trust for Lillian, and Marion after her. He wished me to promise that I would say nothing to anyone but you about the bequest as long as Mr. Underwood should live."

Mrs. Cosgrove gave a deep sigh.

"Poor Robert!" she said. "He judges every other man's jealousy by his own. He is afraid that Mr. Underwood would make things very unpleasant for Lillian if he knew about the bequest."

Her comment was a tentative question, but though I well knew the answer, and that it was but a bolstering of Robert Savarin's opinion, I uttered only a perfunctory "I know," and Mrs. Cosgrove put a direct question.

"Did you make Robert the promise he asked?"

"Yes," I replied soberly. "I did. I couldn't do anything else. He was so agitated. I was afraid——"

"I know," she nodded. "But that makes it too bad, for you can't explain. If only the thing could be kept out of the papers, so that your husband and Lillian's shouldn't know about it. You see Robert's idea doesn't mean much responsibility for you. His money is all in good bonds, and he means you to keep it all intact unless Lillian or Marion should be in need of funds. Then it is his idea that you supply those needs, letting them think that the money comes from your own funds."

"But it is a horrible false position for me," I said tonelessly.

"Yes, it is," she agreed, "and I wish I could do something to help you."

"There is one thing you can do, at least—afterward," I said with sudden energy.

"What is it?" she asked cautiously.

"Robert said that he had left $15,000 to me outright. I could not contradict him, then. But when it does come to me, you must take it."

"My dear," she said, "the money my brother has willed to me will make me comfortable and independent for the rest of my life, will give me every wish I have ever made, except for his remaining with me." Her voice shook and it was a long minute before she spoke again.

"I can see your point of view," she said, "but I wish you could see Robert's also. When he talked this over with me—he consulted me on every point," she interpolated pridefully—"he spoke so often of the 'divine charity' you had for everyone, and of the helping hand you invariably gave to anyone appealing to you for aid. He felt that you must often be hampered in your charities by lack of funds, and wished you to have this sum to use exactly as you pleased. I think he guessed you probably would not wish to use it for yourself, although you know how much he would love to have you do that very thing. But with that interpretation don't you think you could grant this wish of Robert's, too?"

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Green soap is not green; it is like vaseline in color and consistency. It is used in the treatment of blackheads and pimples because it can be rubbed in with the finger tips, instead of being applied with a cloth. It helps to dry up pustules, to put the skin in a healthier condition. Rinse with warm water; cold water won't budge it. Dry the flesh; apply borated talcum.

Deep breathing exercise to bring high lights to the cheeks and bright lights to the eyes; —stand erect, hands on hips, chest high; breathe slowly and deeply through the nostrils until the lungs are well filled; exhale through the lips with a whistling sound. Second exercise: Take a shallow breath, then a deeper one, then another even deeper, exhale through the lips.

A coated tongue signifies some digestive disturbance. It also creates a metallic taste, which is most unpleasant. A good mouth wash for such a condition is made by dissolving one teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of baking soda in a glassful of warm water. Gargle with it and swish between the teeth.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Of Different Clay

Why is the modern girl trying so hard to prove that she is made of the same clay as a man?

* * *

The Big Idea of the early feminists was to prove that woman was just as strong as a man—not that she was just as weak as a man. But somebody seems to have gotten the original plan all twisted.

* * *

Man was made from clay, according to the Scriptures, but woman was made from a rib, when the clay had become a little more refined and sensitive.

A woman may have the same primitive emotions, desires and reactions as a man; but, somehow, she manages to glorify them and make them more delicate, idealistic and beautiful.

To a man, a casual kiss is—just a kiss, forgotten the moment he has taken it. To the girl, it is a tender, hazy memory, which sweetens and illuminates her whole day, and of which she may dream for weeks.

To a man, the most alluring woman in the world is, after all, "only a woman," unless he is in love with her. But to a girl, an attractive, personable man is always a possible Prince Charming, in whom she imagines she sees beauties of mind and fineness of emotions.

To a woman, the most trivial love-affair, is somewhat a shining and glorified thing, while to a man, it is just a passing adventure, a gratification of the vanity or a summer day's amusement.

To a man, clothes are just something to wear, to cover the body and keep him warm. To a woman, clothes are an expression of her personality, works of art, an adornment; and dressing is one of the fine arts.

Dinner, to the average man, is just food; something to delight the palate and satisfy hunger. But, to a woman, the silver, the music and the flowers are more important than the menu or the cooking.

You SEE how useless it is for woman to take man for her "model," or to try to look at life from his viewpoint, emotionally. The Lord has made her more delicate, more sensitive and more highly strung than man. And all her attempts to become hard-boiled have merely resulted in a superficial coruscation, which snaps under the strain of the first real emotion.

No woman can take love as lightly, casually and freely as a MAN does, and be happy! NO woman can play the love-game in a man's way, and WIN.

* * *

A cat has as much "right" to swim as a duck—but she has sense enough not to TRY. It's not "her game"! Woman has as much "right" to be casual, hard-boiled and irresponsible in love as a man has—but she ought to have intelligence enough to know that nothing but a real and beautiful love ever made a woman happy. Man and woman are both made of clay—but woman is made of a little finer brand.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Relishes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When salad is served with the meal and a bread and butter plate, too, where does one put the pickle and celery that is passed?

2. Would one eat a large pickle, such as dill, with the fingers or cut it with the knife?

3. When invited to just one meal, what is the proper thing to do with the napkin?

H. L. B.

1. On the bread and butter plate. Or you may place the celery on the bread and butter and the pickle with the salad.

2. It is better to eat it with the knife and fork, cutting it with the knife and taking a piece to the mouth with the fork.

3. Watch your hostess and follow her lead. You will find generally that the napkin is left "as is," not folded, on the left of the plate, as we rise from the table.

Addressing the Priest

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiancee is Catholic. I am not. We are going to be married soon and are going to see the priest. What I should like to know is:

1. What should I say when I am introduced?

2. Should I address the priest as "Father?"

3. What should I say when leaving?

G. B.

1. How do you do, Father Brennan?"

2. Yes.

3. "Good-by, Father Brennan. It has been a great pleasure to meet you, and thank you so much for your kindness."

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Does a Girl's Sin Bind Her to the Man in Question?

They "made a mistake." Should that mistake shut Rika out from life? Has she no right to marry like other girls?

She believes that it does, and she hasn't.

So, although he distrusts and abuses her, and insists he will never marry her, she still clings with despairing hands to Joe. For she feels that her sin binds her to him, and that she has no right to free herself and dream of happiness with anyone else.

"What will become of me, Sally, if he leaves me?" she wails desperately. And, reading her letter, scores of other bewildered girls will echo that cry, in their sad, shamed hearts.

Dear Sally:

I am a young girl of 19, and I am so unhappy and disgusted with life that I wish I was dead.

I will tell you what's wrong, and oh Sally! I do hope you can help me. You see three years ago I fell in love with a boy four years my senior. We loved each other madly and were with each other constantly.

After four months of courtship we became engaged. Everything seemed so fine. And then —— Oh, Sally, I loved him so! But oh, how I wish I had never made such a mistake as I did! Because now things are so different. He doesn't trust me any more and my heart is just breaking.

You see he got mixed up with a bunch of bad boys afterwards, and got into trouble and he was sent away for a while. I promised to wait for him till he came back.

For two months I went out with no one at all. Then I met a nice crowd and began going out. I was a good girl then. I never made but the one error. And I had loads of nice times, too. Then Joe came back and I gave up all these friends because I loved him, and I thought he loved me. I was so happy to see him and thought we would be married soon.

But now everything is so wrong. He says that he still loves me, but he doesn't trust me at all. He is like a different person, and insists that he knows I am not true to him. He says he will never marry me, but still he doesn't go out of my life, and I don't know what to do.

We talked things over every night, but there is no use. He won't give me up. And I can't give him up either, because I have always dreamed of having a home and kiddies, and if Joe doesn't marry me, I will never have them, because, of course, I could never marry any other man.

Oh, what shall I do? I am so miserable. How can I change him? Make him see that I have been true to him? Please, please help me, because my whole future depends on it.

What will become of me, Sally, if he leaves me? Oh, I just can't stand this.

RIKA

You poor little kid, you! How I wish I could put my arms around you and comfort you, instead of trying to say it with type. But perhaps you'll feel my love and understanding reaching through the page. So grab on, honey. Dry those tears and let's go!

Made a mistake, did you? Well, who hasn't? Some of us make one mistake, some of us make another. But every life has 'em as surely as every pup has fleas. And any life can live above 'em, if it has the gumption and good sense.

So before you do anything about this Joe Friend, do something with yourself. Stop feeling that your life is branded. Stop feeling that you're doomed to unhappiness simply because you went haywire once. Look yourself over and realize that you are what you are today—not what you were last week or last year. Maybe you were a foolish girl once. But you've learned your lesson and you're all the finer and sweeter now for the weary tears. So, whatever you were once upon a time, you are a good girl now—and you don't have to be bound by your yesterdays.

All of which means that you don't have to marry Joe just because you went together through an hour of folly. If you really love him and want him, that's a different thing. But you do not have to stand his suspicion and abuse, nor sacrifice your life to him, because of the chapter in your past.

So put it up to him straight. Tell him that he must treat you decently or go out of your life. And then see that he does it.

That's my advice to Rika, and to every other trapped and troubled youngster. Would it be your advice, stranger? If Rika had come to you with her story what would you have said? I'd like to know.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Assure Baby of Healthy Teeth

It is immensely important that every baby should have a good start in life. Your baby's life and health will depend largely on nutrition, not only after birth, but before the child is born. The child's constitution will depend to a large extent upon what the mother eats before the child comes into the world, as well as the nourishment given afterward.

DR COPELAND

If, before her child's birth, the mother follows a diet of fresh, natural foods her child should be normal and healthy. But if she leaves out of the diet the valuable mineral salts found in fresh vegetables and fruits, then the needs of her body and that of her child's will suffer. These foods with plenty of milk daily will supply the lime needed to preserve her own and to make her baby's teeth and bones.

She should eat plenty of raw and stewed fresh fruits daily, as well as plenty of raw and cooked green vegetables. Whole wheat bread, if it agrees with her, should be substituted for white bread, and milk products for much meat. Such a diet is very essential for the welfare of the expected child.

Although the teeth of an infant are not visible at birth they are embedded in the jaw. They begin to form and harden five months before birth, although the first tooth does not develop until the child is six or eight months old. Even the first permanent back teeth or molars begin before birth.

It is therefore essential that lime salts be supplied to the unborn child through the mother's diet, and later through the mother's milk in nursing. It is easy to see how important it is that great care should be given to the mother's diet both before and after the child is born.

It has been established beyond a doubt that if every child could be fed on its own mother's milk for the first eight months, there would be a tremendous decrease in the death-rate of infants in their first year. There would be a great decrease in rickets and tuberculosis in children.

It is known that the child that has been fed on mother's milk has greater resistance to disease than one who has been bottle-fed. Every mother who can should nurse her baby. Mother's milk is more easily digested than cow's milk.

Artificially-fed babies during the winter months at least should have from one-half to one teaspoonful of cod-liver oil three times a day in order to supply Vitamin D, that element that prevents rickets. In summer, if the baby is exposed to sunlight for a time each day, the cod-liver oil may be discontinued.

It is also most important that the bottle-fed baby should have from one to two tablespoonfuls of orange juice or tomato juice every day to supply Vitamin C, the scurvy-preventing vitamin. Lack of this vitamin is a common source of diseases of the teeth and badly formed teeth.

DAILY TRUE STORY

"Bugs!"

"Bugs? Bugggggggs!"

Mrs. Honora Evans glared at her stepdaughter.

Winona Evans nodded pleasantly.

Winona shook her head.

"Monty Garner isn't an idiot — he doesn't lasso insects [illegible]

[illegible] idea of a grown man [illegible] around with bugs [illegible]

"Oh, [illegible] doesn't fiddle with bugs [illegible] one classifies them and Monty is an entomologist," Winona said, a shade of resentment creeping into her voice.

"And you are so chummy with this man-size sap as to call him 'Monty.' I am disgusted and discouraged. This thing has got to stop. Laurence Worthing will be offended. What can you be thinking of?"

Her stepmother glared at her angrily.

Not very often did they clash. Mrs. Honora Evans tried to be diplomatic. The Evans fortune, not large, had been divided equally when Winona's father died. Mrs. Evans, the second, cherished visions of marrying Winona to a wealthy man. In that event, she believed Winona would permit her to have all of the Evans fortune.

She had set her heart on Lawrence Worthing because he seemed to be ideal—he was considerable of a weakling and he had a very fair fortune. She and Winona could twist him around their fingers. Mrs. Evans planned to do a great deal of the managing of any man Winona might marry.

It is true that Laurence lisped.

The manner in which Winona imitated him caused Mrs. Honora Evans to lose her temper for the moment.

"He does not talk that way!" she stormed.

Monty Arrives

Winona laughed.

"At any rate, he isn't a crazy, poverty-stricken chaser of bugs! Think of it, Winona—a life-size man galloping up hill and down dale chasing bugs—buggggggs!"

"There is but one 'g' in bugs," Winona reminded her.

"Here he comes now—a sight for the gods—look at that black case and that net—as if he just stepped out of a Sunday comic strip!"

"Go and hide—I'll tell him you are ill—and I'll send for Laurence—"

Mrs. Honora Evans didn't finish her sentence before Winona went out and down the walk to greet Mr. Garner.

"Hello, Monty — what's the program?" Winona asked.

"Butterfly," he said.

"Only one?"

"Only one."

"Let's go—I'll help you surround it—"

A big, shining limousine drew up. A liveried doorman beside the liveried chauffeur got down and opened the door.

"Darn!" Winona muttered.

"Greetinths, Mith Evanth," he said.

Monty Garner coughed.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Worthing—you had better hurry in. Mrs. Evans is waiting for you."

"But—but I thay—you're going altho?"

"Sorry—previous engagement. Meet Mr. Garner, Mr. Worthing. Mr. Garner is an entomologist."

"How do you do. Thith—an entho—tho—"

"Bugs," Monty said gravely.

"Bugths? Did I understand the word—bugths?"

Winona took her turn at coughing.

As they passed Sally Carter, basso guffaws and staccato squeals of laughter came from the little car.

Sally looked all around and then at herself and said, irritably, "What on earth were those two fools laughing at?"

Mrs. Honora Evans put on her most charming smile as she greeted Laurence Worthing. She chattered away brightly and gave him a very mild cocktail.

"Awfully thorry Mith Winona wouldn't come," he said.

Laurence Pleased

"It's quite like the dear child—she was on the verge of tears when she knew you wanted her to go along to the Huxley fete, but she had given her word to this—er—professor. Winona is inclined to be studious—and what is more, she is the soul of truth. Much as she regretted it, she would not break her promise to go out and study—er—er—"

Mrs. Evans was trying to think of the word.

"They thaid bugths—it thounded tho darn thilly," Laurence offered, and he giggled a little. He was that sort.

"Imagthine Mith Winona being keen about bugths!"

"Oh, she isn't—merely curious, and she had given her word. But come to dinner tonight and she will make full amends—really, you have no idea how interested she is in you, Mr. Worthing."

This pleased him. Mrs. Honora Evans rode to the lawn fete in style in Laurence's big car.

"Now for the butterfly," Winona said. "Have you a special appointment here with it?"

"I hope so."

"What is the scientific name of this particular one?"

"It is of the family of puellalepidopterus."

"Um," said Winona, "would I know it if I saw it?"

"Unquestionably."

"Describe it."

"Beautiful beyond description."

"That doesn't help me any—go on ahead and net it—and Monty, Mrs. Evans raving a little because I wouldn't go with that thweet little Laurenthe,' remarked she thought it silly for a man to go about lassoing bugs—only she says bugs, like this—buggggs'"

They laughed over this and went to a large pool in the stream.

"By jove!" exclaimed Monty.

"Where—net it!" Winona cried, looking around wildly for a sight of the wonderful butterfly.

"Come easy—right here—take a look at it first—I must have it for my—"

"Look!" he whispered.

Winona looked into the pool and hissed, "Where?"

Dines with Monty

"There, see—"

Something came down over Winona's head.

"Got it!" Monty cried.

He gently pulled the net toward him, put his arm about her and kissed her through the net.

"This is the butterfly I want—you!" he whispered.

He held her.

"Only you, Winona—promise you won't try to escape if I remove the net."

She laughed.

"As if I didn't know enough Latin to know what 'puella' meant!"

"You haven't answered my question," he said.

"Won't your collection be complete without me?"

"Let's forget the entomological simile, dearest—let's talk about you."

"And you?"

They talked about it.

Around sunset they came back to earth and remembered that they had appetites.

Monty drove her out to Overlook for one of those wonderful dinners. Winona telephoned to her home about it.

Her stepmother told her to hold the line. She heard a door slam and knew her stepmother didn't want someone to hear what she said.

"You little fool. Laurence is here for dinner—make some excuse and come right home. This is once that I shall be obeyed. I shall not let you waste your time with a cheap, half-witted bug-chaser when Laurence, with all his money, wants to marry you, and furthermore—"

Winona gently hung up on her stepmother and went back to enjoy her dinner and dancing.

Mrs. Honora Evans was waiting up for Winona when she returned. If this Monty Garner person came in, she intended to send him away for all time, but he didn't come in.

"Just who is this man? Who are his people? What do you mean by wasting your time with a cheap bug-chaser whose college salary is probably no more than $2,500 a year?"

"The man is Monty Garner. His people did consist of one legal father and one legal mother, now dead. I met him through his sister, who was my classmate at Smith. You'd be surprised about what I mean by wasting my time with him—good night!"

To Be Married

Mrs. Evans decided to be a little more diplomatic, next morning.

"By the way, Mrs. Huxley knows the architect who has restored that old Dennison place—more than a million has been spent on it already. She is going to take us over to see it—she says it is marvelous, nothing like it. Mr. Worthing will pick us up, so be dear and don't break the appointment I made for you," Mrs. Evans explained.

"Sorry—can't make it—"

"Don't be such a fool, Winona—Laurence Worthing has half a million and he wants to marry you!"

"Marry him yourself—"

"At least you'll come and see the Dennison place. When whoever it is that owns it now moves in we'll never get to see it."

"I don't know why not—I'm going to marry him next month," Winona calmly informed her stepmother.

"I'm not joking—and—Laurence—"

"I'm not joking. Monty Garner owns the place. He has spent two millions on it—and he could spend 50 times that and not go broke. I'm going to marry him."

"But—but he—bugs—er—"

"He has two hobbies. One is making the largest amateur collection of entomological specimens in the world and the other hobby is to make me Mrs. Monty Garner!"

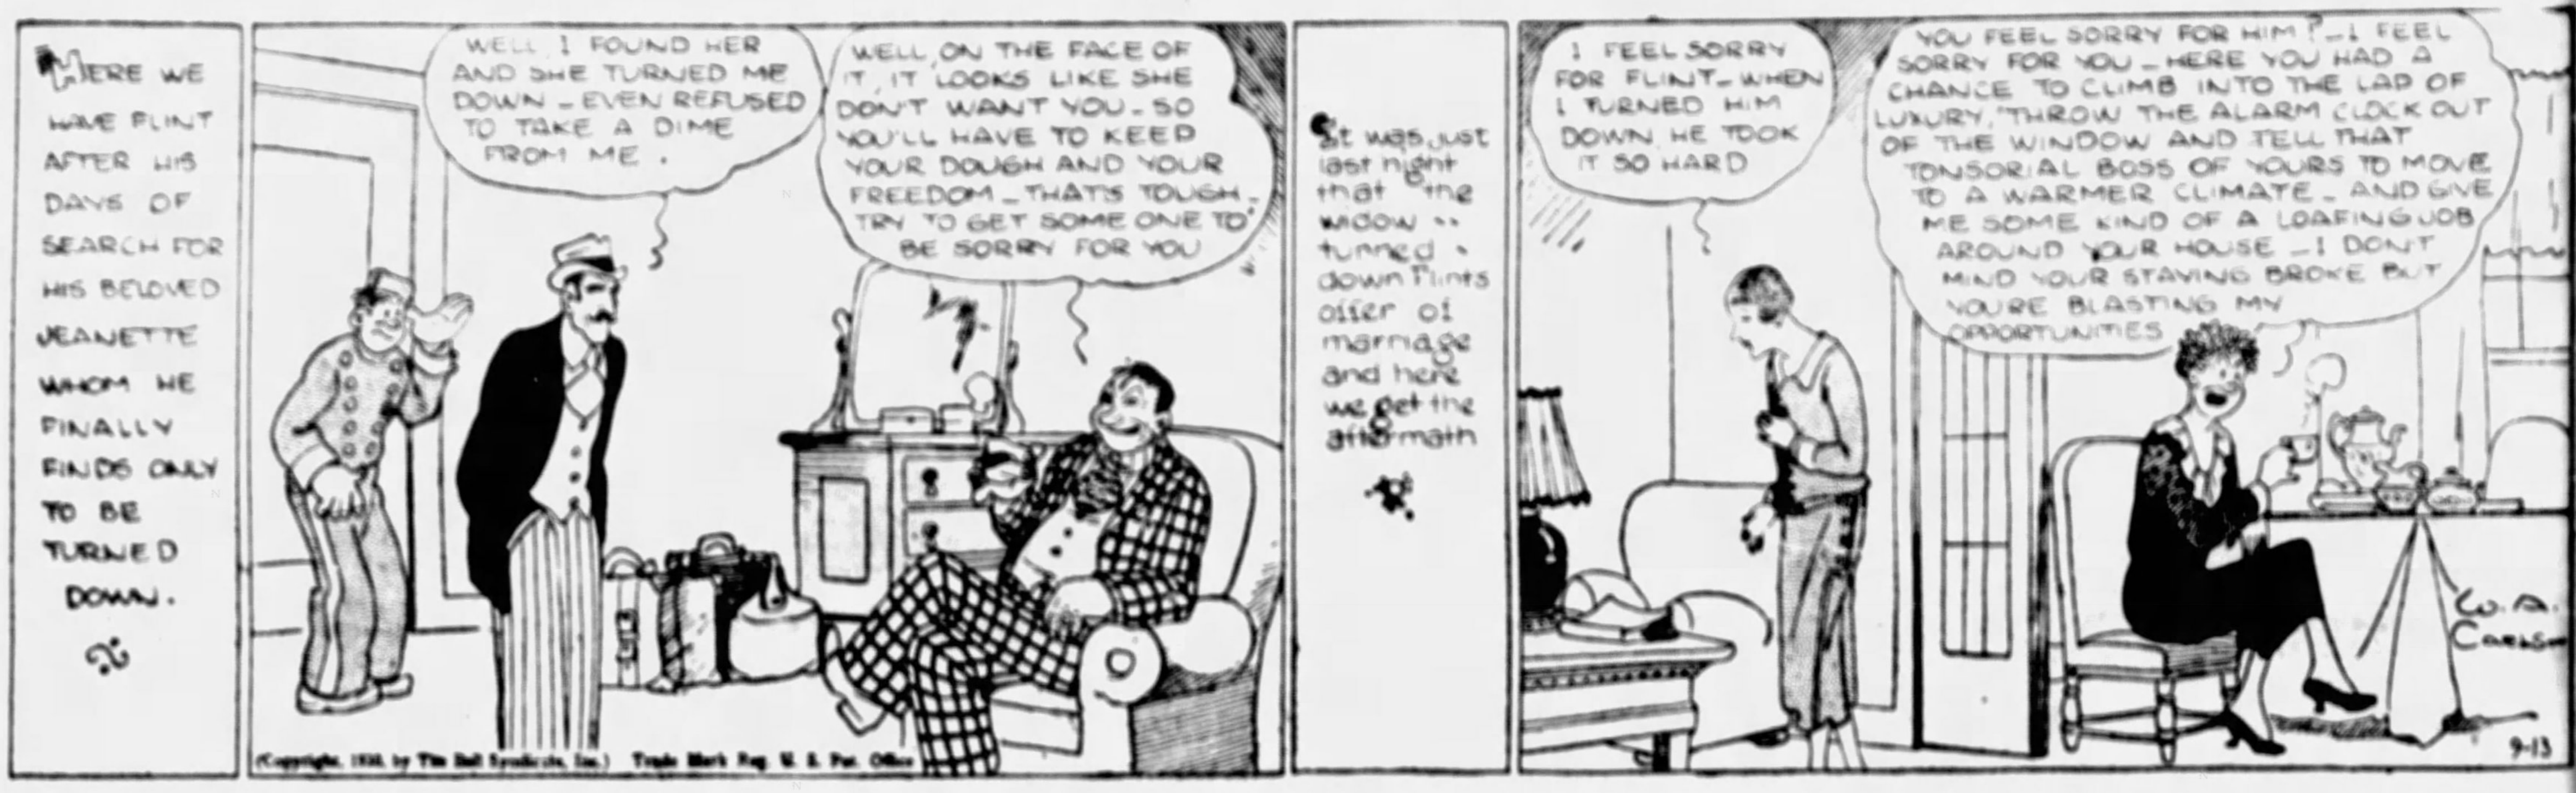
The Aftermath



HERE WE HAVE FLINT AFTER HIS DAYS OF SEARCH FOR HIS BELOVED JEANETTE WHOM HE FINALLY FINDS ONLY TO BE TURNED DOWN.
WELL, I FOUND HER AND SHE TURNED ME DOWN — EVEN REFUSED TO TAKE A DIME FROM ME.
WELL, ON THE FACE OF IT, IT LOOKS LIKE SHE DON'T WANT YOU — SO YOU'LL HAVE TO KEEP YOUR DOUGH AND YOUR FREEDOM — THAT'S TOUGH — TRY TO GET SOME ONE TO BE SORRY FOR YOU
It was just last night that the widow turned down Flint's offer of marriage and here we get the aftermath
I FEEL SORRY FOR FLINT — WHEN I TURNED HIM DOWN HE TOOK IT SO HARD
YOU FEEL SORRY FOR HIM? — I FEEL SORRY FOR YOU — HERE YOU HAD A CHANCE TO CLIMB INTO THE LAP OF LUXURY, THROW THE ALARM CLOCK OUT OF THE WINDOW AND TELL THAT TONSORIAL BOSS OF YOURS TO MOVE TO A WARMER CLIMATE — AND GIVE ME SOME KIND OF A LOAFING JOB AROUND YOUR HOUSE — I DON'T MIND YOUR STAYING BROKE BUT YOU'RE BLASTING MY OPPORTUNITIES

MR. FRISBY'S WEEKLY BROADCAST

Heartgripping scene described by Congressman Frisby in weekly mimeograph broadcast.

WASHINGTON.—Hello, America! Is it hot enough for you? Well, yours truly, Horace Frisby, is right here on the job. "How do you keep it up?" many will ask. "What gives you your marvelous strength? Your tireless energy? Folks, it's Service. I'm out to perform. Your Uncle Horace doesn't loaf during these delightful Indian summer days, when a fellow likes to take off his shoes and vest and just sit back and think. I suppose many of you are anxious to hear how I saved the beautiful daughter of a retired merchant prince from going to the Bow Wows? That was in St. Paul, Minneapolis, thirty years ago. She was a beauty! But for want of proper training, which is but too common in high society circles today, she yielded to the allurements of a fast life. Wearing an elegant veil and a close-fitting dress, she rang my door bell and applied for a job as typist. Having considerable presence of mind, I pledged her to wait on my doorstep while I ran to the police station, where I had her arrested. Her father happened to be a friend of mine. He was almost heartbroken when I told him his daughter wanted to be my stenographer, and that I had deduced that she smoked cigarets and read confession magazines. She consented to go home in a closed carriage. Next week I will broadcast "Glimpses of City Life by Gas Light." Don't miss it if you can.

Airplane Trade Tour

proposed airplane tour to be conducted by the Chamber of Commerce as a substitute for the customary Golden Rule trade tour made by rail, has splendid advertising possibilities. It will call attention to Pittsburgh's position as an aviation center and, if a sufficient number of business and professional men can be induced to make the trip, it will do much to overcome the timidity of others who have not yet ''dared the air.''

Magistrate Charles Papale fined a lottery agent $50 and a slot machine man $30 in East End Police Court. Magistrates are not empowered to assume jurisdiction in such cases. They are required under the law, if a prima facie case is made out, to bind over the defendants for the grand jury. To dismiss them with a fine of $50 or $30 is equivalent to licensing the racket. District Attorney Andrew T. Park would do well to keep his eye on the magistrates.

The disclosure that 456,000 persons in Allegheny County who have been assessed have not yet paid the occupation or poll tax gives cause for concern. Many, it is assumed, have last year's tax receipts, and so are qualified to vote. It is to be hoped the others require nothing more than a reminder to do their civic duty. The gang politicians see to it that their supporters have tax receipts. It is the independent voters who are most likely to be disqualified for lack of them, and it is the independent voters whose votes are most to be desired.

Dr. Andrey Avinoff, director of Carnegie Museum, points to a real need in expressing the hope that Pittsburgh may have some day a museum devoted to invention and the progress of industry. In Munich he saw such a museum with exhibits filling scores of halls. It is rather remarkable, to say the least, that Pittsburgh, one of the foremost cities of the world in its manufacturing industries, has no exposition showing the development of its steel, glass, electric and other basic industries.

Pittsburgh police do many things that seem extraordinary to outsiders. Judge John S. Fine, of Luzerne County, sitting in Criminal Court, expressed surprise on learning that a local policeman was allowed to go on duty while under the influence of liquor, and allowed to continue patroling his beat for two hours after shooting in the neck a superior officer who reprimanded him. Come to think about it, it WAS strange.

A new detour has been established for the Lincoln highway between Turtle Creek and East McKeesport. That road has been blocked for one reason or other a great deal in recent years. Some motorists have become so used to going over the William Penn highway between Pittsburgh and Greensburg that they scarcely think of driving the Lincoln any more. But when the big improvement at Turtle Creek is completed, the Lincoln highway will again come into its own.

How business would boom if all industries were in position to carry on with the same energy as Pennsylvania's Department of Highways! Miles and miles of new state highway are being constructed, and it is announced that 227 of the county bridges acquired by the department on June 1 last have been widened or replaced. In the last two years the department has done three times as much bridge work as in the previous biennium and has used for the work six times as much fabricated steel. It is fortunate that these projects were on hand during the present dull industrial season.

For those who have an eye for the bright side of things there is abundant evidence that business is picking up. At a meeting of the Allegheny Region Advisory Board on Thursday, for example, shippers estimated their freight car requirements during the next three months would be only 6½ per cent lower than for the corresponding period last year. The estimates were obtained by sending questionnaires to shippers of 27 commodities in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio, Northern West Virginia and Western Maryland. It is noteworthy that shippers of automobiles, by-product coke, enamel ware, gravel, petroleum, rubber and stone said they would need more cars than during the last quarter of 1929.

Dr. C. B. Maits, director of public health, has given new evidence of his zeal to protect Pittsburghers from disease in the arrangements he has made to insure that only healthy persons are employed in restaurants. Enforcing a state law, Dr. Maits plans to have restaurant employes who handle food and drink undergo a medical examination every six months, and a certificate of freedom from disease will be required. The restaurant people may grumble a little at this, but nobody will deny that the regulation is for the public benefit.

Opening of the newly improved section of the Perry highway is being celebrated today, with a number of notable Pennsylvanians in attendance. Paved now from Pittsburgh to Mercer, and also between Meadville and Erie, the highway, when the Mercer-Meadville section is improved, will be one of the state's most important arteries of traffic. Since it cuts off many miles from the distance between Pittsburgh and Erie by the next shortest route, the wonder is that it was not placed on the state's primary road system and improved long ago.

Thoughts turn at once to automobiles when the subject of accidents comes up nowadays. And when the National Safety Council is mentioned it suggests the splendid work done by this organization to prevent mishaps in mills and mines and on railroads. It is well to be reminded that there is another class of accidents that deserves consideration—the accidents that occur in the home. The home, which should be the safest place in the world, is, unhappily, not always so. It is gratifying, therefore, to learn that the safety of American homes, particularly in respect to children, is going to receive a great deal of attention at the meeting of the Safety Congress in Pittsburgh September 29 to October 3.

There are educators who think many young people are going to college and qualifying for ''white collar'' jobs who would do better if they entered trades and crafts for which college education is not necessary. But the most intelligent opinion is that collegiate training is worth while no matter what occupation is chosen. At any rate there should be satisfaction over the outlook for a largely increased registration at the University of Pittsburgh when it reopens next week. It is especially pleasing to learn of the numerous inquiries about night courses in the downtown division of the university.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Farewell to the Helmet

Today our national bird is the moth.

We open the old cedar chest and out flies the gypsy wool weevils who have been banqueting on vests all summer and coughing up the buttons.

Bugs Baer.

Shall we slap that moth any more tenderly because he has our overcoat in his stomach?

The moth is an adaptable bird. Any size garment will fit him.

If he can't get the warp he will take the woof. And while he withholds the details of your winter wardrobe he is willing to give you a skeletonized idea of the whole business.

The man who puts camphor balls in his pockets in the spring usually finds that by September the moths have become marble champions.

The real object in opening the family clothes vaults at this time is to entomb the straw hat with appropriate ceremonies. The sun has been shining on the old alfalfa saucer for three months and it has a tan like a runaway mule. It was a beautiful hunk of streamline hay in June, but now it looks like a cold potato.

Yet, some people save everything, including string and chicken feathers. You can pipe bystanders rushing up and grabbing a fender from a week-end collision just to have a souvenir of the happy occasion.

Hoarding an ancient weed bonnet is just as plausible as diving off the deep end of a plate of soup. It's yellow, tattered and twisted. Has a shape like the Florodora sextet and the ribbon belongs among the battle flags of a Chinese revolution.

It has been fried by the sun, garnished by the rain and curdled by the thunder. In general outline and physical contour it looks like an overdose of delicatessen taken with suicidal intent.

If you keep it until next spring and then wear it you are placing yourself right back in the last panic. There should be a law against putting straw hats away for the winter because their trade-in value is equivalent to whiskers on the barber shop floor and there ain't any more chance of them resuming their right shapes than there is of a mud turtle giving you a pearly smile.

Having got this off the concave chest we will now put our straw hat away for the winter.

CHEMISTRY AND HUMAN NEEDS

By Archibald Henderson

Chemical science has become a vital factor today in the problem of the enforced economy of natural resources. Fuel, food, minerals for use in manufacture, building materials of all sorts, vegetable resources—all are subject to intensive study in the chemical laboratory. Means for sustaining life, vehicles for travel, houses for shelter, clothing for covering and protection—all depend upon the activity and progress of chemical science.

Take fuel, for example, which bulks increasingly large in the long list of human needs. The vast growth of transportation has thrust fuel up to the top of the list in importance. Synthetic fuels, simulating petrol in action and effect, are made from coal. It is now estimated that, on the basis of present needs, the coal reserves of the world will be exhausted in about 3,000 years. The growth of transport, which is now phenomenal, and the rapid decrease in petroleum production, bid fair to reduce this figure, unless new and now unsuspected coal deposits are discovered.

We may always expect a certain irreducible minimum in the employment of thermal power in transport. There are advantages in carrying one's fuel in the vehicle of transport; ease of carriage and the mobility which it confers. But it is inevitable that as our supplies of coal and petrol continue to dwindle, greater reliance will have to be placed upon electricity as driving power. More and more we shall be compelled to harness our water power to hydro-electric turbines; and the energy thus developed should prove adequate for all our needs, even including the voracious demands of transport.

In the course of the next century, in all likelihood, there will be an enormous increase in the electrification of all forms of transport. The railroads will probably be the first means of transport to feel this needed reform in its full effect. New and more effective plants and mechanisms for hydro-electric power, and the transmission of that power over the earth's surface through some form of mechanical linkage, will gradually be developed. The wireless transmission of power is something more than a possibility; it is a certainty. With its development which is highly problematical in its character and operation, vehicles will doubtless run all over the earth's surface under power from some directive hydro-electric source. Thermal energy, in limited quantities, will have to be reserved for independently mobile vehicles.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Some day you'll "fall in love." With whom?

You grin or grunt, according to your mood. But in either case you think to yourself: "What a fool question! How can anyone know who they're going to fall for? Why, we pick the craziest people. There's no rhyme or reason about love. It just happens."

You're wrong, partner. Love doesn't just happen. We make it happen. And we don't pick—or get picked—at random. There are definite laws governing this business of "falling in love." IT IS POSSIBLE FOR YOU TO KNOW THE SORT OF PERSON YOU'RE GOING TO LOVE, EVEN THOUGH THAT BLISSFUL EVENT BE TEN YEARS DISTANT. And you won't need to be a psychic to do it. You need only KNOW YOURSELF.

If you can know the truth about yourself, you will then know the nature of the man or the woman you will some day seek. Or you will even be able to answer that pesty problem, "Why did I pick what I did?"

Why do we love? We love because we need. There's the bodily need, of course, but that's the simplest part of love. If the bodily need were all, love could be easily managed. But infinitely more subtle and powerful than the needs of the body are the needs of the mind and heart. The world may not know those needs. Outwardly we may strut comfortable and complacent, fully dressed, well fed. But, within ourselves, each one of us huddles naked, alone and afraid—hating our nakedness—hating our fear—longing to be brave and beautiful and admired. Above all, admired—that our naked fear may be covered with confidence. And we "fall in love" according to our desire. Indeed, we do not "fall in love" at all—we reach out fiercely, eagerly, toward the thing which we feel we need.

There's Miller, for instance. Miller's one of those meek-mousey young men, hard working, reliable, but colorless as dish water. Perhaps you think Miller will seek a mate as demure and drab as himself. Guess again! Miller will fall for some rambunctious little rascal with ball-bearing eyes and a line like a lass' rope. What'll he do after he gets her? Don't ask me—that's Miller's suicide—but he WANTS her because her color and dash represent all those dynamic qualities which Miller, himself, lacks.

Or Billings. Billings is a blow hard. Always showing off—telling what He'd Do. Yet always glancing around to see if he's registering. You know the type. Every crowd has one. What will Billings marry? Some loud-mouthed smarty like himself? Not a chance! Some day Billings will show up with a timid, devoted dumbell who will hang on his every word. For what Billings wants is an audience—an audience so trusting, so adoring, so reassuring that it will make him feel as grand as he hopes, but doubts, that he is!

"But there are some people who marry others exactly like themselves—"

Yes, there are. And they, too, are satisfying needs. Some of them are so afraid of criticism or competition that, to avoid it, they seek a duplicate. Some are so pleased with themselves that they want an echo around. So they marry it.

Who will you fall for some day? Whatever you're needing now. And if it's a healthy and reasonable need, and the other mortal really possesses the quality you seek, you'll probably be very happy together. But if it isn't a healthy need—take a tip from a friend! Marriage is the poorest possible way of getting rid of what ails you. But it's dollars to doughnuts you'll do it, nevertheless.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS,

Boarding house jokes have about passed out. Either the jokesters that was raised in boarding houses has all died of indigestion, or boarding houses have got better and nobody jokes about them on that account. This one is on a boarding house, though.

The young man boarder went to the doctor, and the lady that ran the boarding house was awful interested.

"What did the doc say, Mr. Hill?" she asked, at dinner.

"He said I have awful indigestion, and I should take a cup of hot water before every meal."

"Oh, well, it might be worse," she says. "Anyhow, hot water ain't expensive. I'll get you a cup of hot water right now, and you can drink it before you start on that coffee."

"Never mind, thanks," he says. "My stomach would have to be pretty sensitive to tell this from hot water."

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS,

Ukulele

"Twang . . . twang!" across the fragrant night
The ukulele ring;
Low in the west a crescent white
Through amber shadows swings.

Are drenched with spray's white rain,
Hibiscus flower and camphor tree
Lift grateful leaves again.

For cool and sweet the night wind creeps
Along the shining sand;
The ocean murmurs as it sleeps,
And slumber claims the land.

"Twang . . . twang!" The ukulele brings
Always the palms, the sea,
Hibiscus blooms and wind that sings
Its ageless melody.

"Twang . . . twang!" though down a city street
This music comes to me,
Its voice, insistent, very sweet,
Tells of the palms, the sea.

We cannot, unless we go back to Methuselah and a long way beyond, produce any current instance to set beside the long-continued, steadfast evolution of the horse. But evidently that evolution went on by steps, each individually as slight as these two.

Nature is leisurely and works with a vast profusion of material. We can, however, work faster than she can, by cutting out all the futile trial and vain repetitions in which she indulges.

H. G. Wells

Let us, for instance, put the bioligical experimentalist, Professor Castle of Harvard, in the place of nature, and Castle's selection in the place of the loose, wide, hit-and-miss of natural selection, and let us see what can happen to certain rats.

Castle worked with piebald "hooded" rats. The standard type of this breed has black head and forequarters, with a black stripe along the back; the rest of the coat is white.

This pattern is fairly variable, and Castle used it as material to study what effect could be produced by stringent selection for more or for less black. In one lot he bred only from those with most black; in another, only from those with most white.

The results were striking; selection achieved types far beyond the range of variation normally found in the piebald strain. Selection for more black drew the "hood" along the back and spread the black line along the spine right down on either side.

Meanwhile selection for more white in other rats from the same original stock had reduced the hood to a mere smudge on the nose and ears, and removed every trace of black from the body.

At first sight these results appeared to contradict Johanssen's pure line results on beans and to impley (as Weismann and the neo-Darwinian postulated) that selection could stimulate new variations to come into being; and so, indeed, they were at first interpreted.

But while Johanssen's bean-strains, being naturally self-fertilized, were pure lines from the start, the hooded rats, being promiscuous breeders, were not. The germ-plasms of the beans were like so many samples of chemically pure substances; those of the rats like a number of chemical substances being constantly stirred and mixed together.

The results were, as a matter of fact, mainly due to new recombinations of already existing factors. The hooded pattern, whether exaggerated or reduced, always behaves as a simple recessive to normal; but the degree of hoodedness, or, in other words, the amount of black, was affected by quite a number of what we may call modifying genes.

These by themselves cannot produce a piebald pattern; but once the hooded gene is at work, they can modify the extent of its influence. Each of them singly has only a very small effect; in the medium-hooded rat there are many present, some making for the extension of black and others for its restriction; in the very black hooded rat a large number of extenders of the black patches are present, and so on.

In the ordinary mixed stock it is thus very unlikely that all the plus of all the minus modifiers will ever become assembled in one individual as the result of chance mating. Selective breeding, however, will sift the random heap; selection for more black will accumulate more and more of the plus modifiers, the black extenders, in the germ-plasm; and vic versa.

Once the combination of all the plus modifiers has been thus brought into being, a pure line has been produced and selection will have no further effect, unless the germ-plasm itself changes by mutation.

But changes in the germ-plasm can and do occur. In the early stages of such an experiment, while the stock is still very mixed, it will be impossible to distinguis the effects of a mutation from those of a better combination of previously existing modifiers, so that many mutations may pas unnoticed.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The cat gains popularity as a household pet in New York. Until recently pedigreed tabbies were only a side line in swanky dog shops. Today there are several cat shops and two feline establishments are to open—one with an onyx front on Fifth and the other on Park avenue.

Three veterinarians, and one with a Van Dyke throws Irvin Cobb into a state of cat-alepsy, confine practices to cats. The last cat show at the Waldorf brought out one of the most distinguished Social Register lists since the Clarence Mackay party to Lindbergh. Or who was it?

The "Book of Cats" by the Japanese artist Foujita had a short pause among best sellers. For years cats were chiefly the alley-roaming variety used as rat catchers in the warehouse and tenement districts and along West street wharves.

But scarcely a mansion, apartment de luxe or pent house does not house a blooded cat these days—the silver and smoke, the fawn, snow white, Persian, chinchilla and bobbed Siamese. Other fashionable colors are pastel blue, orange, tortoise shell and, of course, ebony black.

Many Botticellian ladies in ecru-shaded limousines display cats of royal lineage on silken pillows, gazing out with that contemplative scorn only cats achieve. Celebrity cat owners include Mary Garden, Neysa McMein, Greta Garbo, Jeritza, Eva La Gallienne, Carl Van Vechten, T. B. Costain and Dorothy Gish.

A famous actress takes her cat in a plush lined basket to her dressing room nightly. Lindbergh as a cat fancier revealed consideration for them by leaving the kitten behind in his solo to Paris. Three New York newspapers feature question and answer departments by cat experts.

The greatest prize winners come from England where cat fanciers are a guild. It has a National Cat Club listing royalty and members of Parliament. Cat owners claim cats are better mannered than dogs. I don't subscribe to such feline foolishness but I don't chuckle at them trotting around on leashes as many do.

Charley Grapewin thinks bridge players should be served stic candy between rubbers to keep cards from skidding.

Today I inquired the locatio of a sales room of an elevato operator in a small four storie building. He looked blank. Late I visited 12 fruit stores in searc of a cocoanut and failed. So I' giving up shopping. I'm n virile enough.

Unless the choral manoeuvr achieve fresh permutations wouldn't appeal to me. That is approximately, you big educated baboon.

But I admire the dramatic vertisements of Baird Leonard, Life's most recent critic. She i the second female reviewer to spark intellectual luster at first nights. The other is Alison Smith. Miss Leonard was graduated from Smith and began writing a cracker-jack column on the old Morning Telegraph.

Lindy blossoms forth with another cafe hard by his original stand near the Winter Garden. No haunt along the Bright Aisle is richer in Rialto cosmopolitanism. It fills from noon until midnight with song writers, booking agents, touts, actors and vivid ladies of the ensemble. Here, too, are bluish jowled gentlemen with receding ideals pleasantly concerned with the business of living without toil. Also figures in sports, theaters and music and a soupcon of journalists and press agents.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You are planning a trip and you find that it is going to afford you so much pleasure that you cannot keep your mind off the details of your going and so your work suffers.

You are of little use to yourself or to those who employ you.

As an adult this ought to prove to you that you need a thoroug course in severe self-discipline.

It bespeaks a weakening of will power.

The longer you permit yourself to become excited and nervo and emotional over future events whether it be matters of work pleasure the worse for you.

It is surprising how fast one can become unfitted to carry on just letting coming events dazzle or obscure the vision of the prese and its needs.

One thing leads to another, accidents happen.
